ADMIRABLE, SAYS TUMULTY

Harrison Declares Harding Will Be Pushed from Porch—Reed Bolt Not Expected.

LEAGUE STAND EMPHASIZED

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Governor James M. Cox will begin his campaign on Thursday, and will push his fight from that time until Election Day, practically without interruption. His plan is to keep the aggressive.

The nominee said today that reports received by him were to the effect that there had been a most favorable reaction to his speech of acceptance and that he was now prepared to go before the people and give himself without stint to the work of telling them at first hand the progressive principles for which the Democratic Party would stand under his leadership, as opposed to the reactionary program which, in his opinion, the Republican Party, controlled by the Senate clique, represented.

The Governor said that he liked best of all the remark made by a friend that his address of yesterday was like a "cavalry attack."

"I was impressed by the marchers in the parade," he said. "They all had fight in their faces and that's the spirit I like. There is no need to improve their morale."

Senator Pat Harrison, of Mississippi, who was with the Governor today made this characterization of the situation as it relates to the speech of acceptance and the Governor's plans for a campaign:

"The Governor's speech and the demonstration yesterday will push Senator Harding from his front porch, and, mark my prediction, before many weeks have passed they will have Senator Harding speaking in former Republican strongholds to stem the tide of Democracy."

Senator Harrison, who is in charge of the Speakers' Bureau of the Democratic National Committee, and National Chairman George White have been working over an itinerary with Governor Cox. They have found him willing to accept any burden of campaigning which the limitation of time makes possible.

Shaping Schedule of Speeches.

The following dates have been determined upon, and other engagements probably will be fitted in to fill the gaps in the schedule:

Aug. 12—Camp Perry, Ohio, where the Governor will attend the rifle match and deliver an address.

Aug. 14—Two speeches in Wheeling, W. Va., one before the Demoncratic State Convention.

Aug. 17—Address before the Democratic State Convention at Columbus, Ohio.

Aug. 19—Address at South Bend, Ind., before the State Editorial Association.

Aug. 21—Cox Day celebration at Canton, Ohio.

Aug. 25—Address at Evansville, Ind.

Aug. 27—Night meeting at Pittsburgh, Pa.

Aug. 28—Police Department Field Day at Sheepshead Bay, New York.

It is probable that at least half a dozen other meetings in the East and Middle West will be added to this schedule.

Long Western Tour in September.

After Sept. 2, Governor Cox will start on his long swing to the Pacific Coast, making a comprehensive campaign of the entire West which will occupy at least one month. The schedule which is being mapped out for this trip is said to be the most arduous ever attempted by a candidate, and promises to try the strength of the Governor to the utmost.

Among those who called at Trail's End today were George E. Brennan, Democratic leaders of Illinois; Theodore Bell of California, Senator Atlee Pomerene of Ohio, Breckinridge Long, nominee for Senator in Missouri; National Chairman White, Senator Harrison and D. E. Metzger of Hawaii.

"The Governor's address of acceptance," said Brennan, "was a clear statement of principle; one about which there can be no mistake. It will, in my mind, have a profound effect throughout the country."

Metzger characterized the address as "one of the most thoughtful utterances which have been given to the American people for many a day, which will be of interest to the people of the whole world."

E. H. Moore, who conducted the preconvention campaign for Governor Cox, said that the speech had had a great reception, indicative of the response from the American people.

Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to the President, left this morning on a motor trip back to Washington by way of Cleveland.

Most of the prominent Democrats who attended the notification ceremonies left today. Senator James A. Reed of Missouri, about whose presence here there has been much speculation, was one of the last on the scene. He gave consideration to the position he would take

BUENOS AIRES, Aug. 8.—A. B. Howard, South American manager of the American Express Company, has disappeared from the steamer Martha Washington, which is on a voyage from Buenos Aires to New York, says a wireless dispatch received here. He has been missing since July 30.

Mr. Howard was one of the best known Americans in South America. He was returning to the United States on account of the illness of his wife, who preceded him.

HARDING MANAGERS ASSAIL COX SPEECH

SAY HE "DISTORTED" FACTS

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Governor Cox's discussion of international affairs and taxation was chosen by Senator Harding's advisers for their first attack on the campaign issues outlined in the Governor's speech of acceptance.

Senator Harding refused to comment today on the Democratic candidate's acceptance speech, preferring to answer Governor Cox's attack in addresses to front-porch pilgrims this week. His political strategists busied themselves, however, and in a statement issued from Harding headquarters this afternoon it was announced that "The Republican Party is ready to join battle before the country" on the League of Nations question, and that Governor Cox "distorted" the facts in his speech relating to taxation and revenue.

The speech is pronounced "a curious mixture of errors and misstatements as to facts so well known that mere utterance can cause nothing less than amazement."

"Governor Cox's discussion of revenue and taxation will demonstrate to any modestly informed person that he has no program whatever except to appeal for the support of people who want somebody else to pay the taxes," the statement continued.

Governor Cox is accused of opposing consumption taxes in one breath and urging their adoption in the next. Statistics are drawn upon to contradict Governor Cox's accusation that the Republican Congress made no effort to reduce the tax burden.

More than $2,000,000,000 was saved by changing the party in power in Congress, it is asserted. The statement goes on:

"During the fiscal year 1921 the national debt can be reduced to the extent of $1,100,000,000, whereas if the Democratic appropriations had been made the debt would have increased $1,400,000,000. These are perfectly plain facts as obvious as the ledger's footing of a business balance sheet," the statement adds. "A leadership which distorts these outstanding facts as Governor Cox has done will hardly command confidence when it turns attention to the problems of our fiscal future."

Text of Headquarters Statement.

The statement, given out over the signature "Senator Harding's Headquarters," was as follows:

"Governor Cox's acceptance address will not fail to please his political opponents, Republicans and Democrats alike, who are convinced that the country's most immediate task is to get its business administration into the hands of people competent to take care of it, and get its international relations into the control of men who are Americans first, rather than internationalists.

"The speech is a curious mixture of errors and misstatements as to facts so well known that mere uuterance can cause nothing less than amazement.

"Thus on the subject of Government expenses Governor Cox said:

> Immediately following the armistice measures to modify onerous and annoying taxation should have been taken, and the Republican Congress has not made a single effort or passed a single law to lift from the American people a load of war taxation that cannot be tolerated in a time of peace. Federal taxation must be heavily reduced, and it will be done at once if a Democratic administration is chosen in November.

"The foregoing is far from recorded facts. The Sixty-sixth Congress, in a little more than a year of its existence, reduced the country's taxes by $2,414,-

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF BANK PRESIDENT DRUGGED AND ROBBED

IN CITY ON BUSINESS TRIP

Victim a Stranger to Occupants of House in Which He Is Discovered Unconscious.

Edmund Hall Crim, 54 years old, President of the First National Bank of Philippi, W. Va., and head of the firm of E. H. Crim & Co., proprietors of one of the largest department stores in that part of the State, who registered at the Hotel Pennsylvania on Aug. 5, was found unconscious on the floor in the room of James Ready in a rooming house at 158 West Thirty-fourth Street early yesterday morning. He died a few hours later at the New York Hospital without regaining consciousness. Detectives were trying last night to get information as to Mr. Crim's movements on Saturday night in the hope that that information would shed some light on the mystery.

Mr. Crim apparently had been drugged and robbed and left in this room, which was No. 7, on the second floor. Physicians at the New York Hospital said last night that the man had shown the symptoms of acute opium poisoning. A. S. Bradford of this city, who has known the Crim family in West Virginia for many years, said that Mr. Crim always carried large sums of money with him, wore a large diamond ring and also a diamond stickpin. When searched at the hospital he had only 27 cents; his diamond ring, stickpin and watch were gone. He wore a plain black band ring, which Mr. Bradford said he had had for many years. He still had his spectacles and some papers.

Ready said yesterday afternoon that he had been out all of Saturday night and returned to his room at 4 o'clock yesterday morning. He found his door open and a large man lying on the floor. He called Patrolman John Egan of the West Thirtieth Street Station, and aroused the woman who occupied Room 8 and also other persons in the house. When the ambulance from the New York Hospital arrived several occupants of the two houses at 156 and 158, which are under the same management, were up. No one at the place seemed to know how Mr. Crim got into the room.

Showed Symptoms of Poisoning.

Dr. George Waterman, who answered the ambulance call, and Dr. L. T. Eager of the hospital staff, who saw the man when he was taken to the hospital, said that he showed symptoms of acute opium poisoning. His respiration was slow and he was in a state of coma. He died at 8:55 o'clock. The hospital records show that the man was taken there at 6 o'clock, while the records of the detectives of the Thirtieth Street Police Station state that he was taken to the institution at 7 o'clock. Ready's recollection was that he found the man at 4 o'clock.

It was learned that the front doors of both houses, 156 and 158, were supposed to have been closed and locked Saturday night, as usual. However, the front door at 156 would readily give way to a little weight. The same is true of the door to Ready's room. The fact that these doors operated in this way was known, it was said, to a dozen or more persons. Ready said he did not know that any one had visited his room during Saturday night or yesterday morning. Ready said he was a brother of F. A. Ready, one of the managers of the Hotel McAlpin.

At the Hotel Pennsylvania the manager declined to give any information about Mr. Crim, when he arrived or any of his movements since. Mr. Bradford learned from the police that Mr. Crim registered at the hotel on Aug. 5.

Papers in Mr. Crim's pockets led to his identification. He had several duplicate sales slips, showing he had made purchases for his store, which was his mission here, and he also had a letter from the manager of his store, Edgar B. Thompson. The police telegraphed

Shipping Board Threatens Action To Stop Rate War in Pacific Trade

TOKIO, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—Representatives of all shipping lines operating out of Japanese ports, including Japanese-American lines, have failed to reach an agreement regarding the establishment of a standard freight rate for ocean traffic as suggested by the United States Shipping Board. Shipping representatives predict a rate war in the Pacific unless an agreement on rates is eventually formulated.

The United States Shipping Board representative, R. O. Baker, who recently attended a rate conference at Kobe, has announced that if Japan and other nations continue their present policy of cutting rates, the Shipping Board will be obliged to take drastic action.

The British, French and Dutch representatives refused to join in a rate accord without authority from their home offices. While the Japanese also declined on the ground that they were without authority from the company directors, they announced unofficially that they felt it impossible to come to an agreement with the Shipping Board until they learned how far the provisions of the Jones Shipping bill were to be carried out. Mr. Baker stated he was acting on authority from Washington.

It is asserted that some steamers leaving Japan are carrying freight at from $1 to $4 loss per ton than other steamers.

J. C. Slavin Falls After Taxicab Trip with Giants' Manager and Third Man.

PREVIOUS AFFRAY RUMORED

After what was described to the police as a "wild night" in The Lambs, 128 West Forty-fourth Street, on Saturday night, John J. McGraw, manager and part owner of the New York Giants, arrived at his home at 301 West 109th Street, northwest corner of Broadway, about 8 o'clock yesterday morning.

With him were John C. Slavin, a comedian well known on Broadway for his droll performances in musical comedy, and Winfield Leggett, described as a retired naval officer and a resident member of The Lambs.

Mr. McGraw went into the apartment house and ascended in the elevator to his apartment on the fifth floor. Leggett and William Meagan of 3 Columbus Avenue, the taxi driver, who had been looking the other way, turned and found Mr. Slavin lying on the sidewalk. He was unconscious. Their efforts to revive him failed.

Becoming alarmed, Mr. Leggett and the taxi driver lifted the comedian into the taxi and hurried with him to St. Luke's Hospital. Physicians there said late last night that Mr. Slavin was still unconscious, was suffering from bruises and from a fracture at the base of the skull and was in an extremely serious condition.

Detectives Are Mystified.

Detectives of the West 100th Street Station told newspaper reporters last night that they were still investigating. They said they were mystified. They asserted, however, that they did not believe that Mr. McGraw had had anything to do with the hurts from which Mr. Slavin was suffering.

They said that their inquiry during the day, which included the questioning of the Giants' manager as well as Mr. Leggett and the chauffeur, and their reports from the physicians at the hospital, indicated strongly to them the possibility that Mr. Slavin had fallen on the sidewalk in front of Mr. McGraw's apartment house. His head, according to this theory, had struck the pavement violently, and this had caused the fracture of his skull.

The detectives said that so far as they could learn the parting scene between Mr. McGraw, Mr. Slavin and Mr. Leggett had been most friendly. They said the mysterious element, so far as they were concerned, was what has been described to them as a quarrel in The Lambs, earlier in the evening, between Mr. McGraw and an actor whose identity still remained a mystery so far as the public was concerned last night.

Trying to Identify Aggressor.

Detective Sergeant James Fitzpatrick of the West 100th Street Police Station said last night that Detective Sergeant Stephen Love, who had been in charge of the investigation of the affair, which was the chief topic of discussion in and near Broadway and in all sporting and theatrical circles yesterday, was still trying to identify the actor with whom he had been told Mr. McGraw had the altercation.

Detectives said that Mr. McGraw had had much the worse of the fight, which they had been told created a deal of excitement in the actors' social gathering place on Saturday night. In fact, they said that Mr. McGraw had a discolored eye yesterday.

Except for the story told to the police by the various figures in the affair, further information was extremely difficult if not impossible to obtain. McGraw was not in his apartment on West 109th Street, nor was he at other places usually visited by him after ball games and during the evening. Every effort to reach him and obtain a statement failed.

So far as could be learned he was not visible to any spectators of the game between the Giants and the Cubs at the Polo Grounds yesterday. Prominent members of the Giants were quoted as saying that the manager had been there but he had remained in the clubhouse. When asked if they had noticed his "blue" eye, they answered in the negative. Larry Doyle, second baseman, said he hadn't seen any discoloration of his manager's countenance. Other members said that they had noticed that Mr. McGraw appeared to be "used up."

The matter came to the attention of the police when St. Luke's Hospital, after receiving Mr. Slavin, telephoned to the West 100th Street Police Station, about 8 o'clock yesterday morning. Detective Love immediately went to Mr. McGraw's apartment, awakened him and asked for a statement.

According to the detective's report,

WILL LAND MANNIX ON WELSH COAST FROM THE BALTIC

LONDON, Aug. 8.—Archbishop Mannix of Australia is expected to land at Fishguard today. Great secrecy has been maintained by the authorities regarding their intentions, but it is learned that steps were taken today for a vessel to meet the Baltic off the Welsh Coast and prevent the prelate concluding his voyage at Liverpool, where the Baltic is due late Monday evening.

Dispatches from Fishguard state that preparations are being made for the arrival of a mystery passenger. The harbor master received instructions from London to keep in touch with the Admiralty and to "hold a harbor launch in readiness to proceed to sea."

Several Government officials have arrived at Fishguard, including two Scotland Yard detectives, but secrecy is observed as to the reason of their visit. It is stated that a launch will meet the ship at sea some time tomorrow morning, probably about 8 o'clock. Local opinion is that the ship to be met is the Baltic, and that Archbishop Mannix will be landed at Fishguard by its means.

Meanwhile the Irish societies in Liverpool are determined to give Dr. Mannix a great welcome, and messages have been sent inviting him to visit the city at a later dase if he is not permitted to land there from the Baltic.

Telegrams from Cork say that bonfires are blazing tonight all along the coast from Mizzenhead to Hook Head, near Waterford.

A letter written by Dr. Mannix to the Bishop of Cloyne says: "I am slowly making my way to Ireland. I find that the first available berth is on the Baltic, which sails on July 31 and calls at Queenstown. I wish, for many excellent reasons, that my arrival should be unheralded in any way."

In handing out this letter for publication the Bishop of Cloyne remarked: "It shows that the purpose of Dr. Mannix in visiting Ireland was not to act the part of an agitator or to deliver inflammatory speeches, but to visit his venerable mother at Carleville."

LIVERPOOL, Aug. 8.—The Sinn Feiners here have completed plans for running the British blockade from England to Ireland with Archbishop Mannix, if he wants to go, a Sinn Fein leader said today.

"We will get the Archbishop to Ireland soon after he lands in England, if he desires to go, despite the cordon of English destroyers now flung around our coast to prevent this. We have strong reason to believe, however, that he will show his contempt for England by refusing to get off the ship and will return to New York without setting foot on English soil."

Liverpool is ablaze with Sinn Fein flags and banners, and the city is tense with excitement. A number of minor street fights between Sinn Feiners and Englishmen were reported tonight.

FISHGUARD, Wales, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—The harbor master of Fishguard and stations up and down the coast today received instructions to "stand by to take a passenger off the Baltic."

Inspector Scott of Scotland Yard, with an assistant, is aboard a small steamer in the harbor here. His only instructions are to await further orders.

DUBLIN, Aug. 8.—The announced intention of the British Government to refuse Archbishop Mannix permission to visit Ireland was the subject of comment in many Catholic pulpits in Ireland today.

Bishop Browne, at the Queenstown Cathedral, said:

"A son and priest of this diocese is not allowed to set foot on his native soil, as though he were an outlawed criminal, because of his outspoken criticism of the British Government in its dealings with Ireland."

"He was coming home solely to salute his venerable mother and to meet his friends. Tonight he will be carried, captivelike, past the entrance of our harbor. You may rest assured he knows we are thinking of him as he is borne past and that his Irish heart is beating responsive to ours."

Wireless messages sent from Dublin to Archbishop Mannix on the steamer Baltic on Wednesday have not been answeredThis has led to expressions of belief here that the authorities have taken steps to prevent communication with the steamer.

QUEENSTOWN, Ireland, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—It is presumed here that the steamer Baltic, on board which Archbishop Mannix of Australia sailed as a passenger from New York, has

Report Hungary Will Put 140,000 Men in Fight Against Soviet Under Arrangement With France

LONDON, Aug. 8.—With the rejection by the Soviet Government of the Allies' proposals for an armistice with Poland the conference held today at Hythe between the British and French Premiers automatically resolved itself into a discussion as to ways and means by which the Alied powers would fullfill their pledges to maintain the independence of the Polish Republic, created by the Versailles Treaty.

According to various reports the French Government has already taken one highly important step by concluding secret arrangements with Hungary under which the latter country will put 140,000 men into the field at once against the Bolshevist armies.

The military and naval advisers of the British and French governments, who accompanied the Premiers, were in consultation today and there will be further meetings tomorrow.

While official communique s issued from Hythe, tend to paint the situation in a black light, it is believed by many persons here that there still exists features that leave some room for hope that even yet a great European war with Russia may be staved off.

German Peace Envoy Begs Them to Let People There Keep Their Arms.

SIMONS ANNOUNCES POLICY

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Dr. Goeppert, head of the German Peace Commission, this morning presented a note to the Peace Conference saying that the inhabitants of East Prussia were greatly alarmed over the prospect of surrendering their arms to the Allies for destruction in the face of the Bolshvist advance and begging the Allies to make an exception for these eastern districts in the matter of turning over arms.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Dr. Walter Simons, Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an interview in the Leipziger Volkszeitung, says Germany is prepared to resume diplomatic relations with Russia the moment satisfaction is given her for the assassination of General Count von Mirbach, German Ambassador to Russia, who was assassinated in Moscow in 1918.

The Foreign Minister salu he wanted to utter a warning against attaching to a Russo-German understanding any suspicion that Germany would use it to evade the provisions of the Versailles peace treaty.

JOHANNESBURG, East Prussia, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—Russian Soviet armies, once they have finished with Poland proper, may strike toward Danzig, it is feared by the people living in the Polish corridor. There is increasing apprehension among the German security police, who distrust the intentions of the Russians, and officials of the Inter-Allied Mission freely express the opinion that a situation may arise with which the Supreme Council alone can deal.

Unrest in this region is augmented by reports from German agents that the Russians are known to be considering the feasibility of the establishment of a Soviet Government, with the aid of German Communists, in East Prussia, if not eventually in all Germany.

A German soldier who has been serving with the Russians reached here today, and asserted he had heard Bolshevist leaders discussing plans for attacking Germany. Officers of the security police, discussing the possibility of such an attack, say it is hardly probable they could hold the frontier, and allied representatives have said their troops could in no event be used to aid them. It is, therefore, impossible to predict what the outcome might be, but confidence is felt that the border police have not been undermined by Bolshevist propaganda and would offer stout resistance.

Advices from Allenstein state the Polish Consulate there has ordered that no permits be issued to any person to enter Poland for any reason whatever.

FOIL RED PLOT IN WARSAW.

Tunnel from Cathedral Toward Army Headquarters Is Discovered.

WARSAW, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—A plot, believed to have been of Communist origin and designed to blow up General Army Headquarters, has been discovered in Warsaw. Many persons have been arrested and great quantities of arms and ammunition confiscated in the old Russian cathedral, which is situated just across the street from the army offices.

The arms were found in the basement of the church. Here also was discovered a tunnel, nearly complete, which was being dug under the street toward army headquarters. The finding of the tunnel and the arms came as a result of sentries at headquarters during the night hearing the thump of steel against the earth beneath their feet.

Headquarters is only 100 feet from the cathedral, which stands in the centre of the city of Warsaw. It was built by the Russians. Since the Germans left Warsaw the cathedral has been used as a garrison as well as for all military, masses and funerals.

A number of Communists had been arrested during the last few days. In their possession were found complete plans of the city, with Government buildings marked in red ink. Since the finding of the arms and the tunnel hundreds of arrests have been made.

MASS FOR SUPREME DRIVE ON WARSAW

POLISH GOVERNMENT STAYS

Berlin Reports Outer Forts of Warsaw Have Been Under Bombardment Since Friday.

PARIS, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Poland's situation is desperate. It seems clear that the Moscow Government has no intention to suspend hostilities, but is striving to the utmost to capture Warsaw.

The latest news received in Paris tonight is to the effect that the Bolsheviki are massing troops in the region of Mlawa, north of the capital, for a drive upon Warsaw in conjunction with the movement of troops from the east.

There is no doubt that the Bolsheviki have crossed the Bug River on a wide front. The Poles, however, have thrown up defenses west of the river and French military opinion, based on the fatigue of the Bolsheviki and the faulty supply department, maintains that the Poles have a chance of winning the great battle for the capital.

The cutting of the Warsaw-Danzig Railroad by the Soviet forces would not be a vital loss to Poland, according to reports received from the allied military experts in Warsaw. They point out that the railway route through Thorn, West Prussia, while not a direct line, can handle a much larger volume of supplies than the Warsaw-Danzig line. The Vistula River route is also a valuable one.

LONDON, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—The outer forts of Warsaw have been under bombardment since Friday morning, says a wireless dispatch from Berlin today. The Poles are returning the Bolshevist fire.

Government to Stay Indefinitely.

WARSAW, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Premier Witos in a statement to the Polish newspaper men today said the Government would remain in Warsaw indefinitely.

Asked regarding the foreign legations, the Premier said representatives desiring to stay with the Government did so on their own responsibility.

It is announced that Cardinal Rattiv, Papal Nuncio at Warsaw, will remain in Warsaw if the capital falls into the hands of the Bolsheviki.

The newspapers today print articles criticising Poles who are leaving the city, declaring they should not be allowed to return.

Ostrolenka, on the Narew River, northeast of Warsaw, has been captured by the Bolsheviki, who now have reached a point sixty kilometres (about 36 miles) northeast of Warsaw, and are preparing for a quick sweep onward.

The heaviest fighting since the Bolsheviki began their offensive a month ago is now developing along the Bug River, where both sides are throwing in all the forces at their command. Towns and points of vantage are changing hands daily.

Terespol has finally been retaken by the Poles. It has changed hands several times. South of Brest-Litovsk, where the Reds were driven across the Bug, the Poles have taken Mokran.

The entire police force of Warsaw—1,000 strong—armed with new English rifles, has left for the front. Their places as guardians of the peace in the capital are being taken by men too old to fight.

Among the volunteers who have gone to the front is Stanislas Patek, former Minister of Foreign Affairs. He enlisted as a private in the cavalry.

Warsaw is a beehive of activity. Supplies for the artillery, cavalry and infantry are constantly moving through the streets. The population believes that a great battle is to be fought on a line selected by the General Staff which will settle the fate of the city.

FLEET READY TO BLOCKADE

ANOTHER NOTE TO SOVIET

HYTHE, England, Aug. 9 (Associated Press).—Great Britain and France are convinced that the Bolsheviki intend to capture Warsaw and set up a Soviet Government in Poland.

The Soviet Government had definitely refused a ten days' truce, requested by Mr. Lloyd George as a result of Friday's meeting with the Russian mission headed by M. Kameneff and M. Krassin, and in British and French circles tonight it is admitted that the situation thus created has brought about a crisis only second in gravity to that which confronted the Allies in 1914.

While there has been no talk of officially declaring war on Russia, the Allies have decided to give Poland all possible military, naval and economic assistance without delay.

It was reliably reputed that the blockade of Russia would be reimposed immediately.

Announcement was made at the conference between Premier Lloyd George and Premier Millerand of France, held today to discuss the Polish problem, that the conference would continue tomorrow, when the Premiers will pass upon naval, military and economic plans for saving Poland. These plans are being drawn up tonight by Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson, chief of the British Imperial Staff.

These were the outstanding developments of the day.

Severe Blow at Peace Efforts.

The rejection by the Bolsheviki of the British proposal reached Mr. Lloyd George and Premier Millerand this morning while they were in conference at the home of Sir Phillip Sassoon at Lympne, near here. It came as a severe blow to Mr. Lloyd George's peace efforts.

The Bolshevist refusal of a truce resulted in the conference assuming a very warlike aspect, and the best and quickest means of giving Poland all possible aid to stem the Bolshevist tide were immediately discussed by the premiers. The foremost subject was the tentative decision to reimpose the naval and economic blockade on Russia and also the steps necessary to insure the free passage of munitions and supplies from Danzig to Poland.

Marshal Foch and Field Marshal Sir Henry Wilson took a prominent part in the morning discussion, and it has been learned from an official source that allied aid for Poland will centre in Marshal Foch.

While the Bolshevist refusal of a truce is said not to be final and there was mention of some counter-proposal, the premiers decided to complete all plans for Poland's assistance and then to wait a final reply from Moscow.

The memorandum for the truce was drafted at Friday's meeting between Mr. Lloyd George and MM. Krassin and Kameneff and sent by wireless to Moscow for an immediate reply. The purpose of the truce was to halt the Bolshevist onward rush on the ground they now occupy and to arrange a temporary peace within the next ten days. The Poles and the Allies were to agree not to improve the Polish military position, while the Bolsheviki were to remain in on the line they occupied on the day of the truce.

After the arrival of the French party at Lympne a cordon was thrown round the residence of Sir Philip Sassoon. The approach of the newspapermen was the signal for a "mobilization of the detective forces." The Millerand party included M. Berthelot, Director of Political Affairs at the foreign office, General de Stickur of Marshal Foch's Staff, and General de la Panouse, Chief of the French Military Mission in England.

With Mr. Lloyd George were Earl Curzon of Kedleston, the British Foreign Secretary, Admiral Lord Beatty Commander of the Grand Fleet, and Lieut.-Col. Sir Maurice Hankey, Secretary to the Committee on Imperial Defense.

A last minute decision to include Arthur Balfour in the meeting came as a surprise to British and French circles, and was the cause of much speculation. The accepted view was that Mr. Lloyd George desired to avail himself of the mature experience of a statesman such as Mr. Balfour in the present crisis.

In the event of a final break in the negotiations with the Moscow Government it is believed France will bear the burden of land aid while Great Britain will assume full responsibility for the imposition of the blockade.

The blockade can be made effective within a few hours. A squadron of light cruisers and other light craft is in the Baltic, ready at a moment's notice to begin intensive patrols, while the units in the Black Sea are more than enough to effectively blockade all ports.

Another Note Sent to Moscow.

The Premiers received two notes from Moscow today in answer to Mr. Lloyd George's request for a truce. Tonight they sent another note to the Soviet and also advised Poland to seek a truce direct from the Bolsheviki, who indicated in their refusal of the truce that if the request came direct from the Poles it might have a better chance of being granted. One of the notes received from the Bolsheviki today said a meeting of the Poles and Russians had been called for Minsk next Wednesday and that the Bolsheviki preferred to make their own arrangements with the Poles.

Mr. Lloyd George has deferred his promised statement in the House of Commons tomorrow until Tuesday. M. Millerand and his party will not return to France until Monday afternoon.

The French are urging the establishment of a defensive line in Poland, either before Warsaw or immediately behind the capital if it is too late now for the former. M. Millerand also proposed that the French and British troops in the plebiscite areas be used for this line, chiefly for moral support, and that Rumania and Czechoslovakia also be asked to send troops.

At the close of the conference, which lasted until after 8 o'clock this evening, M. Millerand presented for the approval of the British delegates a declaration he had drafted. The substance of this constituted a warning to Germany that if an attempt is made in any way to co-operate with the Bolsheviki an army of the Allies will occupy the Ruhr region and other points in German territory. Mr. Lloyd George has not yet indicated his approval of the declaration, but French circles believe that he will agree to it and that the warning will be conveyed to Germany either directly or by an allied declaration.

Further details of the meeting in London Friday between the Bolshevist representatives and Mr. Lloyd George were learned tonight by the Associated Press. MM. Krassin and Kameneff apparently thought they would be able to induce the Moscow Government to accept the terms of a truce, and the refusal of the Soviet Government is taken in conference circles here as meaning that Kameneff and Krassin have but minor influence with Premier Lenin and War Minister Trotzky.

At the conference Mr. Lloyd Gorege offered every guarantee that the truce would not be used as a means for reinforcing the military position of the Poles. The British Premier went so far as to agree to have Bolshevist officers behind the Polish lines to see that the terms of the truce were rigidly enforced. The Premier answered all the Russian objections to the plan, and Kameneff sent the plan to Moscow by wireless with a recommendation that it be adopted.

British Note Angers Bolsheviki.

LONDON, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—"Negotiations with the British continue, but the ultimatum of Aug. 4 and the threatened renewal of the blockade by the British fleet are creating an unfavorable atmosphere and are impediments to an agreement," says a wireless communication from Moscow quoting a statement made by Foreign Minister Tchitcherin.

Russia is ready to start withdrawal of her forces to the line stipulated in 1918 by the Supreme Council, provided Poland agrees to the Armistice terms, a statement issued by the Russian delegation in London today asserts.

The memorandum presented to the Russian Emissaries by Premier Lloyd George last Friday proposed a truce to run from midnight of Aug. 9-10 on these conditions:

First—The Poles to refrain from re-equipping their armies and moving troops and munitions and the Soviet to refrain from strengthening their front.

Second—The Allies to refrain from sending troops or munitions to Poland.

Third—Soviet representatives to be stationed at Danzig or any other point to see that the terms were carried out, on the condition that they refrain from propaganda.

Fourth—The Russian and Polish delegates to meet to define lines between the armies and to arrange armistice conditions.

Before receipt in Moscow of the note dispatched as a result of Friday's conference between Premier Lloyd George and Leo Kameneff of the Russian delegation, today's announcement says, the Soviet Government instructed its delegation to communicate to the British Government the following statement:

"Resultant on acceptance by Poland of the armistice terms, which will deal principally with reduction of her armed strength, the Soviet Republic will be prepared to begin withdrawal of her troops to the line drawn by the Supreme Council in 1918 and indicated again by Earl Curzon (British Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs), in his note of July 20 to M. Tchitcherin (Bolshevist Foreign Minister), and considerably to reduce the number of Soviet troops on this line if the Allies, particularly France, undertake not to advance and not to support any advance against Soviet Russia on any front and to withdraw General Wrangel's army from the Crimea."

This statement was immediately transmitted to Premier Lloyd George, and later a new communication was received from Moscow.

"A half hour before the British Government's note of Saturday was delivered to the Soviet Government," the new communication declares, "the latter received at last from Warsaw the Polish Government's answer that it was ready to accept proposals to send its delegates to Minsk for the conclusion of an armistice and the adoption of peace preliminaries. This document is a continuation of the negotiations inaugurated July 31 at Baranovitchi, where the Russian delegates declared their readiness to begin negotiations for an armistice and peace preliminaries as soon as the Polish Government would inform the Russian delegates by wireless that full power to that effect had been sent their delegates."

The communication then points out that the Polish delegation interrupted the negotiations and returned to Warsaw, and that thus 106 hours elapsed. The delay in concluding an armistice, it adds, was not in the least an outcome of Russia's desires.

Within a few hours of the receipt of Poland's message, the present communication explains, the Russian Government replied, noting Poland's consent to negotiate an armistice and peace preliminaries, and announced that Russian delegates would arrive at Minsk Aug. 11. The Russian Government proposes to the Polish delegates to cross the line at the Russian front on the road between Siedlce and Brest-Litovsk at 8 P. M. Aug. 9.

While informing the British Government of these arrangements, the Russian Government expresses belief that in this way the object at which the British Government aims, namely, cessation of hostilities and resumption of peaceful relations between Russia and Poland, and the full independence of Poland, will be attained in the speediest and simplest way by direct negotiation.

In conclusion the communication says: "The Russian Government, therefore, thinks the British Government will doubtless acknowledge that the latter's proposal, so far as it really aims at the above mentioned object, is being fully covered by the impending Minsk conference.

Warsaw Sends Message by Two Routes.

WARSAW, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Poland's efforts to send a wireless note to Moscow concerning the Minsk Conference have resulted in a tangle of uncertainties. The latest foreign office announcement says the Moscow wireless operator answered Warsaw's call and Warsaw then sent the note, but Moscow did not acknowledge receiving it.

The Poles then duplicated the note by way of Norway, with a request that Norway use every effort to relay it to Moscow. The Norwegians agreed to do this, but since then nothing has been heard concerning the matter.

Prior to the sending of the note to Warsaw the Government had made four attempts to get it through. The Bolshevist wireless operator had refused to receive it, saying he was too busy.

Just before its fourth attempt the Government received a wireless dispatch from Moscow expressing surprise that the Polish peace delegation which returned from the unsuccessful meeting last week at Baranovitchi had not yet gone to Minsk. It added that the Soviet Government was ready to negotiate peace and that delay rested upon the Polish Government.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—It is understood in Paris that America is in accord with the Governments of England and France on the Russian blockade program and that she will not embarrass them by allowing any ships flying the American flag to come in contact with blockading ships, thus raising the question of the freedom of the seas.

It will be remembered that America did not take any part in the old Russian blockade, but it virtually recognized it by not clearing any ships for Russia. America has recently lifted the embargo against Russian trade, and it evidently is the resumption of this restriction which the Allies expect from the United States in the event that they renew the blockade.

Comment on Polish Situation Follows Usual Political Lines.

LONDON, Monday, Aug. 9.—Editorial comment on the Polish situation follows the usual political lines, although one paper makes a plea for cessation at this serious moment of "mischievous political polemics."

The Daily Mail points out that "of all the countries in the world Poland and Russia are the least fit to wage war and have most need of peace."

The Daily Express strikes the same note, saying: "The surest foundation of hope for the victory of sanity in this crazy situation is that only imperialist militarism could persuade or compel Russia to insist on war when peace and recognition are within her grasp."

The Daily Chronicle says:

"The tension is in no way relieved. The Prime Minister has before him a task of singular complexity. We know well his will for peace. We know also that one at least of our allies, with whom it is our determined policy to cooperate, holds very strong views about our responsibility to Poland. But it is certain that under his firm and tactful handling no decision will be neglected calculated to bring the Soviet Government to a reasonable view."

The Daily News finds fault with the pessimistic communiqués issued from Hythe and claims that "Russia has not refused the British proposals. According to those proposals, the Russian advance would have to end at midnight tonight. According to the Soviet plan, which was in train before news of the British proposal had been received, the conference with the Poles was to be held on Wednesday, and the advance could be stopped the same night, a difference of forty-eight hours. Is it for that that decisions are to be taken that may plunge half Europe and Asia in war before the tragedy wanes to its close?"

The paper then refers to the "solidarity of the entente between Brtiain and France" being in danger. "No one," it says, "can doubt that if the decision rested with this country there could be peace with Russia in a fortnight. Count Sforza, in an eminently sane and statesmanlike utterance, has outlined a Russian policy on which every member of the Entente ought to be able to artkie hands. We are not going to split with Italy, whose Russian policy we most cordially approve, to be dragged into a European war at the heels of France, whose estrangements we can deplore and condemn. Profoundly conscious though we are of the importance of the friendship between this country and France, that has to be said and said without any possibility of misunderstanding."

The Morning Post, which has consistently advocated open war with Bolshevist Russia, says:

"The reply of Moscow strips the situation of the last shred of disguise. This calculated defiance proves that the true objective of the Bolshevist offensive is only temporarily Warsaw and ultimately London and Paris. It is not a question of militarism or imperialism which the British people have to decide, but a question of self-preservation."

"The statesmen at Lympne (now, it may be noted, joined by Balfour) have had before them the Soviet proposals in their entirety. They have been able to judge the real intention of these Soviet proposals and whether they do in fact offer any security for the liberty of Poland which Great Britain and her allies are pledged to maintain. They have come to the grave conclusion that there is no ray of light in the outlook, that the forces of persuasion are to all appearances exhausted, and that stronger pressure must be applied in the hope that the Soviet Government will even yet realize that it stands to lose more than it can possibly gain by a policy of militarism even worse than Prussian, for it aims at the conquest not merely of a State, but of the bodies and souls of its citizens.

"The Russians may have all the Soviets they like at home. What we object to is the forcible sovietization of other peoples. Here is the real crux of the Polish question.

"The commissaries who accompany the Red armies have been at their work in Lithuania. There the Peace Treaty with that State was on the surface moderate and fair, but no sooner did they get into Vilna than they established a Soviet Government in that city and left a Red garrison to dragoon the inhabitants into submission to its orders. What guarantee have we that the treaty with Poland will not be made a cover for similar usurpations?"

MASSES OF CAVALRY TOO MUCH FOR POLES

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

GRAJEVO, Poland, Aug. 8.—By dipping back into Germany frequently in the last three days I have been able to be first with the Polish, then with the Russians, then with the Polish army—or, rather, what is left of them. Again I never was in danger of my life, because, strange to say, the Bolsheviki as well as the others bowed in respect to the official-looking documents with rich red and green seals with which I was well armed.

Today I saw Polish reinforcements going in the direction of Ostrolenka, where their comrades feebly were holding the line, trying frantically to dig trenches under the direction of French officers. But there is a woeful shortage of trench digging instruments and the spades familiar on the West front are totally lacking.

What will be the outcome of new resistance by the Polish army I have no doubt. Russian cavalry masses, riding small horses and shouting war cries such as I have heard only in circuses, surely will crush the line and continue their thirty-mile gallop to the Danzig Railroad, which the Russians tell me is their goal.

Young Polish officers, with tears in their eyes, told me it was impossible to fight Budenny's cavalry, with its astounding habit of infiltration, suddenly appearing behind a Polish battery or company. That has been the characteristic feature of the whole campaign. The Poles, without cavalry, clog the roads, of which there are few here. The Polish columns lose contact with each other. Russian horsemen smuggle themselves across a wheat field, appearing in the rear.

This is what happened when the Poles tried to resist on the Novidor-Kusnitza line. Budenny's men ride forty-five to fifty miles daily, frequently returning to the point of departure with tales of high adventure, much booty and more prisoners.

I was with a battery in the Polish retreat from the Ossowetz-Bialystok line. On the edge of the Narew marshes the battery began firing at a distance of 3,800 yards. Two shots, and the Bolshevist cavalry patrol disappeared into the woods.

"We are short of ammunition," the Lieutenant told me. "I have got 200 shells for four guns. Two guns are French and two are Austrian 88's, so it is hard to keep the ammunition separate. Then I have a batch of grenades which are useless against cavalry."

The campaign is not without humor. One of the queerest things in my life was seeing a Russian officer astride the frontier wall near Grajevo. He sprang from his horse and looked into Germany. German guards arrived.

"How about trading rubles for German ham?" said the officer.

"Take that leg back into Poland, then we'll trade with you," said the German guards.

The Russian swung his leg back.

"You certainly are not a socialistic bunch here," the Russian laughed, but, once the breach of neutrality was mended, they messed together over the wall.

It is also laughable to see the Moujiks and Cossacks riding in coaches and private wagons with the Poles driving. One of the first things the Bolsheviki requisition is a vehicle, promising the frightened drivers they will release them when the next big town is captured. I am told the Vilna coachmen were released when Gravejo was taken.

"We will let you all go when we get Warsaw," they are telling Polish coachmen.

WARSAW, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—A letter from the Archbishop, read in all churches this morning, asked the congregations to join in a solemn procession to invoke a blessing on the army defending the country.

The call was responded to by nearly 100,000 men, women and children, who, headed by bishops and priests bearing church banners and relics, marched through the principal streets of the capital this evening singing hymns.

Onlookers bared their heads as the cortege passed. Sometimes a detachment of soldiers on their way to the front marched briskly past the religious procession.

fortified towns of Novo Georgievsk, Modlin, Segev, Sielce and Ivangorod.

The task of repairing Warsaw's largest and finest bridge, which was destroyed by the Russians in 1915, has ceased. There are two other bridges over the Vistula. One of these is used exclusively by the railroads. The other, which takes care of vehicular traffic, was crowded today with peasants coming in from the east. They were on foot, dragging or pushing carts or leading horses pulling wagons of every description, which were piled high with household goods of the refugees. Praga, a suburb on the east bank of the Vistula, was filled with refugees, and lines of vehicles reaching for miles along the Praga highway were to be seen awaiting their turn to join the stream of traffic across the single bridge leading into the centre of Warsaw's oldest district.

The refugees are not permitted to remain in Warsaw and are passing on westward into the country.

Bolshevist aviators flying over the Polish lines have scattered broadcast propaganda pamphlets signed by Felix Dzierzy, President of the Revolutionary Committee in Poland, saying. "Make your officers prisoners and let us jointly march on Warsaw."

The Poles are appealed to in the pamphlet to wipe out the aristocracy and make Poland a great Communist country. The pamphlets declare that the Bolsheviki are marching on Warsaw with the best of motives—to save the country from the landowners' rule.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Advices from Marienwerder today state the Polish upper army command has ordered a retreat behind the Vistula River and that the fighting, which is now officially reported between the Narew and Bug Rivers, consists merely of rearguard actions. The Polish volunteer army, it is added, is a complete failure, the Russians meeting with no opposition in crossing the Bug at Brest-Litovsk along a wide front, and occupying the highway to Bialla (about twenty-five miles west of Brest-Litovsk).

The railway from Vlodawa to Cholm (south of Brest-Litovsk) is reported to be no longer at the Polish disposal.

A special message to the Vossische Zeitung from Prosken, East Prussia, says the Bolsheviki have assessed the City of Bialystok 500,000,000 Polish marks and are seizing the principal manufacturers and shutting down their plants as security.

German Version of Poland's Plight.

COLOGNE, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—The situation in Poland has developed into a military catastrophe and there is a complete internal collapse, says a dispatch to the Cologne Gazette from Warsaw.

The French military authorities, the dispatch continues, are reported to have hastily approached the German Consulate for passports for all members of the French mission. The German clerical forces were unable to issue the passports speedily enough, so that three French Majors joined the staff to expedite the work.

Poland's one military hope—Haller's volunteer army—is proving a disappointment, notwithstanding the fact that it made heroic efforts to them onrush on the northern front, during the course of which it suffered heavy losses.

It is added by the correspondent that there is serious friction between the French General Weygand's staff and the Polish military leaders, which has resulted in hopeless confusion in the carrying out of orders in the fighting zone.

What remains of the shattered volunteer army which was repulsed along the Bug River are returning without arms or equipment in squads of from twenty to forty.

Preparations have been made to blow up both of the principal Vistula bridges. All river traffic has been prohibited under threat of death. The food shops of Warsaw have been stormed. The Ghetto district is being given special protection owing to the anti-Semitic sentiment prevalent in the city.

The correspondent says a co-ordinate Polish Government has ceased to exist. The Finance Ministry was the first to leave. President Pilsudski is reported to have said that he preferred death on the battlefield to seeing Poland's downfall.

Incoming trains are reported to be jammed with armed deserters. Three hundred deserting officers were placed on trial Wednesday. Of these twenty-three were executed. A pamphlet signed "A Soviet Soldier," circulated in Warsaw, calls on the proletariat to join "our Russian brethren."

The prevailing internal confusion, according to the correspondent, is indicative of the proclamation of a Soviet republic in the next few days. Bolshevist propagandists have been busy in the suburbs for the last week unmolested.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Indications that the Polish Government still was in Warsaw early today were contained in advices received tonight by the Polish Legation here. The military situation was described as improved.

Volunteers have reached the army under General Haller, defending Warsaw from the north, the advices to the legation stated, and the position of the Poles on that front has been strengthened.

The Fourth Army, defending Brest-Litovsk, also has been strengthened, the advices add.

The Polish Foreign Office in another communication to the legation denied published reports that eighty Jewish Municipal Councilors had been arrested and condemned to death. Several Jewish municipal officials were arrested, the Foreign Office said, but were liberated.

WARSAW PACKS UP, REFUGEES POUR IN

OPTIMISM EASILY AROUSED

An Officer Even Promises That They Will Be Back in Minsk, Fighting, in a Month.

WARSAW, Aug. 7.—Packing is the order of the day, though no diplomatic representative has yet left the city. Legation visitors are shown into rooms furnished chiefly by boxes and sacks, while the main question asked by every one is, "Where are you going?" Private people mostly know what their destinations are, but the Polish Government maintains silence as to its intentions, wishing, no doubt, to protect its flight until the last moment. The question, however, is referred to always in the press, and Cracow, Lodz and Posen are all mentioned as possibilities, with Kalisch as a reserve favorite. The legations of the various countries will of course follow the Government.

Things are becoming tighter and tighter here every day. The city is now under martial law. The sale of intoxicating liquors has been forbidden for some time, and the Polish mark now stands at 850 to the pound after a very rapid fall. Refugees, Jew and Gentile, are pouring into the city in ever increasing numbers, while most of them are carrying heavier packs than those who have arrived hitherto, which shows that the distance covered is shorter owing to the rapid Bolshevist advance. Many country folk are coming in with large hay carts, on which are heaped what apparently are the whole household goods.

The flight from Warsaw also continues, although with the Consulates closing down it will soon be impossible to obtain the necessary visé. At certain hours of the day it is impossible to obtain a cab in the city, and then one knows that a train is due to start from some station and that all the cabs are plying thither.

The hotels are now becoming very accommodating, with 30 or 30 departures a day, while sundry stores which hitherto had been carefully kept in reserve are now being thrown into consumption here too late. Patriotic proclamations are plastered up in the city and at police stations and other offices where volunteer workers are enrolled. Large crowds may be seen in attendance. The "Save Warsaw" call is proving very popular, and public morale is strengthened by reports appearing here that munitions and troops are on the way from allied countries.

But the most striking feature here is the continued appearance of unreality. There is no panic, no real excitement, and it almost looks as though their long years of subjection had made the Poles fatalistic or indifferent to the varying tides of war.

Politically and militarily, everything is at sixes and sevens in Warsaw at present. The Polish note giving conditional consent to the holding of a peace conference at Minsk as proposed by the Soviets has now been three times refused by the Moscow wireless, the excuses for refusal ranging from reputed thunderstorms to inability to take reply owing to pressure of business. A deadlock in the negotiations would therefore appear to have taken place. But few people here are so guileless as to imagine that nothing has been done in the matter since the Soviets' Minsk proposal was first received.

A wireless message received tonight from Moscow expressed surprise that no reply had yet been made by the Polish Government and reiterated the Soviets' desire to negotiate, but many now hold the view that all this is merely diplomatic camouflage.

Militarily there is a strong current of optimism running today. The map does not justify this optimism, but the view generally held by both the Polish and allied military authorities here is that while no great Polish successes are to be chronicled, yet the line is steadily hardening. But it must be remembered that the term line is largely inapplicable in this war. There are so many gaps that the line consists really of so many detached groups, fighting single-handed, and most people returning from the front can report only upon particular groups seen by them.

None the less, taken as a whole, there has been far less movement on the front than usual. This is attributed to the more desperate resistance offered by the Poles and to the tiredness of the Red armies. The advance is said to have been too rapid and to have exhausted the Bolshevist troops, while many of them are disappointed at the delay in obtaining a decisive result and wish to return home for the harvest. The Poles certainly base their hopes upon this tiredness and upon a stronger resistance being offered by their own troops, and a Polish officer gayly said to me today that within a month they would be in Minsk, but this time in fighting formation.

Coblenz So Estimates Forces Engaged—Only Allies Can Save Poland, Says Allen.

COBLENZ, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Poland's military situation is now critical, in the view of Major Gen. Henry T. Allen, Commander in Chief of the American Army of Occupation, who is kept closely informed, through a representative in Warsaw and the American Attaché there, of Polish developments.

Estimates made here of the combatant forces on the Russo-Polish front indicate they are relatively small, the Bolsheviki being said to number 160,000 and the Poles 100,000.

Resources and reinforcements within Poland for much further resistance do not appear to General Allen to be available, and he believes that a continuation of the Polish struggle rests with the Allies.

The American General has received no indication that the United States is taking active steps to co-operate with the Allies, nor has he received any special instructions from Washington covering his attitude and policy.

General Allen has expressed the conviction, from his knowledge of the country, that Germany is determined to stand on her neutrality and oppose the Allies' transit through German territory. He also feels certain that Germany will not allow the Bolsheviki beyond her eastern border.

The American military relief unit at Warsaw, with which General Allen's command is in direct communication, as well as the American Embassy, thus far have not indicated immediate cause for withdrawal from the Polish capital.

Arrangements have been made to take out the unit by way of Danzig at any time. If the Danzig corridor is cut, the Americans will go toward Cracow and will be able to come through Germany under the latter's neutral status.

HUNGARY READY TO FIGHT.

Premier Teleky Says Support of France Will Insure Action.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 6.—"Preparations have been made outside and inside the country to meet the eventuality of a Bolshevist invasion of Hungary," declared Count Paul Teleky, Premier and Minister of Foreign Affairs, in an address in the National Assembly today.

"Hungary is willing to fight for civilization, supported by France," he added.

KUROPATKIN LEADS THE REDS IN PERSIA

General Kuropatkin, who was a figure in the Russo-Japanese War, is in command of the Red forces controlling the Caspian Sea and advancing against Teheran in a campaign against Persia, according to Lieut. Col. James Ulio, U. S. A., whose statement was made public yesterday by the Near East Relief. Lieut. Col. Ulio, who returned recently from Transcaucasia, when he and other officers on mission there were ordered to leave Armenia to avoid contact with the Bolsheviki, said:

"The so-called Bolshevist revolution in Azerbaijan was really engineered not by the Soviet Government, but by Enver Pasha and Nouri Pasha. Of course it comes to the same thing because Enver Pasha has been an officer in the Soviet army for a year and is working hand in glove with Trotzky. But the point is that the movement was rather Mohammedan than Communist, and there is a good deal of difference.

"It is by the Caspian, not through Armenia, that Persia is now being invaded by General Kuropatkin's troops. The Armenians are very hostile to the whole Communist idea, and they have called all their men from 18 to 45 to the colors to fight any passage of Soviet troops through Armenia to hook up with the Turkish Nationalists. That is why General Kuropatkin is making his drive through Persia, where disaffection has been fostered against the British and no great resistence is expected from the Persians. When the Persian Government sent a deputation to Kuropatkin and said that Persia was neutral and requested him to withdraw the Russian troops from Persian territory, he replied that 'Russia would quit Persia when the British did, and not before.'"

REDS LOOK ON WAR AS A LARK, SAYS COOPER

American Released at Minsk Saw Little Discipline in the Red Army.

WARSAW, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—Sergeant William Cook of Fay, Okla., a member of the American Typhus Expedition, who was captured three weeks ago by the Russian Bolsheviki when they entered Minsk, has arrived here, having been released by Soviet authorities. Following his release, he went to Vilna and thence to Riga, where he joined a Red Cross courier coming to Warsaw.

"Soldiers in the Bolshevist army," he said today, "are eager to reach Warsaw, as they believe the war will end if the Polish capital is taken. There is not much talk, however, about entering Warsaw, and some of the Bolsheviki apparently do not care whether the war ends. Many of them are young fellows who look upon war as a great lark."

The Soviet army has plenty of soldiers rifles, machine guns and ammunition, Cook says, but he did not see any artillery excepting six cannon captured from the Poles. The Bolsheviki, however, had no shells for these guns. He saw many American automobiles and motor cycles being used by the Soviet soldiers, and remarked that the Bolsheviki were fairly well fed, having lived off the country they have taken from the Poles. Little discipline prevails in the Bolshevist army, he declares, and, although there is no saluting, officers are respected by the men.

While on the march, the Bolsheviki reminded Cook of a crowd of American farmer boys going to a picnic, as they made no effort to preserve formations, and straggled along the road in little groups. Some would be on one side of the highway and some on the other, while others would be seen scattered through the fields. Whenever they desired, groups would sit down to rest. One day Cook counted eleven airplanes flying toward the front, and was told by Soviet soldiers that the machines were being assembled for the drive against Warsaw.

Cook, who fought in the American ranks at Cantigny during the early Summer campaign of 1918 and participated in the Marne-Aisne offensive and also in the battle of the Argonne, was captured when he remained with the anti-typhus train at Minsk in the hope of being able to bring it out of the city before the Bolsheviki arrived. Lieutenant Arthur Fox of Philadelphia was in command of the train, and it was found it could not be moved out of Minsk because of the congestion on the railroad caused by the retirement of the Poles. Cook was taken for a Polish soldier by the Bolsheviki, who stripped him of everything except his underwear and then paraded him through the streets of Minsk. When it became known he was an American, soldiers of the Soviet army came for miles to see him, as he was regarded by them as a freak.

A Bolshevist officer at first ignored Cook's plea that he was a noncombatant relief worker, but he was later identified as an American by the Minsk representative of the American Joint Distribution Committee. Two weeks after his capture Cook was taken before the Commissar, who related the good points of the Soviet form of government before releasing him. Cook remained in Minsk for a week before he could secure papers which would give him authority to travel. During that time the Bolsheviki began closing stores in Minsk, taking them over for the Government. While in that city Cook lived on black bread and tea.

Cook served twenty years in the United States Army, enlisting from Unionville, Mo. His father now resides at Fay, Okla.

While in Minsk Cook met Louis Jennings, an American lumber dealer, who went to Minsk six years ago. Jennings, who is still an American citizen, did not leave when the Bolsheviki threatened the city because Mrs. Jennings was visiting in a nearby town and had not returned home.

"I am mighty glad to get back to work after three weeks of nothing but thrills," said Cook today when he took charge of a squad guarding American property being taken away from Warsaw.

SAYS OUR ALOOFNESS IS CAUSE OF DEBACLE

Special to The New York Times.

BAR HARBOR, Me., Aug. 8.—Henry Morgenthau addressed a great crowd of townspeople and Summer guests at the Swarthmore Chautauqua, Bar Harbor, this evening. He said a European crisis again threatened the world and civilization. Poland, a buffer State, has collapsed. One year ago Pilsudski told Mr. Morgenthau that a palmist had told him he would be a great dictator.

The Allies' disagreement because of American aloofness was responsible for the débâcle, Mr. Morgenthau then said. The desperate crisis was also a great opportunity. The German people will be now won either by Bolsheviki or Allies. We must draw a line against Bolshevism and make the Germans feel safe on this side of the line, he added.

Every hour, the speaker said, made the danger more desperate. American isolation might yet destroy the hope of civilization. France could not deal with the situation successfully. Great Britain stands alone in an exposed position and cannot assume the entire responsibility for the world reorganization of peace.

POLES TO APPEAL TO WILSON

Plans Made for Nationwide Move to Arouse American Sentiment.

With Poland facing the greatest crisis in her history, in the opinion of Polish-American conferees who met yesterday at the Hotel McAlpin, the moral support of the United States is virtually necessary and this week Poles in this country will direct an appeal to President Wilson and members of Congress for an expression indicating that the United States is behind the Polish Government in its fight against the Bolsheviki.

The conference of representative men of Polish birth in New York and neighboring States, which began Saturday, was continual yesterday afternoon. Plans were completed for organizing the 4,000,000 Poles here.

The mobilizing of sentiment of the Poles here will be carried out under the direction of a body to be known as the "American Committee for Defense in Poland." Headquarters will be maintained here and in Chicago. The former, it is expected, will organize, through Polish societies and the clergy, the 2,000,000 Poles in Eastern States.

In all cities where there is any considerable Polish population mass meetings will be held next Sunday. Delegates will be appointed to go to Washington to take part in the appeal to the President. These meetings will forward resolutions to Governors, legislators and other officials, asking their aid in arousing interest in Poland's plight.

Governor Smith, Mayor Hylan and all the New York Congressmen will be invited to the mass meeting to be held in Carnegie Hall next Sunday.

Bishop Paul Rhode of Green Bay, Wis., the leading Polish clergyman in this country, yesterday directed a communication to every Polish Roman Catholic priest in this country.

COLOGNE MILLS CURTAIL.

70,000 Idle Textile Workers Now Demand Forced Operation.

BERLIN, Aug. 8.—Textile plants in the Cologne district are partially shutting down or reducing hours of operation. In Elberfeld forty-five plants have ceased operations and unemployed textile workers are estimated to number 70,000.

Those forced out of work demand forced operation of the plants by the State or municipality.

AMERICANS AT ADANA SAFE.

Near East Relief Learns That City Is Not in Danger.

The seventeen American men and women workers of the Near East Relief, who have been besieged in Adana in Asia Minor are unharmed, according to cable dispatches received at the Near East Relief Headquarters from Constantinople. In a statement issued yesterday, the organization said:

"There is no immediate danger except from disease, Colonel J. P. Coombs, director of the Near East Relief for Turkey, reports. According to this dispatch, though the French forces that have been holding off the Turkish Nationalists for the last two months have managed to cut their way through the besiegers and reach Mersina, the Turks still hold the hills surrounding the Armenian city, and a state of siege continues. Any capture of the city by Nationalist irregulars operating in the vicinity is scouted. Communications with the outside world are still possible only by airplane, Colonel Coombs states, but the Near East Relief is feeding 5,000 refugees within the city, daily, stocks of food supplies having been replenished by raids conducted by the French garrison on the surrounding country to the south.

"The Armenian garrison of Adana is armed and ready to defend the place to the last, reports say. Famine within the city, which was feared a short time ago, appears to have been staved off for a time at least."

MURDRESS'S LIFE ASTOUNDS PARIS

NOBLES ATTEND HER SALONS

One Newspaper Intimates That Scandal Rather Than Literature Was Discussed There.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Paris bookdealers report that they are being swamped with demands for the works of Mme. Bessarabo, the novelist and playwright, who killed her husband, put his body in a trunk and shipped it to Nancy.

Some of her books are of an amorous nature, and in cheap editions have already enjoyed considerable popularity. Mme. Bessarabo, whose pen name is Hera Mirtel, has also been an ardent suffragist.

While the police are trying to discover the truth about the death of her first husband, M. Jacques, Paris reporters are digging up the innermost details of Mme. Bessarabo's life, and the newspapers carry many columns each day about her and her career. It is a rich field. Not only a prolific writer, she was a spiritist and a believer in the "black mass"; a Stock Exchange gambler, a plotter for the restoration of the royalist régime in France, and advisor of other women in matrimonial tangles and heart affairs.

One might expect the lighter, popular newspapers to display this story with zest, but when the aged, staid and dignified Gaulois devotes its leading article to the case one may accept it for a fact that all sorts of people are interested in the woman who practised what she preached, namely, that for the sin of infidelity on the part of a husband there was but one expiation, death.

But what adds zest to the newspaper articles is that a great many prominent people, including a good number with noble names, attended Madame Bessarabo's Friday salons. Count X, Countess Y, and Marquis Z are quoted at great length by the journals, who say they stand ready to supply the real names if need be.

Has Shocked "Bluebeard."

This morbid but interesting drama comes as a great relief to the French public, which has not had a "good" murder story since Landru's fame was at its zenith. True, they are still digging the bones of women out of his garden, but his is becoming an old story. One of the newspapers interviews Landru on the Bessarabo tragedy and quotes the "Bluebeard" as saying: "My God, I was lucky not to have picked that woman as a fiancé." It will be remembered that Landru is the man whose eleven fiancés disappeared. The prosecution has been trying to prove for a year that he killed them and buried them in his backyard, but Landru refuses to discuss the affair.

The Gaulois editor remarks that "having read the books of Mme. Besserabo, he finds them trash, but that if she is acquitted, a woman who can pack trunks as she can should not lack for employment. Maybe the Bolsheviki would hire her."

But it is left to the Petit Parisien to discover that in "Leur Proie," which is the autobiography of Hera Mirtel, she paints herself as a woman who, starting on her wedding journey, discovered that she did not know how to pack a trunk. Incidentally, interesting light is thrown upon the mentality of the woman by the fact that in this book she cites from Stendhal Topfer, Victor Hugo, Mme. Ackermann, Molière, Pascal, Taine, Mirabeau, Mme. Colette, Dante, D'Annunzio, Voltaire and many other authors of note.

The Echo de Paris reviews her book "Feminism in Antiquity" and discovers that Mme. Besserabo was convinced of the inferiority of man and advocated that women throw off their yoke.

The authoress has started her defense with an allegation that she had a fight with her husband and shot him in a scuffle. However, it has been established that M. Besserabo was shot through the head as he slept in bed. It is reported now that the woman's lawyer will contend that she was under a spiritist spell when she rid herself of her second lawful mate.

The Matin is out to prove that she killed her first husband, and it has gone to great pains to investigate his death. It was supposed Jacques was a suicide, but The Matin thinks that is not true at all and that he died the same kind of death as M. Besserabo. A bullet ended his life.

Scandal at Salons.

The Petit Journal, on the other hand, turns its reporters loose on the developments of Mme. Besserabo's literary Fridays. It says: "There were in attendance well-known men of letters, a Marquis more or less authentic, and blue stockings of mental equilibrium often disturbed, as well as priests and priestesses of the Broda quarter." The Petit Journal declares that literature was never discussed at these literary Fridays—many things were discussed, but not literature. It says that husbands and lovers and wives and mistresses were often talked about.

The Journal today publishes a note Mme. Besserabo sent from her cell. It reads: "I am not a woman who kills. All my past protests with vigor against such an accusation. I am Hera Mirtel, and all my work shows in luminous proof that as a creatress I could not destroy."

The Journal adds that it does not believe her.

The Eclair discovers that from time to time Mme. Besserabo organized very private parties, at which was said a "black mass" by an unfrocked priest, after the manner of the celebrated monk Rasputin.

All of the humorous weeklies take a shot at the case in varying veins, and in the meanwhile the book publishers are cleaning off old plates to print new editions of Mme. Besserabo's books.

SARRE VALLEY STRIKE CHARGED TO BERLIN

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Agents of the French Government report the discovery of proof that the general strike in the Sarre Basin, which has tied up coal deliveries to France, was provoked by the German Government. Agitation leading to the strike was conducted, they say, by the Heimatdienst, the German Government propaganda agency, in the Sarre district, which, it is alleged, has received 5,000,000 marks from Berlin for the purpose of hampering the League of Nations administration in the district by stirring up German nationalist feeling.

At Strasbourg yesterday was arrested Herr Olmert, a former Deputy, and the French say he carried evidence which establishes direct connection between the Sarre strike and the German Government.

MAN SHOT IN PARK HOLDUP.

Bandits Commandeer Taxi and Flee When Cries Bring Police.

An attempted holdup of four persons at Sixty-eighth Street and the centre drive in Central Park last night was frustrated by one of the members of the party, who was shot in the arm as he fought the holdup men. The wounded man told the police of the Arsenal police station that he was Frederick Actala, a designer, of 114 West Sixty-fourth Street.

With Actala were two women and another man, who were not injured. Their cries brought park policemen on the run. The two holdup men jumped into a passing taxicab, pointed revolvers at the chauffeur and told him to speed away. He drove them to Forty-seventh Street and Eighth Avenue, and later reported to the police of the West Forty-seventh Street Station.

Rudolph Needrit, an interior decorator, living at 510 West 168th Street, was held without bail in the Washington Heights Court yesterday by Magistrate Sweetser for a hearing on Thursday morning on a charge of felonious assault. It is alleged that Needrit shot his sister-in-law, Mrs. Mary Needrit, 32 years old, of 408 Audubon Avenue, three times on Saturday.

Detective William Kelly of the West 177th Street station told the Magistrate that Mrs. Needrit, who was taken to the St. Laurence Hospital, was in a serious condition.

HITS ANTI-ITALIAN RIOTS.

ROME, Aug. 7.—Commenting on the reports of anti-Italian riots in West Frankfort, Illinois, La Epoca designates the outbreak as a "horrible tragedy."

The warships will proceed up the harbor and anchor off Seventy-second Street, North River, about 1 o'clock.

Causes Disturbance in Derry.

BELFAST, Aug. 8.—The flying of Sinn Fein flags in connection with a Mannix demonstration in Londonderry today was nearly attended by bloodshed.

Shots were fired between rival factions, but troops with an armored car came upon the scene and dispersed the disturbers of the peace.

Nine policemen were ambuscaded at Kildorrey, County Cork, today. Five of them were wounded. The arms of the policemen were taken from them.

SINN FEIN PLANS "WAR" ON MUCH LARGER SCALE

Recruiting Is More Active and Vigorous Campaign Is Forecast—Terror in Cork.

CORK, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—The military authorities claim to have received information of the intention of the "Republicans" to inaugurate within the next three months a war against the "invaders" on a much larger scale than heretofore.

This information is declared to indicate that recruiting for the "Republican Brotherhood," supposedly the "brains" of the Republican army, which carries on its activities much more secretly than the latter, has been more active lately, resulting in the enrollment of large numbers who heretofore have kept apart from the movement.

There is no hope of defeating the British Army, which is much better equipped, but the leaders expect to create such a state of affairs as to bring about international intervention.

The "Republicans," it is said, are not overburdened with funds, money having failed to come from America and the Dominions to the amount anticipated, but this is considered to be of small consequence, as it costs little to maintain the Republican army, the needs of which are amply supplied by sympathizers within the country.

The curfew hours—from 10 o'clock in the evening until 3 o'clock in the morning—have become hours of terror for a large portion of the population of Cork.

A providential heavy rainstorm gave the people relief Saturday night, which was expected to be an exciting one, owing to the demonstrations which had been arranged in connection with the situation surrounding Archbishop Mannix. For several nights previously their slumbers were repeatedly disturbed by firing.

At 10 o'clock sharp military lorries, crowded with soldiers, their rifles ready for use and with the muzzles of machine guns showing, start on a tour of the city. During the curfew hours shooting frequently is heard.

The official report issued daily says the noise comes from troops being fired on from houses or firing as a result of the failure of crowds to disperse. On several occasions looting has occurred during the curfew hours and, according to eyewitnesses, in one case at least soldiers have been arrested by their comrades in this connection. As a rule, there are few witnesses of these events, for, although permits may be obtained to be abroad during the proscribed hours, the holders of them are advised to notify the military before venturing out. No excuse is accepted from those persons found in the streets without a permit.

The police, of whom little is seen in the daytime, also are active during the curfew hours. Outside the prohibited hours Cork goes about her business as usual. Sailors and soldiers mingle with the crowds, despite the fact that they are described as representatives of "the enemy."

The railway situation remains unchanged. Due to this fact, the authorities are using lorries and torpedo boat destroyers for the movement of armed men and munitions.

O'CONNOR DENOUNCES NEW COERCION LAW

"The Worst in the History of Ireland's Long Tragedy"—Greenwood Defends It.

LONDON, Aug. 8.—T. P. O'Connor, President of the United Irish League of Great Britain, bitterly denounced the Irish coercion law passed by the House of Commons last week, in a statement to The Associated Press last night. The law, he said, was the "worst coercion act ever proposed in the British Parliament, and, indeed, without a precedent in the parliamentary acts of any country in the history of the modern world.

"It gives the executive in Ireland," he continued, "a power as great as any Czar ever claimed. It surrounds the exercise of this power with impenetrable secrecy. A man may be tried for his life in secret, convicted in secret, sentenced in secret and hanged in secret. It gives to the Government the right to make anything an offense. The refusal to work, to carry munitions, to hold a meeting, to sing a song, to refuse to supply the police with food—everything is left to the will of the executive.

"The Government refused to accept an amendment presented by the Liberals and even by its own supporters. This would have inserted a proviso which would prevent the creation of new offenses. The Government replied that it wanted carte blanche, and that anything could be made an offense in Ireland, even though such action would not be an offense in the criminal code of any land in the world. Finally, the Government refused every amendment to define the duration of the act—it is forever and ever.

"Mark the contrast. On Thursday night Premier Lloyd George postponed real Irish liberty to an indefinite date; on Friday he gave Ireland coercion for all time. This is a policy which I have again and again declared in the House of Commons was coupled with vacillation and divided counsels. The rebel movement led by Sir Edward Carson, the Ulster leader, and the groveling servitude of the Premier to Sir Edward, are mainly responsible for the chaos and anarchy which prevail in Ireland today."

Sir Hamar Greenwood, Chief Secretary for Ireland, on the other hand defended the law, declaring that its purpose was to do justice in Ireland.

"The economic ruin of Ireland," he said, "is threatened because of the political situation unless the moderate people of that country save it. I am glad to say leading business men, without regard to creed, and members of both the Unionist and Nationalist Parties, are endeavoring to organize moderate opinion in Ireland.

"The sole object of the legislation is to give that disturbed country impartially enforced laws. The courts may be described as courts-martial, with legal assessors.

"Establishment of an independent Irish republic would be fatal to the security of the empire, and, I believe, fatal to Ireland. In my opinion the Roman Catholic hierarchy, under the leadership of its reverend head, Cardinal Logue, views with horror the era of crime and murder in Ireland."

COX SPEECH JOINS ISSUE ON LEAGUE

Republicans Show Willingness to Accept It as Defined in Dayton Speech.

EXPECT WILSON STATEMENT

Tumulty Said to Have Carried a Message of Indorsement to the Nominee.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Comments of newspapers of all shades of opinion and Senators, Representatives and others aligned with the two major political parties leave no doubt that the issue of the League of Nations has been squarely drawn in the political campaign by the speech delivered yesterday by Governor Cox in accepting the nomination for President.

There seems to be no disposition on either side to evade the issue. Republican newspapers and Republican politicians are practically unanimous in expressing willingness that their party shall go before the country in opposition to the League view laid down by Governor Cox.

Although President Wilson has not yet issued a public declaration concerning Governor Cox's matured views on the League, no doubt exists that the President is thoroughly pleased with the Democratic candidate's League platform, as expressed by him at Dayton yesterday. An advance copy of the speech of acceptance was furnished to the President, and he had ample opportunity to indicate dissent from any portion of it to Governor Cox before it was delivered.

The President's Secretary, Joseph P. Tumulty, who attended the notification ceremony, was urged by the President to go to Dayton, and the President had read the speech of Governor Cox before Mr. Tumulty's departure from Washington. When Mr. Tumulty left Washington it was the understanding that he had messages to deliver to Governor Cox from President Wilson. There is a belief in Washington that he carried to Governor Cox a cordial indorsement of the speech of acceptance from the President.

A formal statement by the President showing that he is thoroughly satisfied with Governor Cox's stand on the League of Nations is looked for.

Wilson Spokesmen Show Stand.

If any doubt remained as to the President's attitude it was removed by the cordial indorsement of the speech of acceptance by Bainbridge Colby, Secretary of State, published in THE NEW YORK TIMES today. As far as the League of Nations is concerned, Mr. Colby, as chief of the Department of Foreign Affairs in the Wilson Administration, is, next to the President, the Administration spokesman on the subject. It goes without saying that he would not have expressed himself so vigorously and unequivocally if President Wilson had not been thoroughly satisfied with the utterances of the Democratic nominee.

In the Senate the Administration spokesman on questions affecting foreign relations is Senator Hitchcock of Nebraska, who led the President's fight for the ratification of the League covenant. The Omaha World-Herald, which Senator Hitchcock owns, came out today in a flat indorsement of the League doctrine as defined by Governor Cox.

These supporters of President Wilson on the League issue, who are closely associated with the White House, are in step with the interpretation placed by the Democratic press on Governor Cox's references to the League. The opinion seems to be general among the President's supporters that he and Governor Cox are in thorough accord in their views as to the question upon which the American people are called to pass in what the President described as "a great and solemn referendum."

Republicans Differ from New.

There is equal willingness on the part of Republican politicians and newspapers to regard Governor Cox, on the basis of his speech, as standing four square with President Wilson concerning the League. Washington is "off the map" politically, using the word in its partisan sense, these Summer days and few prominent Republicans are in the capital, but such as are here have indicated clearly that they accept the challenge of the President to make the League covenant the leading issue, and construe Governor Cox's utterances as placing him shoulder to shoulder with the President. Opinions expressed by Republican leaders in and out of Washington and in the Republican press show that the party holds that President Wilson and Governor Cox are as one in respect to the League.

There seems to be a widespread, if not unanimous, disagreement among Republican opponents of the President's league policy, with the contention of Senator New of Indiana that Governor Cox dodges the league issue and the assertion of Senator Townsend of Michigan that Mr. Cox's position on the league is doubtful. Republican sentiment is more in harmony with the statement of ex-Congressman Clarence B. Miller of Delaware, secretary of the Republican National Committee, that the Cox speech was thoroughly in accord with President Wilson—his complete surrender to the President is the way Mr. Miller put it—"first, in making the League of Nations the paramount issue of the campaign, and second, in making Mr. Wilson's particular kind of league his own."

Aim to Make a Wilson Issue.

The Republicans will seek to have the personality of President Wilson made a collateral issue. Their spokesmen have already shown that they intend to couple Governor Cox with the President and endeavor to convince the American electorate that Cox is "Wilson's man." This idea is exploited in the editorial comment of Senator Harding's newspaper, The Marion Star, on Governor Cox's speech of acceptance. "Putting a thoroughly fair interpretation on his own words, to quote the Governor," says the editorial, "Governor Cox's conception of the Presidency is that of Mr. Wilson." This attitude of Senator Harding is emphasized in the editorial statement that Governor Cox can "hardly hold it unfair for the country to anticipate, in the event of Democratic success in November, at least four years more of one-man government, of the autocracy under which the country has suffered for the past seven years."

The interest of President Wilson in Governor Cox's success is to be shown by the active participation of members of his cabinet in the national campaign. Secretary Colby will take the stump in Governor Cox's behalf and William G. McAdoo, the President's son-in-law, is expected to be a Cox spokesman. Homer S. Cummings, former chairman of the National Committee, one of President Wilson's chief representatives at the San Francisco convention, will preach Democratic doctrine, as interpreted by the President, in appealing for votes for Cox and Roosevelt.

Bay State Dinner to Coolidge.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—The Republicans of this State will start their campaign this week with a dinner to be given by the Republican Club of Massachusetts at the Hotel Somerset in Boston, on Thursday night, in honor of Governor Calvin Coolidge, nominee for the Vice Presidency.

LUNN FOR PRIMARY FIGHT.

Not Interested in 'Scuttle of Suds,' but Will Back League.

George R. Lunn, Mayor of Schenectady, announced yesterday his determination to make a primary fight for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator. After a consultation with several friends at the Hotel Pennsylvania Mr. Lunn issued a statement criticising Tammany Hall and certain up-State leaders for suggesting the State ticket at the Saratoga Convention on which Harry C. Walker, Lieutenant Governor, was named for Senator. He said the "suggestions" made by the unofficial convention was camouflage for nomination.

"It is my purpose to emphasize with all the power at my command the supreme issue of this campaign, namely, the League of Nations. I will give unqualified support to the platform and decisions of the National Democratic Party at San Francisco, and to the State platform in all matters of State affairs."

In a reference to the 2.75 beer plank in the Saratoga platform Mr. Lunn said: "A 'scuttle of suds' holds out very little interest to me at a time when the world is trembling at its base. Does it mean that the State campaign is to be a wet issue instead of the national principles enunciated at the National Convention? Intoxicating liquor as a beverage is prohibited by the Constitution of the United States. The Supreme Court has ruled that the Eighteenth Amendment invalidates every legislative act. How, then, can any one promise to do that which cannot be done?"

Mr. Lunn will attend the notification meeting today at the home of Franklin D. Roosevelt. He will make his first campaign speech tomorrow at the Broome County Fair.

CHRISTENSEN ASSAILS COX.

Says His Speech Is Hypocrisy and Harding Talk Is Buncombe.

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 8.—Parley P. Christensen, nominee for the Farmer-Labor Party for President, in a statement here tonight declared that "a promise of four years more of Wilson hypocrisy is all I can get out of the speech of acceptance of Governor Cox."

"The Cox speech," added Mr. Christensen, "completes the conspiracy by the Republican and Democratic bosses to blind the people to their real interests by setting up the dead League of Nations as the paramount issue of the campaign.

"I can make the prediction that the present critical European situation will result in what amounts to a new peace conference that will scrap the Treaty of Versailles. The League of Nations as created in that treaty has never functioned and never will.

"Hypocrisy is the dominant note in the Governor's statement of acceptance, just as transparent buncombe is the outstanding characteristics of his Republican opponent's utterances up to date."

WILL INDORSE 14 FOR BENCH

Party Leaders to Complete Supreme Court Designations Today.

Democratic and Republican leaders expect to complete their designations today for nominees for Supreme Court Justices. There are nine Justices to be elected in Manhattan and the Bronx, and five in the Counties of Kings and Queens. The Republican list of names will be submitted to the County Committee this afternoon at 19 West Forty-fourth Street. The Executive Committee at Tammany Hall will consider the Democratic candidates tonight.

It was said last night that Supreme Court Justices Charles L. Guy and Mitchell L. Erlanger will be included in the designations for Manhattan. It had been reported that Charles F. Murphy, who yesterday was arranging his part of the judicial slate at his Summer home, Good Ground, L. I., was opposed to these two Justices. In Kings County Judge Mitchell May of the County Court has been mentioned as one of the two designations. County Judge Burt J. Humphrey and George J. S. Dowling are announced candidates in Queens.

SYRACUSE TO GREET MILLER

Big Non-Partisan Demonstration Planned for Republican Designee.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—A monster non-partisan civic welcoming demonstration is being arranged by the local Chamber of Commerce to greet former Judge Nathan L. Miller, who was designated at the Republican Convention for Governor, on his arrival home tomorrow night, from Bretton Woods, N. H., where he has been spending his vacation.

The candidate will alight from his train at the City Hall and will be greeted by a reception committee of 100 prominent citizens. An address of welcome will be made by John R. Clancy, former Democratic Congressman. Former Governor Horace White is also expected to make an address.

More than 10,000 men and women are expected to participate in the parade which will escort the candidate to his home.

115,144.13, that is, it appropriated that much less than the amount which the Democratic Administration demanded should be appropriated.

Cut Democratic Estimates.

"The Democratic Sixty-fifth Congress died March 4, 1919. It had failed to pass many of the appropriation bills. Its task was turned over to the incoming Republican Congress, which proceeded immediately to prune down the estimates that had been embodied in the appropriation bills prepared by its Democratic predecessor. This pruning process resulted in a saving of $939,692,541.97; that is, if the Democratic Congress had succeeded in passing before its lease of life expired the bills that it had framed it would have appropriated nearly a billion dollars more than the Republican Congress immediately following appropriated for the same purposes.

"Following this came the regular session of the Republican Sixty-sixth Congress, from which the Democratic Administration demanded appropriations aggregating $6,334,312,929.46. Instead of granting this amount, which was insisted upon with all vehemence by the various Democratic departments, this session of a Republican Congress cut the estimated appropriations $1,474,422,602.16.

"So, from March 4, 1919, to early June, 1920, the aggregate saving effected by the substitution of a Republican for a Democratic Congress was $2,414,115,144.13.

"In the face of this it is rather astonishing that Governor Cox, in a speech that must become the charter of principles for his campaign, that is certain to be placed under the most searching analysis, should declare that the Republican Congress 'has not made a single effort or passed a single law' to reduce the taxation burdens.

"It is worth while to pursue this examination a step further. If the estimates submitted by the Democratic Administration had been granted, appropriations for the period under examination would have exceeded the revenues by $1,400,000,000, but because of Republican economy there will be a surplus for the same period of $1,100,000,000.

"The figures are from the fiscal analysis made by Congressman Mondell of Wyoming on June 21, last, and never denied. They mean that during the fiscal year 1921 the national debt can be reduced to the extent of $1,100,000,000, whereas if the Democratic appropriations had been made the debt would have increased $1,400,000,000.

"These are perfectly plain facts, as obvious as the ledger's footings of a business balance sheet. A leadership which would distort these outstanding facts as Governor Cox has done will hardly command confidence when the country turns attention to the problem of our fiscal future.

Hits at Tax Discussion.

"The discussion of taxation in the Democratic nominee's address is about equally sound and reliable. 'Annoying consumption taxes,' he says, 'once willingly borne, now unjustified, should be repealed,' and in the next paragraph, 'I suggest a small tax, probably one and one-half per cent., on the total business of every going concern.'

"Thus the Governor is found in one paragraph to oppose consumption taxes, and in the next to favor their adoption on a universal scale.

"Governor Cox's discussion of revenue and taxation will demonstrate to any modestly informed person that he has no program whatever, except to appeal for the support of people who want somebody else to pay taxes. There is no way of accomplishing that. We might as well assume that the man who pays rent for a property pays no taxes, as to accept the fallacious theory on which Governor Cox says he would manage Government finances.

"In his discussion of international affairs Governor Cox is particularly bitter against the Senate majority that insisted on Americanizing the President's covenant for a League of Nations. He drops in a word of apology to save the feelings of the twenty-three Democratic Senators who went on record in favor of the Lodge reservations. But he assumes, nevertheless, that the Senate attempted to subvert, and did subvert, the wish and purpose of the American people in preventing ratification of the President's League.

"On that issue the Republican Party is ready to join battle before the country. Barely less than half the Democratic Senators, plus all the Republican Senators, supported the Lodge reservations. Republicans and Democrats stood shoulder to shoulder for the protection of American independence and interests. The Senate, in a patriotic and unpartisan consideration, did a great service to the nation and to the world. The Republican Party is proud and confident as it goes before the country on that record."

EXPECT BIG CROWD TO HEAR ROOSEVELT

GUESTS TO STAND ON LAWN

Vice Presidential Nominee Plans to Start on First Western Tour Tuesday Night.

HYDE PARK, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Franklin D. Roosevelt arrived here tonight from Dayton, Ohio, where he attended the notification of Governor Cox, to prepare for his own notification here tomorrow. The exercises will take place at Springwood, the Roosevelt estate, at 3 P. M.

Owing to the limited hotel facilities here and in Poughkeepsie, comparatively few of the party leaders had arrived tonight. Most of them remained in New York or Albany and planned to come here by train and motor tomorrow. Hyde Park and Poughkeepsie are in holiday dress. Hundreds of American flags adorn public and business buildings and residences, while posters of the Democratic candidates have been placed profusely in all public places.

Secretary Daniels, Governor Smith, Chairman George White of the Democratic National Committee, William G. McAdoo and William C. Redfield are among the prominent party leaders who have promised to attend.

The local Committee on Arrangements has made plans to accommodate 10,000 persons. Mr. Roosevelt will speak from the front veranda of his home, his audience standing on the spacious front lawn. The Vice Presidential nominee's speech of acceptance contains only 3,114 words. It is the shortest acceptance speech of any of the principal candidates of the two major parties and is divided almost equally be tween foreign and domestic issues.

The exercises are not expected to occupy over an hour. They will begin with the singing of the national anthem, followed by an invocation by the Rev. Edward P. Newton, rector of St. James's Episcopal Church, which Mr. Roosevelt's family attends. Henry Morgenthau, Jr., son of the former Ambassador to Turkey, and Chairman of the local Committee on Arrangements, will introduce National Chairman George White, who in turn will introduce ex-National Chairman Cummings, Chairman of the committee appointed officially to notify Mr. Roosevelt of his nomination. The Vice Presidential nominee will then deliver his formal speech of acceptance. The Rev. David P. Morley, pastor of the Roman Catholic Church, will give the benediction. The exercises will close with the singing of "America."

A buffet luncheon will be served at the Roosevelt home at noon to members of the Notification Committee and guests. Mr. Roosevelt had as his guest tonight Livingston Davis, of Boston, a college classmate and his assistant in the Navy Department during the war.

The Reception Committee, which will receive the fifty-three members of the Notification Committee and will remain at the trains to keep the automobiles well filled on each trip, so that no time will be wasted in transporting the crowds, will consist of Thomas Newbold, Chairman, Hyde Park; Mayor Ralph F. Butts, Poughkeepsie; Mayor Samuel Boskin, Beacon; ex-Mayor W. H. Frank, Poughkeepsie; Miss Laura J. Wylie, Poughkeepsie; E. E. Perkins, Poughkeepsie; Peter H. Troy, Poughkeepsie; George H. Coleman, Poughkeepsie; John Ham, Millbrook; Johnston Redmond, Tivoli; Tracy Dows, Rhinebeck; Robert Huntington, Staatsburg; Miss E. H. Lamont, Millbrook; William Church Osborne, Garrison; Mrs. Dan Sullivan, Beacon, and Mrs. R. C. Aldrich, Barrytown.

The candidate plans to go to New York Tuesday noon to confer with party leaders at national headquarters before starting on his Western tour. He will leave New York on the Lake Shore Limited Tuesday evening, arriving in Chicago on the following afternoon and opening his campaign tour in the Auditorium there on Wednesday evening. From Chicago he will go to the Pacific Coast and back, speaking in fifteen States in seventeen working days. He plans to return to New York early in Septemebr and campaign through New York and New England during that month.

Tentative plans also have been made for a second Western trip over a more southern route in October. This would include addresses in Kansas, Colorado, New Mexico, Arizona, and Southern California.

Seats for Women at Chicago.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—When Franklin D. Roosevelt appears at the Auditorium Wednesday to open his Western speaking tour the first sight that will greet his eyes will be more than 500 women, all dressed in white, occupying seats of honor on the stage.

In the past these places have been reserved for office holders, candidates and bosses. The Democratic women of Chicago put this time-honored custom in the discard. Mrs. Anna L. Smith led the women in an appeal to the committee which is making arrangements for the meeting and they obtained permission to occupy the seats.

GREEKS DETERMINED TO CRUSH KEMAL

Gradually Advancing Into Asia Minor—Are Not to Take Over Constantinople.

ATHENS, Aug. 7 (Associated Press).—The Greeks have reoccupied their lost positions at Demerdji, near Simav, Asia Minor, and are pursuing the Turks. The capture of Ushak is expected shortly.

It is asserted that the Greeks are determined completely to break up the forces of Mustapha Kemal Pasha, and are gradually pushing the whole of the front into the interior. Greece, if necessary, will increase her Thracian and Asia Minor forces to more than 200,000 men.

The occupation of Constantinople by the Greeks is not being considered, according to statements made here today. It is declared that Premier Venizelos would be unwilling to take over Constantinople for several years, even if it were offered to Greece, as this would excite international jealousies. Besides, it was said, there are more important problems for Greece at the present moment.

A dispatch from Rome Saturday said authorization to occupy Constantinople had been given the Greeks by the allied nations. The dispatch was credited to information received by the Osservatore Romano.

NEW YORK AIR MAIL REACHES CALIFORNIA

OAKLAND, Cal., Aug. 8.—Two all-metal airplanes that left New York City on July 29 to blaze a trail for a transcontinental aerial mail service, landed at an Oakland flying field late today.

J. M. Larsen, owner of the airplanes, delivered to Postmaster Joseph U. Rosebrough a package of New York mail, constituting what was said to be the first transcontinental aerial mail delivery on record.

REVENUE AGENT SUSPENDED

Affairs of A. S. Spaulding Are Under Investigation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Officials of the Bureau of Internal Revenue declined tonight to discuss the suspension from office of Archibald Spaulding, Internal Revenue Agent for the district of Connecticut, Rhode Island and a part of New York.

They confirmed reports that an investigation into the affairs of Mr. Spaulding's office was under way.

Shot in Loaded Dice Argument.

COX TO BEGIN SWING OF SPEECHMAKING

See No Bolt in Reed Statement.

There has been much speculation as to what course Senator Reed would take; whether he would bolt or protest against the Cox stand, remaining regular so far as the Missouri interests of the party was concerned. It was the belief here tonight that he would remain in the party ranks. He issued this statement, which was taken to indicate such a purpose:

"It now seems plain that nobody is in favor of the League covenant as it was brought here and presented to the Senate. Everybody admits it has to be changed. The truth is, it has been literally shot full of holes. Nobody dare any longer sponsor it as presented. Some are in favor of one change, some are in favor of fifteen or twenty changes; some are against it altogether, but nobody is willing to take it without some changes.

"Evidently we are making fine progress. The longer it is discussed the more changes the people favor. The critics of the League have been vindicated."

It is known that Senator Reed endeavored to have Governor Cox change the text of his address in order to make it evident that the party would go before the people advocating alterations in the League covenant, which would go far to meet the view of Reed and the irreconcilables. Governor Cox refused to make any changes in that direction. He simply determined to stick to what he had prepared and refused to discuss terms of compromise. Therefore the Reed statement is interpreted here as an effort to explain his position in supporting the party.

No Bryan Rupture Expected.

William J. Bryan has not indicated what part he expects to play in the campaign as a result of a reading of the Cox speech, but no open rupture with him is expected. The leaders on the ground here are of the opinion that it is a safe prediction that the party will show a practically united front, and that if one or two or three, such as Reed and Bryan and ex-Senator Bailey of Texas, refuse to give whole-hearted indirsement of the program set forth by Governor Cox, that will be as far as they will go.

Senator Reed gave further indication that he would remain regular by holding a conference today with Senator Pomerene concerning the course which is to be followed in investigating campaign expenses. He said that he had heard from Senator Kenyon of Iowa, the Republican Chairman of the Senate sub-committee, that the committee could be reconvened on Aug. 18. Senator Reed said that this program was agreeable to him and that he was satisfied Senator Pomerene was eager to get at the facts.

It is probable that the committee will be called in session in Chicago on Aug. 18. Decision will then be made as to the advisability of holding continuous sessions and making daily reports. It may be decided to have intervals between sessions and, while getting out all of the facts during the progress of the campaign, to abandon the daily report plan.

Leaders Commend Acceptance Speech.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—"Governor Cox's address will be an inspiration to the nation," said Franklin D. Roosevelt today. "It will be followed by speakers everywhere."

Joseph P. Tumulty, Secretary to President Wilson, pronounced the address an "admirable speech."

Senator Robinson, who made the notification speech, said:

"Governor Cox struck a true tone of leadership. He stands squarely on the San Francisco platform. This requires no interpretation. The Governor's discussion constitutes a document which will be read throughout the country."

"Fine, fine!" commented Senator McKellar of Tennessee. "League or no league is the issue, and we have the Republicans up against it."

Governor Cox's conference today with his lieutenants failed to complete the campaign organization. Chairman White, who, with Senator Harrison, left today for the New York headquarters to remain indefinitely, announced that a special campaign committee of fifteen would be announced there soon. The chairmanship of the Chicago headquarters also was left unsettled temporarily.

COX "CANNED" SPEECH EMPHATIC ON LEAGUE

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Governor James M. Cox made another League of Nations speech this afternoon. He talked it into a phonograph and the records are to be distributed throughout the country. Governor Cox also spoke several parts of his acceptance speech into the records.

A striking extract from the "canned" speech reads:

"I am in favor of going in. This is the supreme test. Shall we act in concert with the free nations of the world in setting up a tribunal which will avert wars in the future? This questions must be met and answered honestly and not by equivocation.

"We must say in language which the world can understand whether we shall participate in the advancement of a cause which has in it the hope of peace and world reconstruction, or whether we propose to follow the old paths trod by the nations of Europe, paths which always led to fields of blood.

"We must say in language which our own people can understand whether we shall unite with our former allies to make effective the only plan of peace and reconstruction which has been formulated, or whether we propose to play a lone hand in the world and guard our isolation with a huge army and an ever increasing navy, with all the consequent burdens of taxation. I repeat, I favor going in."

The Governor talked with about a score of visitors at Trail's End, and then, jumping into an automobile, drove down to the offices of his newspaper, The Dayton News, read telegrams of congratulation and talked into the phonograph. He was full of fight and anxious for the campaign to start.

TAFT ANSWERS COX ON HELP TO LEAGUE

Says it Goes Without Saying He Will Favor Pro-Leaguers in Primaries.

In answer to an inquiry from THE NEW YORK TIMES, asking ex-President Taft for his response to the suggestion made by Governor Cox on Thursday that he "urge Republicans in any State where a primary contest is on for the nomination of a candidate for United States Senator to support the man or men who are in favor of the League of Nations," Mr. Taft sent the following dispatch yesterday from Pointe au Pic, Quebec, where he is spending a short vacaiton:

Pointe-au-Pic, Que., Aug. 8, 1920.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your telegram received. Governor Cox says he expects me to favor in primary contests Republican Senatorial candidates who favor the League of Nations. This goes without saying.

There are, so far as I know, no Republican candidates who favor the League of Nations who will not favor as the only possible league we can secure the league with the Lodge reservations, especially the one as to Article X. I wish to have as many Republican Senators as possible stand by President Harding in the policy to which I believe the circumstances will lead him of obtaining such an amendment of the present league as will retain the great benefits which the covenant without Article X, will confer on the world.

These benefits Mr. Wilson rejected. Mr. Cox promises to reject them, too, if he is elected. We need not be surprised, therefore, to note the Governor's expressed pleasure in the selection of orthodox Wilson Democrats in Missouri and Oklahoma of the same view.

WILLIAM H. TAFT.

SUFFRAGE BATTLE WILL START TODAY

Tennessee Houses Will Meet, but Lack of Quorum May Delay a Definite Action.

HARD FIGHT IN PROSPECT

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Aug. 8. — The Tennessee Legislature will meet in extraordinary session tomorrow at noon to consider ratificatioon of the Federal woman suffrage amendment.

With thirty-five States already having acted favorably and with ratification by over one more State necessary for Woman suffrage to become effective throughout the nation, suffrage and anti-suffrage workers from all parts of the country were here tonight prepared for what is considered as probably the most important contest a general assembly has faced since Congress submitted suffrage ratification to the States.

Indications tonight were that plans of leaders to begin consideration of ratification at the first day's session probably would not materialize. Both houses already are organized and it had been proposed that after the seating of thirteen new members, the Governor's message would be received and preliminary steps toward action on the amendment be taken immediately. Governor Roberts's call for a session, however, was not issued until yesterday and formal notification, it was said, would not be received by all members before tomorrow.

It was doubted whether it would be possible to have a quorum in attendance tomorrow and adjournment until Tuesday was expected.

Republican Caucus This Morning.

Republican members will caucus tomorrow morning to determine their course and it was said their action would have an important bearing inasmuch as the party is represented in the Senate by seven members and in the House by thirty-four. Each Republican has received from Chairman Hays of the Republican National Committee, a message urging it to support ratification.

Today's preliminary activities were marked by an address by Parley P. Christensen, Presidential nominee of the Farmer-Labor Party, who spoke in favor of ratification at a meeting of the Trades and Labor Council. Numerous conferences of members of the Assembly and opponents and proponents of suffrage and legislators also were held, the workers seeking pledges of support.

Leaders of both factions were claiming victory but in many quarters there was a disposition to regard the outcome as uncertain at this time. Suffrage leaders pointed out that the Legislature in regular session last year granted Presidential and Municipal suffrage to the women of the State. The vote in favor of this legislation was a bare constitutional majority in the Senate and a majority of five in the House, 17 of the 33 members of the Senate and 54 of the 99 members of the House voting in the affirmative. Three members of the Senate and ten members of the House were elected last week to fill vacancies and the Suffragists declared that of the thirteen they had eleven pledged, or enough to offset any losses if several of those who voted favorably on the State suffrage issue should oppose ratification by Federal action.

Opponents of Woman Suffrage in any form and those who oppose suffrage by Federal legislation, but favor it by State action, have combined forces and were confident that there were enough members of similar views in each house to defeat ratification.

Mrs. Catt Takes the Field.

Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, President of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, is directing the campaign of the suffragists, and for the first time, it is said, she has established headquarters on the battlefield. Former Governor Rye of Tennessee is expected here tomorrow to take a leading part in the fight as Chairman of the Men's Ratification Committee of Tennessee. Other prominent suffrage leaders here include Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio, Vice Chairman of the National Republican Executive Committee, and Mrs. Florence Bayard Hilles of Wilmington, Del., who was conspicuous in the suffrage contest in the Delaware Legislature.

Virtually every Southern State and many States in the East are represented in the forces opposed to ratification. Senator Frick and Representative Brown, members of the Maryland Legislature, appointed by that body to come to Tennessee and assist in the anti-ratification fight, arrived today. Others include Miss Mary G. Kilbreth of New York, President of the National Association Opposed to Woman Suffrage; Mrs. James S. Pinekard of Montgomery, Ala., President of the Southern Women's Rejection League, and Miss Laura Clay of Kentucky, an advocate by action of the individual States, but opposed to suffrage through Federal enactment; the Misses Jean and Kate Gordon of Louisiana, known throughout the South, also are active in the anti-ratification fight. They, like Miss Clay, favoring State rather than Federal action.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The National Woman's Party announced tonight that a poll of the Tennessee Legislature on ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment showed two votes lacking in the House and one in the Senate.

Harding Urges Ratification.

Special to The New York Times.

MARION, Aug. 8.—Action favorable to ratification of the Federal suffrage amendment by Republican members of the Tennessee State Legislature was urged today by Senator Harding in the following telegram to Harriet Taylor Upton at Nashville:

"You may say for me to Republican members of the General Assembly of Tennessee that it will be highly pleasing to have the Republicans of that State play their full and becoming part in consummating the constitutional grant of woman suffrage. It is no longer a question of policy. It is a matter of Republican contribution to a grant of suffrage to which our party is committed, and for which our party is in the main responsible."

Special to The New York Times.

DAYTON, Aug. 8.—Governor Cox expressed the belief today that the Tennessee Legislature would ratify woman suffrage, after all, when it got together tomorrow. He had received reports from Mrs. Abby Scott Baker, field manager for the National Woman's Party, that a majority of the lower house and one more than a majority of the Senators were pledged to vote for ratification. These reports from Mrs. Baker squared with the reports which Governor Cox has received.

The Governor talked the situation over with Mrs. Baker and promised to give any aid he could if the situation as pictured proved false. He is to send a personal representative to Nashville and extend every effort to get the vote for the women.

Mrs. Baker said that if Tennessee ratified the suffrage amendment the Woman's Party would soon hold a convention in Chicago to map out its campaign plans and place before the people a platform which would seek equal rights in all matters for women.

BOY IS HELD AS BURGLAR.

Fled from Broker's Apartment While Latter Was Calming Wife.

A youth who said he was Paul Pope, 17 years old, an elevator operator living at 2,322 Seventh Avenue, was held by Magistrate Sweetser in the Washington Heights Court yesterday in $3,000 bail for action by the Grand Jury on a charge of burglary. Pope wore an ill-fitting coat and his feet were covered by a mismated pair of slippers.

The boy was charged with entering the apartment of Henry Craiger, a broker living on the first floor of 555 West 160th Street, early yesterday morning, by means of the fire escape and stealing jewelry valued at $4,000.

Mr. Chaiger awoke while Pope was in the room and knocked him unconscious.

LIBERTE APPEALS TO US

By EDWIN L. JAMES.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

PARIS, Aug. 8.—Elihu Root, who is regarded by the French as an emissary of the Republican Party and who has just finished giving his valuable guidance to the establishment of the League of Nations International Court of Justice, has returned from a visit to the devastated regions. He is quoted in the French press as being profoundly moved by what he saw. The Matin says Senator Root declared his visit to the region of the battlefields left upon him an impression of desolation such as he had never imagined.

La Liberté today publishes a striking article written around the American cemetery at Romagne, which was also visited by Mr. Root. La Liberté's writer says:

"On the edge of the Forest of Argonne, near the ruins of Nantillois, I saw a great American army. It was camped for eternity. There they were, 28,000 strong, drawn up for a review which the generations of the future will pass in reverence. Twenty-eight thousand white crosses stretched their arms above the immaculate field which equalizes all those it covers with its green carpet.

"Over at Saint Mihiel, at Verdun, at Château-Thierry and in twenty other places, in the shadow of the same white crosses, are the sons of the great sister nation. The French bow before these tombs with greatest piety.

"On each turn in this devasted land cemeteries meet the gaze. Here are dark crosses planted upon the graves of valiant Englishmen. There are the dead of Italy's army. All these crosses seem to declare to heaven with their stretched out arms fidelity for eternity.

"But what are the living doing?

"The war is not ended. The peace for which so many men died is not yet established. Is it possible that they died in vain? Why is their work not completed? It would be false to the memory of the war dead to allow their death to be useless.

"And why did the United States abandon this work at the moment of obtaining results? It amounts to nothing to write a treaty if one does not enforce it.

"It may be said of the Treaty of Versailles that it is, above all, the work of President Wilson. It was he who introduced so many of the conditions which make its application difficult. It seems to us a course too easy and too unjust for America to draw out now.

"No consideration for interior politics and still less of a personal order can justify the present attitude of the Government of the United States. We lack that great help in grave hours. We would not be, perhaps, where we are today if the voice of the great nations had affirmed the legitimacy and inviolability of the treaty. It is not just that the right be sacrificed in the interest of Presidential candidature.

CHASE AUTO THIEF IN PARK.

Car Found Abandoned and Man Hiding in Bushes Arrested.

While visiting friends on the ground floor of 204 West 110th Street, early yesterday morning, Charles Greenbaum, an attorney of 338 Bedford Avenue, Brooklyn, heard the motor of his new touring car start, and when he reached the curb saw the machine disappearing south in Central Park. He blew his police whistle, attracting Detective Thomas Finn.

Greenbaum and the detective gave chase through Central Park in a commandeered automobile, and finally came upon the machine abandoned in the park near 106th Street. After a half hour's search Finn discovered a man crouching among the bushes and placed him under arrest.

At the West 100th Street Station the prisoner described himself as John W. McCloud, a chauffeur, of 1,863 Park Avenue. Magistrate Robert C. Ten Eyck held him in $3,500 bail for examination tomorrow on suspicion of grand larceny.

WARNS DRAFT MEN TO CLEAR RECORDS

173,911 NAMES ARE LISTED

Any Who Served Honorably in War Are Called Now to Send Proofs to the Adjutant General.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Any man in the United States who has reason to believe that his Draft Board record is not clear should at once write to Major Gen. Peter Harris, and from General Harris ascertain how he is classified. This does not apply to deserters or others who during the war willfully violated the military laws of the United States, but only to those men, of whom there were thousands, who volunteered in the army, navy or marine corps at the beginning of the war and who thereafter failed to notify their respective boards that they were already in the service. The word army as used here includes, of course, the National Guard as well as the Regular Army.

This statement of the War Department is issued in connection with a program shortly to be announced by the department, which is expected to call for the arrest and delivery to the Federal authorities of more than 170,000 men who stand charged with the crime of desertion in time of war. It is the hope of the department that when the roundup is ordered, the names of all those who should not be on the list will have been removed, leaving only the willful and premeditated deserters to be accounted for.

Owing to the great number of known deserters, the Government in seeking their apprehension will not pay the $50 reward usually paid in such cases, but will seek to bring the delinquents to justice with the aid of the hundreds of thousands of men who did their duty in the hour of need, as well as of good citizens generally, including women as well as men. If the usual reward were paid and all the deserters captured, it would drain from the War Department appropriations a sum in excess of $8,000,000.

The War Department statement, issued today, reads:

"The work of the army in listing the names of men whose records show them as draft deserters is rapidly nearing completion, and in order to avoid having the name of any man who served honorably appear on the list of draft deserters, the War Department announces that any draft registrant who is in doubt as to his status should write to the Adjutant General of the army at Washington, D. C., and find out how he is classified. If any error exists in the record of the registrant, it is probably due to his lack of interest in keeping track of his obligations to the Government.

"Each man who has been classified as a draft deserter has had his name posted in the community in which he registered as being required to perform certain duties, and efforts were made to notify the man at the address given by him.

"Although the fact that a draft registrant does not know his status is largely his own fault, yet any man who now suspects that he may be classified as a deserter can, as stated above, write to the Adjutant General of the army at Washington, D. C., and receive full information as to how he is classified.

"This notice is given to the public so that any of the 173,911 men whose names are now listed, who can show that they did not willfully evade their duty, may have their name removed before the publication of the list.

"Any man who is in doubt as to his status should communicate with the Adjutant General within the next two weeks, so as to afford sufficient time for his case to be settled before the public announcement of the names of the deserters.

"Due to the tremendous expense that the Government would be put to in apprehending such a large number of draft deserters, and believing that the public spirit of State and local officials, patriotic societies and other agencies, including the Department of Justice, will cause them to co-operate in search for offenders, the War Department has decided temporarily to suspend the payment of $50 for each draft deserter apprehended and turned over to the military authorities.

"The War Department is most anxious not to place upon any man who served his country honorably the humiliation of having his name appear as a slacker, and for that reason is seeking the widest publicity of the fact that a list of deserters will be published, and that any man whose name is in that list will be arrested and brought to trial by military court.

"Any man, therefore, who is not positive that his record with his local board was complete in every detail should at once avail himself of this opportunity to clear his record and avoid the probable publication of his name as a deserter. Once the list of deserters is posted, every means at the disposal of the army will be brought into play to bring about the arrest and trial of the guilty.

"The tremendous public sentiment against slackers will cause the whereabouts of most of them to be revealed, and it is not expected that any guilty man will escape."

Further details of the Government's program to bring the great army of slackers to justice will be announced in a few days.

TWO GASSED VETERANS TAKE THEIR OWN LIVES

Special to The New York Times.

PITTSBURGH, Aug. 8.—Two World War veterans, each weakened as the result of being gassed in France, ended their own lives today and, unwittingly carrying their tragic parallel to the end, the two chose the same method, each hanging himself with his belt.

George Nason, aged 26, of Yukon, near Irwin, after passing months in various military hospitals, was taken to Dixmont Hospital, near Pittsburgh, for treatment, his mind having become affected. While other patients were attending religious services in the chapel this morning, Nason looped his belt about his neck and fastened the free end to a bedpost. Guards found him unconscious a short time later. He died at noon.

Paul Straher, aged 32 of Renton, a mining town near Unity, hanged himself to a fence post with his belt. He was dead when fellow boarders found him. According to the information received at the Coroner's office, he had received a letter from his wife in Austria, telling him that she had become a mother. Straher had not seen her since the beginning of the war.

He was gassed in the Argonne drive and had not recovered complete health.

FREED, THEN REARRESTED.

Prisoner, Out on Bail on Pocket-Picking Charge, Is Accused Again.

Joseph Skulnick, 40 years old, of 77 Dodge Avenue, Rockaway Beach, who is under bail on a charge of picking pockets, was arrested by Detectives James Shanley and Henry Mutte at Rockaway Beach yesterday after he had been seen to jostle passengers on trolley cars. Two young women, giving Manhattan addresses, who were said to have been with him, were held as material witnesses. The matron at the Rockaway Beach Police Station said she found $430 on one of the young women and $280 on the other. The women said they were Sadie Cohen, 23, of 1,401 Park Avenue, and Lena Rudofsky, 27, of 78 William Street.

Skulnick was arrested at the beach a week ago, charged with picking the pocket of a man and obtaining $220. On Tuesday Magistrate Miller at Far Rockaway held him without bail but he later obtained an order from County Judge Humphrey, furnished $2,500 bail and was released.

ASKS TRIAL FOR FRIEDRICH.

Military Court Wants Hungarian Assembly to Suspend Immunity.

BUDAPEST, Aug. 5.—The military court has asked the National Assembly to suspend the immunity of former Premier Friedrich so that he may be arrested on a charge of complicity in the murder of Count Stephen Tisza, who was shot and killed in November, 1918, in the presence of his wife.

A dispatch from Budapest in February said the Cabinet Council had decided to permit the trial by the military authorities of Friedrich. It was added that the court would be composed of five superior officers.

ROB FAHNESTOCK ESTATE.

State Police Seek Vandals Operating Near Putnam Valley.

Special to The New York Times.

PEEKSKILL, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Thieves early today broke into some of the houses on the estate of Dr. Ernest Fahnestock in Putnam Valley town and, after wrecking and mutilating furnishings, stole fishing tackle, guns and other sporting goods and canoes on the lake. A report of the thefts was made by Superintendent Ringold of the estate, and two troopers of the State Constabulary were sent out. The estate comprises about 8,000 acres and was the property of Major Clarence Fahnestock, who died in France during the war.

Three troopers also were ordered to the home of ex-State Senator George R. Agnew, at South Salem, near Brewster, where suspicious men were seen prowling about the place, with an automobile stationed nearby. Servants gave a good description of the men, and the police are working on the theory that they might be from the same gang that visited the Fahnestock estate. Other estates in the neighborhood have reported suspicious prowlers to the constabulary headquarters.

New Order Against Syndicalists.

MADRID, Aug. 7.—Instructions from the Attorney General to all local authorities are published in today's Official Gazette, calling for the most strict enforcement of the law against illegal associations, which are declared to include Syndicalist organizations. The order asserts that, although these associations have been legally dissolved, their headquarters closed and their funds and documents seized, many of them are secretly continuing operations throughout the country.

Time Extended on State Income Tax.

State Controller Travis announced yesterday that persons or partnerships keeping their books on the basis of a fiscal year ending between Jan. 1 and June 1 have until Sept. 15 to file their 1919-20 State income tax returns, under an amendment to the State Income Tax law. No application is necessary to gain this extension of time. Interest at 6 per cent. on the tax due, however, is charged for any delay of more than three and a half months between the close of the fiscal year and the date of filing returns.

URGES STATE TO USE IDLE LAND FOR TREES

STATE'S OUTPUT LED IN 1850

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—In a report that the Forestry Service of the Department of Agriculture has prepared for transmission to the Senate the statement is made that through forest depletion New York and Pennsylvania are forced to import the larger part of the lumber they use, some of it from the Pacific Coast, with an additional cost in freight bills that total many millions of dollars annually. The report says that New York and Pennsylvania originally were covered with magnificent forests of white pine, spruce, hemlock and hardwoods and occupied first rank among the States as producers of lumber.

According to the report, New York, in 1850, ranked first among the States in amount of lumber cut, and contributed 20 per cent. of the total cut of the entire country. In 1918 New York was twenty-fifth in point of lumber production and contributed only 1 per cent. of the total cut. The actual cut of lumber decreased from more than 1,300,000,000 feet prior to 1850 to less than 350,000,000 feet in 1918.

Albany Leading Market in 1837.

As early as 1837, with the opening of the Erie canal, Albany took its place as the leading lumber market of the world. In 1856, when Albany lost its place to Chicago, New York ceased to be an important exporter of lumber, and began to draw upon Michigan for upper grades of pine.

Pennsylvania hemlock, Southern pine, and cypress were used in large quantities beginning about 1880, and West Coast woods in upper grades and special sizes began to come into the New York market about 1900. Today, Douglas fir from the Pacific Northwest is a very large factor in the lumber market of the State, according to the report.

The steadily decreasing supply of native woods and the increasing population resulted in a falling off of the New York per capita production of lumber from 300 board feet in 1869 to about 90 board feet in 1918.

The present forest area of the State is today about 41 per cent. of the total area, with a total stand of about 49,000,000,000 board feet. Of this amount approximately 26,000,000,000 board feet, or 55 per cent., is estimated to be suitable for lumber. Spruce and hemlock suitable for pulp wood comprise about 13,400,000 cords, while material of all species suitable only for fuel and acid wood adds another 107,000,000 cords.

Present Stand Is Inferior.

The present stand of timber, according to the report, is decidedly inferior to that of early days. Only the poorer grades of white pine are obtainable. Approximately 62 per cent. of the total forest area contains material that is suitable only for fuel or acid wood. Although a comparatively small area of land has been completely denuded, the original forests are being replaced by stands of decidedly inferior quality, both as to species and grades. In spite of the fact that forest fires steadily are being reduced by systematic fire protection, it is pointed out that the methods of cutting on private lands are such that an increasingly large area is left partially or wholly devastated.

In 1860 Pennsylvania stood first among the States in lumber production. Today it occupies twentieth place in lumber production, and its annual cut of 530,000,000 board feet constitutes less than 2 per cent. of the cut of the country.

Both New York and Pennsylvania, according to the report, have ample land not suited for agriculture which should be devoted to growing timber and which would produce enough to more than supply their needs.

Protection of the remaining forests from fire and the growing of new forests are the two principal measures advocated by the Forestry Service to remedy existing conditions. There are millions of acres of land in the region now lying idle that can be most profitably employed in the production of timber, it is pointed out. If this land is put to growing trees and an effective system of protection from fire is established, the report says, New York and Pennsylvania can materially increase their timber output and keep within their own borders millions of dollars now spent for lumber elsewhere.

23D IS HOST AT UPTON.

Camp Is Crowded All Day with New York Guardsmen's Friends.

CAMP UPTON, L. I., Aug. 8.—Crowds of visitors from Brooklyn and Manhattan were received at the camp today to visit the soldiers of the Twenty-Third Regiment of Infanty, New York National Guard, encamped here.

An informal guard mount was held in the afternoon. The first battalion will go to the rifle range Monday morning and complete their shooting. They have already fired the 200 and 300 yard range courses of slow and rapid fire.

Mr. McGraw said that he knew nothing of any injury that might have happened to Mr. Slavin. He said that all he knew was that they had spent the evening together with Mr. Leggett in The Lambs; that they had taken a taxi and had gone uptown together and that they had parted on most friendly terms at the entrance of Mr. McGraw's apartment.

The detective said that not only were they convinced of the truth of Mr. McGraw's statement by his attitude and general demeanor while telling them the story, but also that they were convinced by the statement of Mr. Leggett and of William Meagan, who palpably was a disinterested witness.

Meagan said to the detectives that about 7:30 o'clock yesterday morning, while he was waiting in West Forty-fourth Street that he saw Mr. McGraw, Mr. Leggett and Mr. Slavin come out of The Lambs and entered his taxi. He said he was told to drive to 301 West 109th Street. He said that when he arrived there all three of his fares got out on the sidewalk.

"The three opened a friendly argument as to which one would pay the fare," Meagan said to the detectives. "They appeared to be most friendly, and each one seemed to me to be most anxious to pay the fare instead of the other. As the matter remains, however, I haven't received any fare yet for the trip.

"After this friendly discussion had lasted for some minutes, Mr. McGraw disappeared into the apartment house; Mr. Leggett and I turned and saw Mr. Slavin lying unconscious on the sidewalk. We didn't know what had happened. We tried to revive him by ordinary methods and when those failed we hurried him to the nearest hospital.

"It is perfectly clear to me that Mr. Slavin received no injury from anybody in the party of which he was a member while I was present. Nobody could have been more friendly and on more cordial terms with one another than the passengers I took from the Lambs this morning. That is certain."

Mr. Leggett could not be found by reporters yesterday. The only story from him was the one that he had told to the police. They said that he had asserted to them that Mr. McGraw had become involved in an argument in The Lambs with an actor, whose name Mr. Leggett told the detectives he didn't know. He told the police that there was a deal of excitement during the argument. The police said there was no doubt in their mind that Mr. McGraw had got the worst of it.

On the other hand, the detectives said there was no evidence that they had been able to get that Mr. Slavin had received his injuries in the fisticuffs that they were informed had taken place in The Lambs, nor at any other time prior to his getting out of the taxi in front of the apartment in which Mr. McGraw lives.

Sees No Foul Play

"There is nothing to indicate foul play in connection with this case," Detective Sergeant Fitzpatrick said late yesterday. "The best indications is that the injuries of Mr. Slavin were received when he fell to the sidewalk at Broadway and 109th Street."

Detectives said that the report of the peculiar combination of circumstances would include the statement that the three men who went uptown in Meagan's taxi at 8 o'clock yesterday morning apparently had been drinking. They explained that this would not be a charge and that they were not prepared to prove that any one of the three was under the influence of alcoholic liquor. This was their honest opinion from the stories that had been told to them, however, they said, and had a deal to do with their strong support of the theory that Mr. Slavin received his injuries in an innocent and not in a criminal manner.

When a reporter went to The Lambs last night a group of members was outside. One was making gestures, as if striking another person in the jaw. Four or five other members of the party were leaning forward listening intently. A casual observer might have believed that a prize fight was being described.

As soon, however, as the newspaper man arrived the gesticulations that indicated punches in the face ceased. When asked what subject had been under discussion the group replied: "Nothing."

A waiter inside, when he was asked about the party that Mr. McGraw is said to have been a member of on the night before, said that he would speak to officials. He came back later and said that no one had anything to say.

Prominent members of The Lambs said that they had been in the club yesterday and that it was "quiet as the tomb" and that they had been surprised to hear of Mr. Slavin's mishap. Later they said that even from fellow members and close personal friends of years' standing they had been unable to discover that anything out of the ordinary had taken place in the Lambs' home on Saturday night or early Sunday morning. They asserted that so far as they could learn, everything was harmonious and peaceful in The Lambs.

Mr. Slavin Widely Known.

Mr. Slavin is 50 years old. He lives at 182 Case Street, Elmhurst, L. I. He has been identified with popular Broadway productions in the musical comedy line for many years and has been a prominent figure in Broadway life. He is widely known for his wit and humor.

The police of the West 100th Street Police Station said that a sister of Mr. Slavin, Mrs. H. Levy of 110 West 115th Street, had been most eager not only to hear at the hospital of his condition, but also to discover in what manner he had come by his injury.

Detectives said that they were told that Mr. Leggett had been a Lieutenant in the navy during the war. Nothing further could be learned about him at The Lambs, where it was said several times during the day that he was "out." There was no answer at all to repeated rings of the doorbell of the apartment occupied by Mr. McGraw.

PRODUCTION OF COAL SHOWS BIG INCREASE

44,500,000 Tons More of Bituminous Mined Up to July 31 Than in Same Period in 1919.

ANTHRACITE OUTPUT MORE

But the Geological Survey Finds "No Widespread Improvement" in the Car Situation.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—A bright picture of the national coal situation is painted by the Geological Survey in figures made public today, covering coal production and transportation.

Despite a decrease in production of 1,523,000 tons as compared with the previous week, due to the strikes of mine laborers in Illinois and Indiana, the end of July found bituminous production since the beginning of the year to have reached 302,727,000 tons, an increase of 44,500,000 tons over the amount mined up to July 31 last year.

Anthracite production also compares favorably with 1919, having reached 50,575,000 tons on July 31, as compared with 47,307,000 tons at the end of July of 1919.

The Illinois and Indiana strikes caused production of bituminous during the week of July 31 to go to the low weekly level of the year, but the Survey's report declares "that since then there has been steady improvement."

Reports to the surve, as to car supply indicated at the end of July "no widespread improvement," a change for the better being noted in some districts, while the losses in production due to insufficient transportation grew more acute in others.

Tidewater shipments during the week of July 31 established what the survey believes to be a new record for coal handled over tidewater piers in a single week. The total tidewater dumpings amounted to 27,461 cars, an increase of 1,771 cars over the previous week. A total of 104,826 cars for the month of July was divided among the various ports as follows: New York, 34,918; Philadelphia, 13,420; Baltimore, 14,100; Hampton Roads, 40,791, and Charleston, S. C., 1,588.

The first week of shipment of coal under the order granting priority to the Northwest, however, was not up to the expectations of the railroads, the increase over the previous week amounting to only 112,712 tons. Shipments to Lake Erie ports for the Northwest since the first of the year amounted on July 31 to 16,814,000 tons, which is 5,300,000 tons behind 1918 and 6,300,000 tons less than in 1919.

Rail movement of coal to New England, one of the territories in which there exists a shortage, were heavy, amounting to 16,368 cars through the five Hudson River gateways. With one exception this was the heaviest rail movement to New England on record. Shipments through Hampton Roads to New England decreased during the week of July 31, which was before the New England priority order became effective.

"BABE RUTH" VACATION.

Itinerary of Cincinnati Judge and Son Depends on Home Run.

Special to The New York Times.

CINCINNATI, Aug. 7.—Judge Edward T. Dixon of the Common Pleas Court is about to go on a vacation. One of his neighbors asked him today how long he intended remaining away. The Judge replied:

"Dunno; depends on Babe Ruth."

"What cities will you visit?"

"Dunno that either—also depends on Babe Ruth."

"Will you get to New York?"

"Yes, I might, then again I might not—that's up to Babe Ruth, too."

"Who is this Babe Ruth person?" asked the neighbor, who is not up on baseball. "Never heard of Babe Ruth."

"Ruth! Well, he is the home run Coonskin Tanner of the New York Yankees. This youngster of mine, he is a 'bug' on baseball and a bigger bug about Babe Ruth. Some time ago I promised the boy I would let him see Babe Ruth make a home run this season. My vacation starts Sunday morning and the boy is holding me to that promise, so tomorrow morning we leave for Cleveland, where Babe Ruth's club plays. If Babe makes a home run the first day out then we will be home that day, the day after we leave, but we will remain with the Yankees, going where they go and stay where they stay until Babe makes a home run.

"That, maybe, takes us to Philadelphia, Washington, Boston and New York, but it is up to Babe Ruth. Here are reserved seats for us two for the Cleveland games. They will have tremendous crowds, but we are all fixed. The missus knows we will be home the next morning after Babe Ruth makes his next home run. Then we will go to the country, but no one knows when that will be."

LOCOMOTIVE RUNS AWAY.

Derailed and Wrecked After Traveling Four Blocks—No One Hurt.

A freight locomotive with a leaky throttle ran away from its crew in the Waldo Avenue yards of the Pennsylvania Railroad in Jersey City yesterday and, with no one on board to shut off steam, gained such momentum that it left the rails near the Baldwin Avenue tower, about four blocks away. The locomotive was wrecked, but traffic was not delayed, because the railroad has several spare tracks at this point.

The railroad cut where the engine left the rails is a little more than a block from a crossing of the Hudson & Manhattan Railroad. A report was spread that "outlaw" strikers had started up the locomotive in an attempt to crash it into one of the Hudson tube trains. This was denied by officials of both railroads, who declared also that the towerman had not derailed the wild locomotive to prevent a more dangerous wreck.

FOUND DEAD IN MOTOR BOAT

Owner Believed Victim of Lightning or Heart Disease.

The lifeless body of Joseph A. Ayres, 60 years old, who lived at 4,578 Park Avenue, the Bronx, was found yesterday aboard his motor boat "Old Crow" in Pelham Bay, about a mile north of the Fort Schuyler shore. From the appearance of the body the police believe Ayres had either been struck by lightning or was the victim of an attack of heart disease, to which he was subject.

Patrolmen George Bero and Cyrus Horton, of the Marine Division, came upon the "Old Crow" at anchor, with Ayres's lifeless body seated in the cockpit. The clothing and slicker which Ayres wore indicated that the body had been in the position in which it was found since the storm on Saturday.

Assistant Medical Examiner Dr. Karl Kennard will perform an autopsy to determine the exact cause of death.

GOES TO BED ON TOP OF TELEGRAPH POLE

Newark Man, After Several Drinks, Is Found Asleep High in Air.

William Merkel, about thirty years old, who refused to give his address, could not remember yesterday afternoon in the Newark City Hospital under what circumstances he climbed a telegraph pole at Fleming Avenue and Providence Street early yesterday morning. Policeman Bush saw Merkel lying across the wires at the top. Not knowing whether Merkel was dead or sleeping and fearing to arouse him by shouting, he sent for the reserves.

While the policemen held a net a "steeplejack" member of the force climbed the pole and quietly awakened Merkel, and after some persuasion induced him to come down. In the meantime a crowd of several hundred had gathered.

Merkel said he had been "out with the boys" last night and remembered having had several drinks, but he had absolutely no recollection of having climbed the pole nor how long he had been there when seen by the policeman.

2 HELD IN GILL MURDER.

Alleged Members of "White Hand Gang" Arrested on Suspicion.

District Attorney Lewis and detectives in Brooklyn are making every effort to round up witnesses of the murder of William Francis Gill, 22 years old, of 158 Fourth Avenue, Brooklyn, who died in the Holy Family Hospital, Brooklyn, on Thursday night. In connection with the death of Gill, two alleged members of the notorious "white hand gang" were arraigned in the Flatbush Court before Magistrate Dale on Saturday. They were held on short affidavits as suspects.

The men are James Merrill, 32 years of age, of 385 Fifth Avenue, and James Burns, 33 years of age, of 79 Third Avenue, Brooklyn. Both men, according to Detective Pritting of the Bergen Street Station, have police records. They deny all knowledge of the attack on young Gill, at Butler Street and Fourth Avenue, which resulted in his death from a fracture of the skull. The detectives have learned that several persons witnessed the attack and are searching the neighborhood to locate them.

CANOEISTS IN STORM.

Fifteen Newark Men Forced to Sleep All Night on Beach.

KEANSBURG, N. J., Aug. 8.—The fifteen members of the Weequahic Canoe and Athletic Club of Newark, who left the latter place yesterday afternoon in seven canoes to take part in the annual cruise of the club to this place and return, and who were last night believed to have been lost in the storm, are safe.

The last of the canoes reached here shortly before noon today, after having had thrilling experiences in the open boats. Most of the boys were compelled to sleep along the beaches at different points below here, when they lost their way, or were so exhausted by their efforts to prevent their frail craft from sinking that they decided to spend the night at the first point of land they reached.

The fifteen started from Newark a couple of hours before the storm broke yesterday afternoon and they were looked for to arrive here about 7 or 8 o'clock. Members of a local yacht club had made preparations to receive them.

FEDERAL AID SPURS HIGHWAY BUILDING

Roads Completed or Building Are Nine Times the Distance to San Francisco.

TOTAL COST IS $384,900,000

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Highway construction in the United States started since the passage of the Federal Good Roads act aggregates in length nine times the distance from New York to San Francisco, the Federal Government's share in this huge undertaking being greater than was the cost of the Panama Canal, according to Thomas H. McDonald, chief of the Bureau of Public Roads of the Department of Agriculture.

"The participation of the national Government in highway improvement," says a Department of Agriculture statement issued today, "marks a departure from a policy which had been followed for nearly a century. Federal co-operation on an approximately fifty-fifty basis has counted more than any other factor in initiating highway construction that is being carried on underadequate supervision and in accord witha program co-ordinating local, State and national needs.

"Second only in importance to the size of the present road building program is the excellence of the roads being built. Sixty per cent. of the total allotment of Federal funds which has been approved to date will be spent for roads of such durable types as bituminous concrete, portland cement concrete, and vitrified brick. These roads when built will increase by 7,600 miles the total of 14,400 miles of roads of this class which existed in the United States before the Federal-aid road law was passed. But these figures by no means represent the total mileage affected.

"In 1915 the total expenditure for roads and bridges by all the State and local Governments was $267,000,000, while this year the estimated funds available for main road construction are nearly three times that amount, or $633,000,000. In all, Federal funds to the amount of $266,750,000 have been apportioned among forty-eight States without a suggestion of favoritism, so adequate are the provisions for a just apportionment.

"Up to June 30, 1920, 2,985 projects, involving a total of 29,319 miles of road, had been approved by the Secretary of Agriculture. The preliminary estimates of the cost of these projects is approximately $384,900,000, of which approximately $163,841,000 will be approved as Federal aid. On the same date 2,110 projects, representing approximately 15,944 miles, had either been completed or were under construction. The estimated total cost of these projects in various stages of construction and completed is $200,000,000."

Garden Party to Aid Legion Home.

The Leviathan Naval Post of the American Legion will give a garden party on Thursday, Aug. 26, in the City College Stadium to aid in raising funds for a permanent headquarters for the 4,000 men who worked on the big ship during the war. Among the members of the Endowment Fund Committee are Henry P. Davison, Secretary of the Navy Daniels, Samuel Blythe, Irvin S. Cobb, Major Gen. John F. O'Ryan and Governor Edward I. Edwards.

MYSTERY IN DEATH OF BANK PRESIDENT

to Mr. Thompson and Mr. Thompson in turn wired to Mr. Bradford, who conducts a rooming house at 318 West Eighty-ninth Street. Mr. Bradford received the message about 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon and went to the police station and to the hospital, where he furnished the officials information concerning Mr. Crim. Mr. Bradford came to this city two years ago from Philippi, where he had for many years known Mr. Crim intimately. He said last night that Mr. Crim was one of the leaders socially as well as in the business life of the community.

Visited New York Frequently.

Mr. Crim, according to Mr. Bradford, was born about six miles from Philippi, in Barbour County, W. Va., and that region. His father, J. N. B. Crim, was the first President of the Philippi First National Bank, and upon his death in 1905 he was succeeded by another, who died two years later. E. H. Crim was then chosen as head of the institution. Mr. Crim was also interested in other enterprises in his section. For a number of years he had been coming to New York several times each year to buy goods for his store.

To aid in running down the person or persons who had a part in the death of Mr. Crim in the event the autopsy to be performed this morning discloses that it was caused by poisoning, Arthur Dayton, Mr. Crim's attorney, and Edgar B. Thompson, manager of the department store, left Philippi yesterday afternoon and are expected to reach New York this morning. The body is now at the morgue.

Mr. Bradford said last night that he had no theory that would shed any light on the case. From all indications, he said, Mr. Crim had been drugged and robbed. Mr. Bradford said that he did not know Mr. Crim was in the city until he received the telegram from Philippi yesterday afternoon.

FOUND POISONED IN PARK.

Unconscious Man Victim of Morphine, Doctors Believe.

An unidentified man, apparently about 30 years old, was found unconscious on a bench in Central Park at 102d Street and Fifth Avenue last night about 9 o'clock. Dr. Druckman, summoned from Harlem Hospital by Patrolman Oleff, said the man apparently was suffering from morphine poisoning and was in a serious condition.

There were no papers or anything in the man's clothing by which he could be identified. He is about 5 feet 10 inches tall; weighs about 160 pounds, with blonde hair, blue eyes and sandy complexion. He wore a blue serge suit, black lace shoes, black socks, straw hat, khaki shirt, white collar and blue tie.

Home Must Not Be Treated as a Side Line!

There is a vast difference between stores that conduct departments of house-furnishings as a side line, and an institution which, for 77 years, has made the Home the centre and circumference of its activities.

Our idea of your home is that it is too important to be treated as a side line.

800,000 SET RECORD FOR YEAR AT BEACHES

MAN DROWNS IN HUDSON

Loses Own Life in Attempt to Save Woman—Several Rescued at Coney and Rockaway.

As early as 7 o'clock yesterday morning great crowds were on their way to the beaches. By noon all bathhouses at Coney Island and the Rockaways were occupied, and there were long queues waiting at every bathing pavilion office. The police estimated that about 400,000 visited Coney Island yesterday, the biggest crowd of the season, and the Rockaways had their record attendance for 1920 with 200,000. More than 200,000 bathers, it was estimated, took a dip in the surf at Long Beach. One man was drowned in the Hudson. No drownings were reported at Coney Island.

The new bathhouse ordinance was rigidly enforced and the overcrowding of bathhouses which marked the disorders several weeks ago was nowhere in evidence. Bathhouse proprietors posted their prices and there was no sign of profiteering.

The bathers at Coney Island numbered about 250,000, but there were thousands who were unable to find bath house accommodations. More than 6,000 were at the Municipal Baths as early as 8 o'clock. At 3 o'clock the bath was filled to capacity.

Of the fifty children brought to the Coney Island station house thirty-two were still waiting to be claimed by their mothers or friends at a late hour last night. Several insignificant fights took place along the beaches, but the police stopped them. No arrests were made.

The Rockaways had their biggest day so far this year. A committee in charge of the raising of $100,000 to build a war memorial took advantage of the crowd by starting a "tag day." About $5,000 was raised during the day and night by the 400 or more young women selected fo rthe task.

Thousands of automobilists and others flocked to Long Beach. Police Captain Walter R. Barriscale sent about forty men bathers off the beach for wearing the wrong type of suit and about fifty couples were driven off for spooning. The ban on one-piece bathing suits was strictly enforced.

Henry Gottfried, a taxi driver, is in the Coney Island Hospital with stab wounds in his chest. He told the police he drove a party of six to West Twenty-first Street, Coney Island, and when he remonstrated with one of the men after his refusal to pay the fare the man stabbed him and fled. His condition was not considered serious.

"At last we seem to have both men and women obeying the law," Captain Barriscale declared, "and we are greatly pleased at the manner in which they adhere to the rules."

At Coney Island Selig Hochhauser, 31 years old, of 12 Mermaid Avenue, Coney Island, was stabbed in the chest and accused Anton Petsock, 38 years old, who lives at the foot of West Twenty-first Street. Petsock was arraigned before Magistrate O'Neill on a charge of felonious assault and held in $2,500 bail for examination Aug. 10.

Several persons were rescued from drowning during the day. Nathan Willmer of 245 New Lots Road, Brooklyn, was rescued at Arverne by Life Guard Benjamin Frankle. Margaret Maggiola, 21, of 243 Lincoln Avenue, Grantwood, N. J., was rescued by Pasquale Gramato of 74 Glenwood Avenue, that place. The young woman swam out too far, became exhausted, and her companion brought her to the shore. Two men who refused to give their names were rescued by life guards at Rockaway Beach.

The only accident reported to the Long Beach police occurred when Dr. John Kimball of Arlington, N. J., became exhausted in front of the Riviera Baths and was rescued by Al Reese, a lifeguard.

In an effort to save a young woman, who was afterward rescued by others, Robert H. Barnes of 24 Van Buren Street, Brooklyn, was drowned in the Hudson near Milton yesterday afternoon. He was in swimming with his wife and ten-year-old son and a party of friends when the woman ventured out too far and called for help. Mr. Barnes plunged into the water to help her, but had taken only a few strokes when he suddenly threw up his arms and sank without a cry. His body was recovered at once, and a doctor was summoned, but all attempts at resuscitation failed.

Fellow boarders at the cottage where Mr. and Mrs. Barnes were living said that the family entered the water immediately after a hearty dinner, and it is thought that Mr. Barnes was seized with cramps. He was about 45 years old.

PONZI TO REFUSE MONEY IN HIS NEW VENTURE

To Take Only Subscriptions Pending Federal Report, Expected Today.

Special to The New York Times.

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Charles Bonzi announced tonight that while he would open offices tomorrow under the title of the Charles Ponzi Company he would not receive money. The ban on receiving money is to run at least until the Federal auditor makes his report on Ponzi's accounts. The latter will, however, receive applications for subscriptions in the Charles Ponzi Company and presumably the subscribers will be permitted to convert their subscriptions into cash if Ponzi gets a clean bill of health from the Federal auditor.

As to the new company Ponzi merely says it will pay 1 or 2 per cent a month, with such extras as profits warrant. In the meantime the County, State and Federal investigators are saying nothing except that they are making progress.

Ponzi dropped out of sight yesterday so completely for seven hours that even his attorneys could not find him, and a report quickly spread that he was missing. He explained that he had merely hid himself to work on plans for his new company.

NURSES PUT OUT A FIRE.

Hospital Awning Blaze Extinguished Without Alarming Patients.

Fire which destroyed an awning outside the room occupied by Miss A. A. Wilson, the Day Superintendent, on the main floor of the Hahnemann Hospital, which extends from Sixty-seventh to Sixty-eighth Street on Park Avenue, last night was extinguished by nurses without alarming several hundred patients.

A call to the Fire Department was sent in by a patrolman, but when the firemen arrived the fire was out. It is believed the fire was caused by a cigarette or cigar that was thrown from the floor above, which is used as a men's dormitory.

POLICEMAN HURT IN CHASE.

Whalen Falls from Automobile While Pursuing a Motorist.

Patrolman John J. Whalen, 25 years old, of 148 Willis Avenue, the Bronx, attached to the East Fifty-first Street station, a new member of the force, reported to his precinct last night with injuries he received when he fell from an automobile in which he was chasing another machine at Fifty-fifth Street and Second Avenue.

He was treated for lacerations of the right knee and of the thumb of the right hand and placed on the sick list.

NEW PLAYS ANNOUNCED.

Edgar MacGregor and Walter Hast Announce Plays for Season.

Edgar MacGregor and Walter Hast made known yesterday their respective plans for the new theatrical season.

Mr. MacGregor, in association with William Moore Patch, now has "The Sweetheart Shop," by Anne Caldwell and Hugo Felix, playing in Chicago, and will bring it to New York, probably at the Knickerbocker Theatre, on Labor Day. A second organization will be sent on tour. "Self Defense," a melodrama by Myron C. Fagan, will be produced in Chicago by Mr. MacGregor on Aug. 29, and will come to New York after four weeks. The cast will include Hilda Spong, Vincent Coleman, Charles Abbe and Joseph Allen.

A musical version of "The Road to Yesterday," to be called "The Dream Girl," will be presented in October. Rida Johnson Young will be the author and the music will be Victor Herbert's. Other works which Mr. MacGregor plans to produce include "The Haunted Pajamas," a comedy by George C. Hazelton, with music by Francis Perry Elliott; a musical version of Edward Peple's "A Pair of Sixes," to be written by Otto Harbach and Louis A. Hirsch; "A Dislocated Honeymoon," a comedy by C. W. Bell, with songs by George Gershwin; "Two Strangers from Nowhere," by Myron C. Fagan; "Meg of the Mountains," by Edward Peple, and a musical version of "The Misleading Lady," by Otto Harbach and George Gershwin.

Walter Hast's first production will be "The Open Book," to be presented in Washington on Sept. 26 with a cast including Evelyn Nesbit and Donald Gallaher. In October he will produce "The Indian Giver," a comedy by Roy Briant, and later he will offer "A Daughter of Two Worlds," by Leroy Scott, with Emmett Corrigan heading the cast; "Miss Make Believe," a comedy by Herman Houston, in which Mr. Hast's daughter, Marjorie Hast, will appear, and a new play by Philip Bartholomae. "Martinique" and "Scandal" will be sent on tour.

EQUITY HEAD RETURNS

John Emerson, head of the Actors' Equity Association, returned yesterday on the Cunarder Imperator from England, where he conferred with the heads of similar organizations. He was accompanied by his wife, Anita Loos, writer of scenarios.

"The British Actors Association welcomed me," said Mr. Emerson, "and there will be an effort made to arrange for a combination contract that will be valid on both sides of the Atlantic. The details will be worked out by the lawyers for the British actors, but I am sure that it will be satisfactory and will protect our actors when they go over there and the British actors when they come to America. In Paris I met a committee from the Syndicate, as the French actors' association is named, and met with equal success."

When asked about the plays in London Mr. Emerson replied: "I should say that writers and players were still suffering from the shell shock of the war. The plays are dull and poorly presented."

GALLI-CURCI RETURNS.

Soprano, Glad to be Back in America, Will Rest in Catskills.

Mme. Galli-Curci, the famous Italian coloratura soprano of the Chicago Grand Opera Company, returned yesterday from a brief visit to Europe on the Cunarder Imperator and will sing at one concert at Ocean Grove, N. J., she said, before going to the Catskills for the rest of the Summer.

The singer, who looked very well after her trip, said that she met her mother in Paris, whom she had not seen for seven years, and was glad to find her in good health. She did not sing at Covent Garden in London, but may do so next season, she said.

Mme. Galli-Curci, who has made application to become a citizen of the United States, said that she was glad to be back in America.

"Europe is like an old, worn and sorrowful woman, wearied of the strife of centuries, and this country is fresh and free, like a young woman just entering life after graduating from college," she said.

BRITISH THEATRES TO UNITE

Combination of 1,200 Houses Is Planned, Affecting 5,000 Bookings.

MONTREAL, Aug. 8.—Plans are on foot for an orgnaization of legitimate theatre interests throughout the British Empire, George F. Driscoll, Vice President of the Trans-Canada Theatres, Ltd., announced here today. The combination, he said, is to include all theatre owners and administrators of England under Sir Alfred Butt, and those of Canada, New Zealand and South Africa.

Such a combination would involve actual ownership of 1,200 theatres and would affect the bookings in between 5,000 and 6,000 theatres, Mr. Driscoll said. He will sail Wednesday for England on business relating to the new organization.

WANTS INSTANT EXPULSION

Special to The New York Times.

TACOMA, Aug. 8.—The Congressional Committee on Immigration and Naturalization disbandad at Tacoma Friday after forty days of inquiry in which the Oriental problem in California, Oregon, and Washington was fully discussed.

"No official record of this committee will ever show any statement that Japanese are entering the United States surreptitiously by thousands annually," said Chairman Johnson of Tacoma.

"The Imperial Government of Japan, however, has that report from the United States, as gathered from Western newspapers.

"The coming registration of all Japanese will put the burden of proof on Orientals. An amendment to the Immigration laws should provide for the expulsion at any time of any alien surreptitiously in the United States instead o fteh present five year limitation. I am sincerely hopeful that Congress will accept this Committee's bill which provides for the admission, without red tape delay, of the peoples of the world, entitled to passports from their countries. That includes merchants, students, teachers, ministers, artists, lecturers and their wives."

WALKS AFTER 5 STORY FALL

Frank Marcino, 8 years old, of 5 Chrystie Street, while flying pigeons on a building on Mulberry Street yesterday fell five stories, striking an awning roof, which broke his fall. The lad then got up and walked home.

Bronx Railroad Man Killed.

Edward Baoylan, 28 years old, a Jersey Central railroad freight conductor, who lived at 325 East 163d Street, the Bronx, was walking through the Communipaw Yards near Communipaw Avenue, Jersey City, yesterday, when a locomotive jumped the tracks at a switch, pinning him between it and a freight car. He was dead when a physician arrived from the Jersey City Hospital.

THE SCREEN

Eric von Stroheim, whose "Blind Husbands" was one of the outstanding cinematographic works of last year, has done another photoplay of exceptional quality. It is "The Devil's Pass Key," at the Capitol Theatre this week.

Mr. von Stroheim, who, throughout the war, was known to the public entirely as the interpreter of villainous spy parts, was suddenly revealed as a director of marked insight and ability when "The Pinnacle," renamed "Blind Husbands" over his protest, was presented. In "The Devil's Pass Key" he has, in some directions, gone beyond his achievements in "The Pinnacle," and has given even more promise of future success.

It is as a cinematician, a worker with moving pictures which are inherently and independently dramatic, that Mr. von Stroheim is chiefly distinguished. His two productions, in many particulars, resemble the usual screen offerings. They are, to outward appearances and in general structure, photoplays such as are commonly known. They have plot, and people, and subtitles, action and scenery and settings similar in the main to other dramatic and narrative motion pictures. Mr. von Stroheim has not departed completely from the path the many follow. He cannot be said to have introduced something entirely new and different.

Nevertheless, his work, in many of its details, is different and new, if compared with that of the great majority of directors, for he has realized that the substance of the photoplay is the dramatic motion picture, not the subtitle, nor the spectacular scene, nor the beauty or the tricks of any star, nor the sentiment or surprises of any story, but moving pictures that have meaning, that are where they are in a photoplay because they are an integral part of it, telling in themselves some essential incident of the story, exposing suddenly some unexpected, but consistent, or anticipated, but not obvious, side of the character of one of the people in the plot. It is by his accomplishments in moving pictures, therefore, that his story is unfolded forcefully and his characters are definite and comprehensible individuals.

When Mr. von Stroheim uses a close-up, for example, it is because at that particular moment spectators are naturally straining to see some character or detail of action more closely, and when he suspends the story's action to introduce what is known as "atmosphere," it is because at the particular moment there is dramatic significance between the relation of the action and its environment. The scene of "The Devil's Pass Key" is Paris, and views of the city and its life are shown throughout the photoplay as they heighten its successive crises. Furthermore, in the pantomime of his players, Mr. von Stroheim's direction is evident. Of course, ability on the part of the actors is necessary, but many of the eloquent little things they do, and things they effectively refrain from doing, seem the result of his skillful guidance. Altogether, "The Devil's Pass Key" is a photoplay which is chiefly, and most importantly, a work in moving pictures—and this is its distinction.

Mr. von Stroheim has said that he is a continental, and he has chosen a continental story by himself and the Baroness de Meyer, based on the latter's "Clothes and Treachery," for presentation. Its plot is too lengthy and involved to be set forth here, but some suggestion of it may be given. It deals ironically with two American innocents abroad in the sophisticated, cynical and altogether physical life of a Parisian group. The irony is almost, and should be completely, tragic, but at the last moment a happy ending is contrived, which weakens, but does not destroy, the force of the story. One imagines that this ending is simply a concession on the part of Mr. von Stroheim.

An accomplished, but blind and blundering, American playwright, and his loyal and attractive, but incredibly foolish, wife, are in Paris. Through the weakness of their own powers of perception, and the villainy of a modiste and a dancer, the wife is compromised with an American Army Captain, who, at first thinking only of his own pleasure, ensnares the wife, and then, stirred by a spirit of chivalry, seeks to extricate her. At all times the wife is loyal to her husband and feels no attachment for the Captain, yet the evidence is against her, and first the gossips of Paris, and soon her husband, consider it sufficient proof. As the husband, Sam De Grasse is excellent, and Una Trevelyn makes the stupid wife real. Clyde Lillmore, as the Captain, is one of the most human and convincing persons in the play, and the pantomime of Maude George, as the modiste, and Mae Busch, as the dancer, is telling, except in a few scenes where their facial expression needs toning down.

Most suitable to a warm August afternoon, and in pictorial beauty fit for any occasion, is the Post Nature Picture, "The Alchemy of Winter," at the Rivoli this week. Some of its scenes are truly works of photographic art, their lights and shadows and subjects being so adroitly composed, and the applause they received yesterday was evidence that the just average public likes scenics more than some producers and exhibitors seem to think.

The photoplay at the Rivoli is George Broadhurst's farce, "What Happened to Jones," done in motion pictures and text, with Bryant Washburn in the leading rôle, under the direction of James Cruze. A piece of such free exaggeration and absurdity requires the personality and pantomime of a naturally comic person to make it compellingly funny, and Mr. Washburn is not naturally comic. Neither is any one else in the cast. Still, there are doubtless those who will find some fun in the story's broad humor.

8,000 AT STADIUM CONCERT.

Operatic Airs Sung by Marie Sundelius and Cecil Arden.

Eight thousand persons filled the City College Stadium nearly to its limit last night when the National Symphony Orchestra entered on the last two weeks of the two months' season of Summer concerts here.

Marie Sundelius and Cecil Arden, both of the Metropolitan, sang operatic airs and several encores apiece, while the hundred players were heard in Mendelssohn's wedding march from "Midsummer Night's Dream," Massenet's ballet music from "The Cid," Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Spanish Caprice," Grieg's "Heart Wounds,' for string orchestra, and Liszt's second "Hungarian Rhapsody."

Body Found in Bay.

The body of a man, believed to be Glenn L. Moore, about 40 years old, of 213 East Grover's Lane, Chestnut Hill, Pa., was found floating in the bay yesterday off Liberty Island. Cards and papers in the pockets of the clothing bore Moore's name and address.

MUSIC NOTES.

Caruso will sing airs from "Pagliacci," "La Boheme" and "L'Africaine" at his only concert this Summer next Saturday night in the Auditorium at Ocean Grove, N. J. The tenor, with his family, will leave Easthampton, L. I., on Thursday on a private car, which will be routed through the Pennsylvania Terminal here direct to the New Jersey resort. Earle Lewis of the Metropolitan, who is managing the Auditorium for the occasion, announces that a special train will be run after the concert for those returning to New York.

Anna Pavlowa has announced six new ballets out of eleven planned for the Russian dancer's coming American tour, while of thirty-two lesser divertissements eighteen will also be new here. Among the favorite dances to be retained in her repertoire are "Amarilla," "Chopiniana," "Flora's Awakening," "Giselle" and "Snowflakes."

Toscanini's tour with the Scala Orchestra of Milan next January has led to the abandonment of a proposed visit of the St. Cecilia Orchestra of Rome, it being deemed inadvisable to send two Italian organizations here in the same season. Among the patrons of the Toscanini enterprise are Andre de Coppet, H. H. Flagler, president of the Symphony Society, and Otto H. Kahn, of the Metropolitan.

TROOPS FOLLOW CARS OPERATED IN DENVER

DENVER, Aug. 8.—Five hundred soldiers from Camp Funston arrived in Denver at 6 A. M., today and the first street cars operated since the strike took effect began running, manned by strikebreakers.

At a meeting of the tramway workers it was decided not to return to work unless the company took back the men in a body and discharged the strikebreakers. The company refused.

Twenty cars on ten lines were operated today by strike-breakers. Motor cars loaded with troops followed most of them.

Through a similar decree, issued in response to another petition filed by Mrs. Geraghty, her minor son, John French Geraghty, will in the future be known as John Leroy French.

STATE POLICE SNIFF LIQUOR

Aid Yonkers Man, Then Charge Him with Illegally Moving Whisky.

Charged with transporting liquor without a permit, Jordan Liptner, a chauffeur of 21 Hawthorne Avenue, Yonkers, will be arraigned before United States Commissioner Hitchcock this morning. He was arrested yesterday in Armonk, east of Pleasantville, by Capt. J. A. Warner and another policeman of the State Constabulary.

They were motoring through Armonk when they found an automobile truck stuck in the ditch. The driver asked the policemen, who were in an automobile, to give him a "hand." While helping Liptner to start the policemen smelled liquor. They allege that an investigation led to the discovery of twenty-five cases of good whisky. When Liptner could not show a permit he was arrested and released under $500 bail.

TRAIN KILLS IN BAYONNE.

Unidentified Man Struck at Forty-second Street Crossing.

An unidentified man was killed early yesterday morning by a train on the Central Railroad of New Jersey at the Forty-second Street crossing in Bayonne. The body is awaiting identification at Baumuller's morgue, Bayonne.

The man wore a silver ring and a wrist watch, but on neither was there any monogram. It is believed that he was crossing the tracks when struck.

IMPERATOR BRINGS LIST OF NOTABLES

TITLED VISITORS ON LINER

Mrs. A. S. Spreckels to Reproduce Paris Legion of Honor Palace as War Memorial.

The first class list of the Cunarder Imperator, which arrived yesterday from Cherbourg and Southampton, included a number of notables in American society, who have returned from war-racked Europe to spend the remainder of the Summer at the seashore or the mountain resorts in their own country. Among them were Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., with her two daughters, Consuelo and Muriel, and their governess. On account of the recent death of William K. Vanderbilt they were all dressed in deep mourning, and Mrs. Vanderbilt said that she did not care to discuss her trip abroad, which began five weeks ago.

Mrs. Vincent Astor, who looked remarkably well and wore a light tailor-made costume with fawn-colored, long silk coat and hat to match, returned on the liner from a short visit to her mother-in-law, Lady Ribblesdale, who was Mrs. Ava Willing Astor. She was met at the pier by Vincent Astor and his secretary, who had to wait outside the Customs lines as no passes are granted to meet incoming liners except for sickness. They will go on their yacht Christina to Newport and open their home there, Beechwood, for the season.

Mrs. Frederick C. Havemeyer was also on board, as were Lady Honor Ward and Mrs. Katherine Bowlker, sister-in-law of the late Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, who was met by members of the family at the pier. Two motor cars conveyed the party out to Oyster Bay when her baggage had been examined.

Memorial to California Soldiers.

Another passenger was Mrs. Adolph S. Spreckels of San Francisco, who returned with her brother, Gustave de Bretville. She said that she was going to erect upon a hill overlooking San Francisco Bay one of the finest buildings so far projected in the United States as a war memorial for the soldiers of California who fell in the campaign against Germany.

"The building will be a reproduction of the Legion of Honor Palace on the Quai d'Orsay in Paris," she said, "and will be of the same size and as far as possible of the same material—marble. The French Government will furnish many of the rooms with choice art treasures, ancient Gobelin tapestries and objects of art. The Duchesse de Vendome, a sister of King Albert, will furnish a room, and Queen Marie of Rumania will furnish another."

Mrs. Spreckels added that while she was in France this time she had taken out food and clothing supplies in camions to the poor of the devastated regions.

Lord Maitland, who was accompanied by Lady Maitland, came over, he said, to look into shipping and marine insurance conditions in this country in behalf of the interests he is connected with in London. He said the chief trouble in England was the labor question, which was a very serious one. The men did not care to work, no matter how short the hours. When there was a public holiday at the beginning of the week it took them the remaining five days to get over it. This was not through drink, he added, but simply a sheer distaste for labor in any shape or form.

Nephew of Lloyd George Here.

Major E. Harran, head of the Military Control at the British Passport Office during the war, arrived on the Imperator with Lloyd Roberts, a nephew of Premier Lloyd George, to look into labor conditions. The Major said that the corporation they represented, Brunner, Mond & Co., of Norwich, Cheshire, was one of the largest steel works in England and employed 12,000 men.

Sir Harry McGowan, chairman of General Motors Company in England, was another passenger. He said that he could not discuss business on the Sabbath.

Charles H. Strong, Secretary of the New York Bar Association, who went over to lecture in England for the Unitarians, said he did not at first meet with the success he had expected. During his lectures he was constantly heckled by members of the audience who asked "Why are you in the United States interfering with England in her solution of the Irish question?" This became so persistent, Mr. Strong continued, that he had to cancel his original lecture tour, the subject of which was "How the Unitarians of New York Increased Their Membership by 10,000 in One Year." Afterward he gave lectures in many towns and villages in England and Wales on the topic of American-English comity, which were very well received.

Sir William Jury, head of the British Metro Pictures Corporation, arrived in company with R. A Rowland, President of the Metro Pictures Corporation in New York, and will be his guest during his stay in this country. Sir William had not visited America for eight years, and during his stay here he will make extensive investigation into the possibilities of the transfer to England of the best of the American film productions.

W. E. Corey a Passenger.

William E. Corey, the former steel magnate, was also a passenger. He said that the prominent Britons with whom he conversed in London did not seem to be alarmed over the Bolshevist advance in Poland. The labor situation in England was serious, Mr. Corey added, but he felt sure they would settle their own troubles and would brook no interference by foreign agitators.

Ernest R. Graham, architect of the Equitable Building, returned from a visit to London, where he went to inspect the work of the extension of Selfridge's store in Oxford Street, near Hyde Park, and said that when completed it would be the largest department store on the other side of the Atlantic. There was much delay in the work, Mr. Graham added, because of failure to deliver raw material necessary. He had never seen such prosperity in rural districts in England, France and Switzerland as he had on this trip.

Giobatti Pescetto, an Italian merchant of Baltimore who was returning with his bride from Italy via Cherbourg, failed to declare seven rings valued at $1,000 and they were detained by the customs officials for investigation today. He said the greater part of his baggage, containing his wife's wedding presents, had been bonded through to Baltimore.

The Imperator had 470 first, 667 second and 1,356 steerage passengers, making a total of 2,493 on board.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—Gamblers who have held sway in all parts of the Mexican Republic for many years have been ordered to close their games.

The Chambers of Commerce of Tampico and Monterey had protested to the President of the republic against the spread of gambling, which was ruining commerce in Laredo, Tampico, Monterey and Juarez, where gambling was exploited by concessions obtained from the Government of Carranza.

Several games which were running in Mexico City have been ordered to close at once, and de la Huerta has stated that all games of chance must be stopped.

48 CASES OF TYPHUS REPORTED IN COLONIAS

Town Has Been Without Water for Three Days, While Crowds Wait to See Villa March Through.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—Forty-eight cases of typhus are reported in San Pedro de las Colonias, State of Coahuila, where General Francisco Villa is expected to pass en route to Torreon for his formal surrender to the Government.

A staff correspondent of The Universal, who sends the report, says the town has been without water for forty-eight hours. Thousands of persons have gathered in the town to see Villa.

DEPOSED PRESIDENT COMING

LIMA, Peru, Aug. 7.—José Gutierrez Guerra, disposed president of Bolivia, with his children and several friends, passed through Callao yesterday aboard the English liner Essequibo, en route to New York. All he would say when asked for an interview was:

"My country in the future will judge my acts. For the present all is very uncertain and dark.

"I am going to the States to place my children in school and will devote my attention to their education."

The former President showed signs of the mental strain through which he has passed.

Spends $742,767 on War Relief.

The Centenary Committee on Emergency and Conservation of the Methodist Episcopal Church has spent $742,767 to date, it was announced yesterday, for relief work in Armenia, France, Italy, Austria, Germany, Hungary and other European countries.

ASSERTS AMERICANS PILOT CANTU PLANES

ANOTHER REBEL GIVES UP

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 6.—Two airplanes, believed to be part of the equipment of Estaban Cantu, the revolting Governor of Lower California, have circled over El Colorado, Lower California, exchanging shots with the Government garrison. No hits were scored. The Democrata says the planes were piloted by Americans.

The Foreign Office has been informed by Keicho Ito, the Japanese Chargé, thaet Cantu would not be aided in his revolt by the Japanese.

MEXICALI, Lower California, Aug. 8 (Associated Press). — Aviators John Goree, American, and Fred Dato, Mexican, who have been missing since early yesterday, were located today. Their plane landed on the beach of the Gulf of California, with propeller broken, thirty miles southeast of Mayor. Dato is a brother-in-law of Governor Cantu.

Remove Vera Cruz Governor.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—Antonio Nava, Provisional Governor of the State of Vera Cruz, has been relieved of his office, by order of Provisional President de la Huerta, because the President considered that Nava had exceeded his powers in recognizing the State Legislature and calling State elections.

General J. Ramon Romero, former rebel commander, has arrived at Villa Hermosa, State of Tobasco, with 600 men, to await orders of the War Department, says a newspaper dispatch.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MEXICO CITY, Aug. 8.—Señor Robert Pesqueira has arrived at Mexicali, where he will act as a representative of the Mexican Government working with American military forces along the border to prevent friction.

It is rumored here that Cantu has asked for a conference with Pesqueira, offering to make certain conditions for reconciliation.

Dr. Straton to Have Assistant.

The Rev. Dr. John Marvin Dean, of Chicago, has accepted a call to become associate pastor of the Calvary Baptist Church, Fifty-seventh Street, west of Sixth Avenue. The pastor is the Rev. Dr. John Roach Straton. Dr. Dean will begin his duties here September 1.

Disinfection Is an Every-day Necessity

Disease germs work twenty-four hours a day—attempting to destroy health and spread contagious disease.

And if you are to combat this constant menace to health successfully, frequent disinfection is necessary. Daily disinfection will guard your establishment and your home against disease germs.

Lysol Disinfectant

At the office: Have a solution of Lysol Disinfectant used in cuspidors, toilet-rooms, dark corners, on floors and rugs.

In the home: Have a solution of Lysol Disinfectant sprinkled regularly in sinks, drains, toilets, garbage cans.

Remember, there is but one genuine Lysol Disinfectant—made, bottled, signed, and sealed by Lehn & Fink, Inc.

Lysol Toilet Soap

The August Furniture Sale Is Now in Its Second Week

Who were the Buccaneers?

is a question often asked by visitors to Southern Florida, where tradition and some tangible proofs show that they were plunderers of the sea and robbers of the Gulf Coast. For nearly two centuries they were busy upon the Caribbean Sea and off lower Florida.

The rich city of Panama was once invaded by a shipload of these, who crossed the Isthmus of Darien. King Charles II. is reported to have knighted their leader.

On a little island off Florida in the Gulf of Mexico, which we have repeatedly visited, we have seen what settlers declare to be relics of the buccaneers' days.

Buccaneering seems to have passed away, but

There is much Bushwhacking

these days in this and other countries. It can be seen in trade, commerce, manufacturing, promoting new stock companies and some of the professions.

It has been proven that there is but one sure foundation for banks, trust companies and business enterprises to build upon.

HAVING IT BOTH WAYS.

Governor Cox's attack was so unexpected by the Republicans that they were not at first sure which one of their flanks he had struck. He had really struck and crumpled up both their flanks. But they seek to make a defense, now on this wing, now on that. Senator NEW sallies forth to declare that the Governor's words about the League are so weak and ambiguous as to be pitiful. But at the same time a member of the Republican National Committee hurries to the front to affirm that Mr. Cox's adhesion to the League is so uncompromising that he must be fought off at all hazards. This uncertain sound of the Republican trumpet is nowhere more conspicuous—or, we may add, more laughable—than in its party press of this city. Here is what The Tribune said: "Those who expected Governor Cox to speak out concerning the League cherished a vain hope. His three-column contribution does not contain a single plain and unequivocal declaration." But of the same part of the Governor's speech The Sun writes: "This is explicit and specific. It is commendable for its directness and candor. It is admirable for its unqualified commitment."

Well, the Republicans can't have it both ways. They can't shout in the same breath that Governor Cox is a crawling evader and also a bold defier. Which is it, gentlemen? You will find that you must agree among yourselves what the battle-cry is to be before you can with any hope of success call out to your puzzled followers: "Now, then, all together!"

GOVERNOR COX ON STRIKES.

For two days at least last week Denver was the scene of a ferocious private war between the strikers, or the destructionists and criminals who seldom miss an opportunity to take advantage of a strike to indulge their instincts, and the city, the State and, finally, the Federal authorities. A newspaper office was wrecked, doubtless by men who love to bellow about free speech and a free press. Three lives were lost. Many persons were injured. Armored tanks, machine guns, at last the United States Army, which obeys orders and is not afraid of anybody's vote, had to defend the public safety and the law. The whole pitiful business illustrates the barbarism of the strike, a survival for which a sane substitute must be adopted, not merely in the interests of the community, but of the strikers themselves, whose cause, be it just or unjust, suffers fatally in public opinion from these too common corollaries of disorder.

Whether there was or was not on the part of the Denver Mayor and police that early and stern repression of the first symptoms of riot which prevents it, we have no means of knowing. The correct and just conduct of Government, local, State or Federal, in case of strikes, has not been stated better or more clearly by anybody than by Governor Cox, who has "passed through many serious industrial troubles." In his speech of acceptance he says that "if strikes are prolonged, public opinion always settles them. * * * It may at times be necessary for Government to inquire into the facts of a tieup, but facts and not conclusions should be submitted. The determining form of unprejudiced thought will do the rest. During this process governmental agencies must give a vigilant eye to the protection of life and property and maintain firmness but absolute impartiality. This is always the real test, but if official conduct combines courage and fairness, our governmental institutions come out of these affairs untarnished by distrust."

Unfortunately, local authorities in too many cases have been timid and unfair. Governor Cox, however, has acted out what he talks. He was both brave and impartial in the serious labor disturbances in Ohio last Fall. In a circular to Mayors and Sheriffs he laid down specifically their course of action. It was no business of the Government, he said, to furnish policemen or soldiers to man street cars, for instance, nor in any way to make of them the instruments to bring the strike to an end, but > if the plant resumes, and disorder of any sort ensues as the result of employés going into or out of the factory, then that becomes an affair of governmental concern, and the Mayor or Sheriff must suppress violence and arrest those who violate the laws. I shall exact this from all local officers.

"Picketing" must go no further than moral persuasion." Officers must be careful. "By an open, frank and firm contact of public officers with both the representatives of the employers and employés" trouble can often be avoided. No request that he has made of either side in these disputes has "ever gone unheeded." Justice and the law must be maintained unflinchingly:

> We are in the midst of unprecedented conditions, but if we devote ourselves to the single thought of making Government the agency of justice and the instrument of bringing swift punishment to those who violate the laws of this Commonwealth, we will pass through the storm safely.
> No man must be permitted to define the rules of his individual conduct. The law is supreme. I shall expect its enforcement by local officers. When they have rendered their utmost effort, and failed to meet conditions, then the State will act promptly.

Impartial between employer and employé, impartially severe against and instant to check disorder—that is Governor Cox's precept and practice.

GEORGIA SCENES.

If The Atlanta Constitution and press dispatches which it quotes aren't mistaken, that sometime Populist and choleric pacifist, Mr. THOMAS E. WATSON, now a candidate for the Democratic nomination for United States Senator from Georgia, is roaring and raging against the American Legion, which he seems to imagine is composed entirely of officers. Former army officers, he is reported to have said at a public meeting, "were responsible for the sentiment" against him, and his colleague in patriotism, limited, former Senator HARDWICK, who wants to be Governor. "These same officers," the passionate Sage of Thomson cries, "while in the army had forced Georgia boys to stand in muddy trenches in France, in a pouring rain, without shelter, the exposure resulting in the deaths of many." "That's a lie," yelled somebody, probably an A. E. F. man, in the audience.

This was impolite. Mr. WATSON is a historian. He is also essentially a poet. His teeming fancy produces many little inaccuracies.

The lie is being "hurled" freely at the Watsonian sons of rhetoric. The other day one of them proclaimed that the American Legion is controlled by and largely consists of officers, "a set of winebibbers and neglecters of duty while in France." Up gets a young man in the crowd, asks leave to say a word or two. He is a member of the legion, enlisted as a private; "and I know and you know that what you have said is a lie."

Evidently Mr. WATSON's campaign is on his usual high plane. So much the better for Governor DORSEY, the one loyal Democrat who seeks to succeed Senator HOKE SMITH.

AMERICA AND POLAND.

The fact that our Government is compelled to consider the Polish crisis and may be forced to take action of some kind is seized upon by hasty Republicans as one proof more that President WILSON is the author of all evil. If he had not put among his cursed Fourteen Points the restoration and independence of Poland our skirts would have been clear. But this is to forget that if Mr. WILSON had not got us into the Polish mess Senator LODGE would have done it. His speech in the Senate on Dec. 21, 1918, ought to be kept at the elbow of every Republican editor, printed in large type. It is a fountain of all wisdom. And one of the cooling jets from it is the assertion, in Senator LODGE's most magisterial manner, that a necessary stipulation in the peace to be made with Germany was the establishment of "a large, powerful and independent Polish State."

Let no one suppose that Mr. LODGE was indulging in any sentimental nonsense about righting Poland's historic wrongs or meeting the national aspirations of the Polish people. He was thinking only of the punishment of Germany and the future manacling of her limbs. He wanted to "hem Germany in," so that she could attempt no conquests in Russia or in the East. To that end "physical guarantees" were needed in the shape of strong buffer countries, and only as one such did the Massachusetts Senator picture Poland. But his demand that there be a restored and vigorous and self-governing Poland was just as clear and imperative as was WILSON's.

There is also in this speech by Senator LODGE a soothing word for the distressed Tribune. It is now tracing all our woes and the tribulations of Europe to the fact that no "word," at once "ringing and courageous," came from the White House in 1918 demanding an "unconditional surrender" by Germany. For lack of an unconditional surrender we see today "the sickening results: France and England must send armies to Poland." It would be of no use to ask The Tribune to take Marshal FOCH's word for it that the armistice was a "capitulation intégrale." But it will hardly deny that Mr. LODGE was, as always, infallible when he declared in his speech of December, 1918, that an armistice had been signed "which amounts to an unconditional surrender on the part of the Germans."

PRICES AND BUSINESS.

The Department of Justice states that the reduction in the cost of clothing is greater than in the cost of food, and claims credit for foiling the conspiracy to keep garments dear. The Department of Labor brings its figures down no later than June, when wages and food costs were still rising. Trade reports deal more with single commodities than with averages and such artificialities as family totals. It is both encouraging and amusing to note that the trade facts contradict both departments. Dun's Index shows that meat is dearer and clothing only a little cheaper. But there is a marked decline in breadstuffs, as might be expected considering the improved crop prospects.

The gain of the wheat crop as it ripened is being repeated in the case of corn; the hope of a three billion bushel yield gives hope also of cheaper meat. Moreover, although exports are still large, the last fiscal year's exports of foodstuffs decreased $360,000,000. With the supply so much larger and the foreign taking so much less, the result is that the market is unable to maintain the price fixed by the Government last year. During the week more than a million bales of cotton was added to the crop estimate, but the price did not fall as might seem indicated. The reason is that American cotton supplies the world's cheap clothing, and consumption has exceeded production during the war years. The wool supply is larger for the cheap than for the fine grades, and dear cotton and cheap wool are unusually near together.

In its July report the Department of Labor finds wholesale prices lower, and reports a slump in the luxury trades. Imports of diamonds are smaller by a quarter, and the candy trade has fallen off so much that the confectioners want to sell their surplus sugar for family consumption. The weekly trade reports say that the volume of business is still well sustained, but that it is "no longer featured by widespread extravagance in personal expenditure," and "indications of the genuineness of the reaction in life's necessities are becoming more general." Other trade observers remark that costs of production and distribution ought to be lower with the new railway facilities now to be expected. Their reason is that the tide of rising prices turned with the check to inflation and that we have passed from a sellers' to a buyers' market. Goods have not been dear because they were scarce, but because the usual supply has been bought regardless of price by the expenditure of domestic tax money and $10,000,000,000 loaned to foreign buyers. Those sustaining forces are withdrawn. Foreigners are no longer borrowing, and are increasing their own production.

Our taxes are to be reorganized and reduced. We are returning to more normal financial conditions, and production will overtake demand. Goods will be sold from now on at the bid rather than the asked price, as buyers tighten their purse strings, partly from thrift, and partly because of a lessening wage fund. Those who were extravagant with easy wage money will find scant sympathy from those whose wages were slow to rise, and those who gave a fair day's work for their wages will find themselves preferred over the slackers, who will find employment harder to get on their own terms. War prosperity is usually short and unwholesome. There will be few regrets if it appears that the boom supported by war inflation is over.

JAPAN IN KOREA.

It was announced a few days ago in Tokio that the Japanese garrison in Korea was to be increased by 4,800 men on account of "unsettled conditions." This seems to be a significant commentary on the success of the slight modifications in the policy of Japan toward her continental dependency which were made last year as a consequence of the publicity given to the Korean national movement and its repression. Japan has undoubtedly made some improvement, but conditions are still unsettled.

Meanwhile the semi-official press in Seoul announces that "Japan has no intention of changing its policy of Japanizing the Korean people and believes that assimilation will promote the welfare of the Koreans." This latter opinion may be true, and it is plain enough that assimilation is to the interest of Japan. No Japanese Government could be criticised for trying it, but a wise Government does not persist in a policy which has been proved a failure. Racial assimilation will certainly help Japan, and might possibly help the Koreans, but the Koreans will not have it. Japanese administration of Korea has certainly been more efficient than the old Korean administration, though it is probable that the Japanese get most of the benefits and the Koreans are the subjects of most of the efficiency.

But whatever the merits of Japanese rule and the policy of assimilation, they do not work. Japan cannot let Korea come under the influence of a hostile power, and a Japanese Monroe Doctrine covering that nation would be entirely justified. But neither in Korea, in Siberia nor in China does the Japanese policy have any resemblance to the Monroe Doctrine. After sixteen years of Japanese rule in Korea, after a number of honestly intended reforms which were introduced last year, it is still necessary to strengthen the garrison. To realistic statesmen this might suggest the desirability of a change of policy.

The spirit of nationalism has its inconveniences. It made most of the trouble in the nineteenth century and it is making a good deal today. When it conflicts with economic determinism, as it often does, believers in the materialistic conception of history try to ignore it, as Mr. KEYNES endeavored to do—with some remarkable exceptions—in his famous book. But it will not be ignored. Whether you like it or not, it is a fact, and a statesman can no more ignore it than a farmer can ignore the weather.

THE "ZONE ROUGE" IN FRANCE.

La France is "an American magazine" which aims to promote Franco-American sympathy and understanding and is conducted by a group of public-spirited citizens. Recent numbers have contained notable records of the revival of agriculture and industry in the devastated region, photographs showing the progress which has been made in rebuilding churches and canals, and significant statistics as to the great recent increases in taxation, thanks to which France hopes to fund and eventually wipe out her wartime debt. Most impressive of all, however, is the story of a French failure as told by CLAUDE RIVIERE.

In certain devastated districts the villages had been so thoroughly pulverized and the soil so completely blasted that it seemed impossible to repopulate them. Not a house was remaining, nor a tree; and instead of the familiar green herbage there came "a curious yellowish grass, utterly unlike anything seen before in this part of the country." With a characteristically dramatic instinct, the authorities planned to keep these districts as they were, and especially such places as had been the scene of signal and memorable examples of German barbarity. They were to be an example and a warning—the "Red Zone." But these dramatists reckoned without their hero—and heroine. Deep in the heart of the Zone Rouge, amid scenes of "volcanic" devastation, M. RIVIERE saw through his field glass a tiny green square upon a distant hillside. It proved to be a cultivated field, "an oasis in the desert." Disregarding the new law which "protected" the Zone Rouge, a peasant had returned to the site of his old home, had himself removed the unexploded shells from his soil—twenty-four of them were lined up by the road—and so had established himself as a producer once more, if only on a tiny strip. "We have always plowed the land," he said to M. RIVIERE; "we must plow again." In what was once the village of Nanteuil la Fosse, M. RIVIERE found an old woman who was somehow managing to live alone in the dismal wreck of her home, though she had to walk ten miles to buy food. She said simply that she wanted to die in her own house—"Je veux mourir dans ma maison." A more cheerful sight in the Zone Rouge is a village which formerly housed 800 people, all but five of whom have returned.

A correspondent of The London Times bears similar witness. The most recent battlefield guidebook contains a picture entitled: "All That Is Left of Hooge—the Signboard." But the traveler finds that a new Hooge is already rising upon this site of so many bitter scenes in the battles for Ypres. Even the local guides have their troubles. One of them, having announced to his tourists that Guillemont was so completely destroyed that no attempt could ever be made to rebuild it, discovered upon reaching the site that four houses had been erected in his brief absence and were already occupied, the children playing in the streets.

From the nation to which such things are possible much is to be expected. Heroic as it was in war, it has equal vigor and tenacity in the arts of peace.

GOVERNMENT IN IRELAND.

General MACREADY, who now has the Irish Command, explains that there is no intention of proclaiming martial law in Ireland. There is a difference between that and the quasi-military courts to be set up by the bill which has just passed the House of Commons. The necessity for such tribunals grows out of the entire breaking down of the system of justice in Ireland. Judges and juries are terrorized. Abhorrent crimes are committed, yet no one is brought to trial. Assassins are known, yet they are seldom prosecuted, and when they are, juries—if a jury can be got at all—will not convict even on the most conclusive evidence. Cardinal LOGUE and other members of the Catholic hierarchy have expressed the utmost horror at the long series of brutal murders that have made recent weeks seem like a drawn-out Bloody Assizes. The Dublin Chamber of Commerce has cried out upon the abominable crimes that are making the whole community unsafe. What is the Government to do? Unless it is to lie down helpless before murderers, it must devise some legal machinery to bring them to justice, and to protect innocent people from sporadic assassination. Merely this is what the new Irish bill proposes to do; and no Government worthy of the name could be content without trying to do as much.

This is not saying that the ultimate responsibility for Irish misgovernment and outrages must not be thrown back upon England. English statesmen perceive and admit this with a unanimity never before seen. Their cry is, Who will show us a way to get out of the Irish misery? Even while the Government feels itself compelled to resort to repressive measures to make life safe in Ireland, it is calling upon the Irish people to bring forward a plan of governing themselves. Any plan that leaves Ireland within the British Empire will be given a fair trial, if the Irish themselves ask it. LLOYD GEORGE has undertaken to meet and treat with the Sinn Feiners. He has been urged to give Ireland a Dominion Government. Sir HORACE PLUNKETT continues to argue this. So do some business men from Belfast. But the Prime Minister has replied that there is no evidence that the Sinn Fein leaders would accept a Dominion Government. If they would, he would gladly give it to them. But so long as men like GRIFFITH and VALERA scorn the very idea of a government for Ireland such as Canada enjoys, and insist that nothing will be tolerated by them except an absolutely independent Irish Republic, no negotiations with them can lead to anything. There seems little hope of any settlement until Irish crime is put down, or subsides because it is found to be fruitless as well as horrible, and Irish sense begins to assert itself.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

Among the opponents of prohibition as now enforced none is heard with more or better deserved respect than the doctors, and there are many of them who complain in varying degrees of bitterness that the new regulations as to the prescribing of alcohol not only impose on them a wearisome amount of record-keeping, but restrict them in the exercise of professional discretion to an extent that does or may imperil the safety of their patients to a serious extent.

These are grave accusations, of course, but against them can be balanced the fact that they do not come from all doctors. Some of them—nobody seems to know just how many—are giving expression to no sense of grievance, and are continuing practice either without exceeding in their use of alcohol the limit set by the law or by getting along entirely without it.

In discussing this subject editorially, this month's American Medicine says that "unfortunately, medical tradition has assigned to alcohol a far more important place in the treatment of the simpler forms of disease than scientific investigation or physiologic results warrant." No longer, it declares, is there the old dependence on alcohol, and the prescription of this drug "has undergone a marked decline"—a decline, by the way, that began long before the passage of the Eighteenth Amendment or the Volstead act. It had gone far a decade ago, when the American Medical Association, in annual convention, adopted by a large vote a resolution to the effect that in medicine nothing could be done with alcohol that could not be better done with other substances.

A Separation Likely to be Resented.

In the same issue of American Medicine from which quotation has just been made Dr. T. S. BLAIR, Chief of the Pennsylvania Drug Control Bureau, in an article on the present narcotic laws as they affect the physician's practice, couples the prescribing of morphine and of alcohol, and says that an increasing number of doctors are excluding both wholly from their armamentarium.

Dr. BLAIR notes as a fact important as well as interesting that two-thirds of the doctors in Pennsylvania prescribe each year only enough morphine to make for them an average utilization of that drug amounting to two and one-third drams. The doctors constituting the remainder of the profession in the State—one-third of them all, that is—prescribe 90 per cent. of the total amount of morphine used in prescribing and dispensing.

Of the men in the first class—the two-thirds—Dr. BLAIR says that "they include the most able and highly educated members of the profession, men who are busy, who meet all sorts of emergencies, and who are the real working force in the profession." Of the second class—the one-third—he says that it includes "many well-meaning and hard-working physicians, but less educated, the ones more advanced in years and less discriminating."

The doctor does not make explicitly a like division of doctors into those who prescribe much alcohol and those who prescribe little or none of it, but his article almost forces the deduction that in his opinion the like division would be correct.

The Mayor Unearths a Conspiracy.

Mayor HYLAN is not the first, and he will not be the last, to protest against the assertion, or even the admission, that what is called higher education is not for all—is worse than wasted on some. It is his resentment of any such idea, or at least it is kind to think so, that explains his denunciation of attempts by the great "foundations" to influence the management and curriculum of our public schools.

The Rockefellers and the Garys, the Mayor angrily said last week, want to train up a class of factory workers—of men and women, that is, who have learned in school so little that they will realize their ability to fill only mechanical positions—and be content to remain in them.

If any such conspiracy existed, of course the Mayor's indignation would be justified, but he would have enormous difficulty in proving that "the Rockefellers and the Garys" ever have said or done anything indicative of a desire to deprive any boy or girl of an opportunity, a fair chance, to acquire all the education which he or she had the desire and the ability to acquire.

But the Mayor himself, probably, would admit that mechanical positions must be filled—that wood must be hewed and water drawn—if the world is to get along and life continue. As somebody must do this work, it seems advisable that somebody should receive the sort and amount of training that would best fit him for doing it with advantage to himself and his fellows.

And the Mayor, curiously enough, scolded because in the public schools, as now conducted—certainly through no wish or fault of "the Rockefellers and Garys"—the brighter pupils are not allowed to go faster or further than the dull ones. It would be interesting to hear what suggestion he has to make for the curing of that unquestionably real and deplorable condition. Can it be that he, too, would divide the children into two classes, the clever and the stupid? And if he did, what would he do for and with each class?

This Secret Mustn't Be Revealed.

It would be pleasant to think, or at least the thought could be endured with something of resignation, that the sailors who tried to smuggle into this port, last week, a lot of feathers once worn by the birds called of paradise wanted the feathers for their own personal adorning.

The sailors still would have been violators of the law, of course, and for any human beings to be that is deeply saddening to the good and wise. The desire, however, to hang about the person bright colored objects, whether feathers or shiny pebbles, is natural as well as strong in savages, and it lingers long after mental development has begun. That rough fellows like sailors should have it would be so easily understandable as to be pardonable no less easily.

But as it happens, there is no probability that these sailors brought the pretty feathers here for their own decoration. They have passed beyond that stage of civilization. To tell for whom the importation really was made would be too painful—it is a fact so depressing that, at the risk of paying heavy Freudian penalties, it shall be driven down into the subconscious and allowed to do there its very worst.

PROHIBITION AND HEALTH.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Your issue of July 24 contains a letter from the pen of Fred Puleston, M. D., Daytona Beach, Fla., in which the doctor made some statements that must not be allowed to go unchallenged, for not only will they mislead the public but they are not fundamentally true.

I do not intend to enter the controversy between the doctor and the Western Christian as to whether the Church or the doctors did more to eliminate disease in the human race. There should be no argument on that point; every intelligent person who is familiar with the history of religion and its activities and the history of medicine and its activities knows how difficult a road science had to travel in the past, because of the passive and active opposition to it of the Church. A perusal of the work of Draper on the "Conflict of Religion and Science" will help to settle that question.

Now as to the points at issue. As arguments in favor of the use of alcohol he states that "as a general rule the female half of the human race and the children are not users of alcohol, and therefore women and children ought to be the healthy half, but they are not. Men as a general thing are infinitely more healthy than women, but if alcohol was a disease producer it should be the other way."

To view the subject of health of the community from such an aspect only reminds me of the story of the church elder from a small village who visited New York. On his return his friends asked him of some of his experiences in the great city, and he very solemnly told them that the only thing he saw was the tower of the Woolworth Building, for did not the holy book say that you must not gaze upon sinners. Evidently the doctor looks upon the human body, its functions and activities from the standpoint of the use or non-use of alcohol only. He fails to take into consideration that the woman, in addition to the ordinary physiological processes, is subject to the greatest physical and mental strain because of the part she takes in the propagation of the race. Does he know of anything in the male half of the human race which compares with it? To me it is really surprising how well the average woman is.

As to his second proposition. "Can any doctor tell me of a drug or combination of drugs which will do all that good whisky, good brandy or good wine will do?" The doctor's investigations of alcohol must have carried him further than most of the research work done on alcohol in some of our best laboratories. Is there a difference in the therapeutic effect of the alcohol contained in whisky, brandy or wine? But aside from that his supposition is about as sound as the logic displayed by the farmer boy who returned from his school, and whose father, in attempting to test his knowledge, took off the ring from his finger and put it in his hand and said, "My son, I have in my hand something which is round, and it has a hole in the centre; what is it?" His son, after going through a severe mental strain, replied "It is a millstone." To speak of alcohol as a drug and alcohol as a "drink" is about as much difference as between the ring and the millstone, although both are round and both have holes in the centre.

Every physician, especially the surgeon, knows that there is not a better or more useful drug than opium or some of its derivatives when judiciously used. Is there a physician anywhere who does not condemn its use indiscriminately? The public, once for all, must be made to realize that the use of alcohol as a drug in disease is quite different from the use and action of alcohol as a "drink" in health.

In reference to his theory of the relation of coffee to high blood pressure, I feel that we know so little about the causes of high blood pressure and hardening of the blood vessels that everything in our diet from "soup to nuts" has been held responsible for pernicious effects upon our systems. However, we humans must be consoled by the fact that in the Philadelphia Zoological Garden 1⅓ per cent. of the animals that were examined were found to suffer from hardening of the arteries, and I am sure coffee is not indulged in by the animals in the Philadelphia Zoo.

THE NEXT SENATE VOTE.

Will the Opponents of the League Hold Out if the People Are For It?

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Taft sets forth at frequent intervals, in his engaging way, the reasons why he intends to keep faith with his party in spite of the announced Republican purpose to scuttle the League. We are, in fact, led to believe that Mr. Taft would vote the Democratic ticket this Fall if he really thought it would help the League.

But he proceeds to reiterate, as in nearly every article he has written since Congress adjourned, that it is mathematically impossible that even a sweeping Democratic victory could help the League. There are but fifteen Republican Senators whose terms expire this year and even though Democrats were elected to all these seats, there would still remain thirty-three Senators who have twice voted against the League without the Lodge reservations. Therefore, Mr. Taft regretfully decides that since there will be enough Republican votes to defeat the treaty in any case, he would be unable to help the cause by voting with the Democrats.

Mr. Taft's mathematics are correct. But Mr. Wilson is also good at figures and has a keen enough insight to have long ago realized this obvious aspect of the case. Therefore, we must assume that he had a very definite idea in mind when he proposed that the question be settled by "a great and solemn referendum."

In proposing this novel experiment in democracy Mr. Wilson apparently proceeds on the assumption that the Senate must reflect the sentiment of the people—that the Senate would pass the treaty and League if the country were shown to be strongly in favor of it. Mr. Taft, on the other hand, bases his conclusion of "mathematical impossibility" on the assumption that the vote of the Republican Senator, once cast, is as immutable as the law of the Medes and Persians.

But it is by no means so certain as Mr. Taft seems to feel that all the Republican Senators would place their own opinion above that of the country and would defy their constituency. That is an unusual stand for such an eminent jurist to take and should warrant explanation or comment by him.

However, regardless of his own personal views of the efficacy of a nation-wide referendum and the result of that referendum on those Senators whose terms do not expire this year, Mr. Taft owes it to himself, the country, and to the thousands who have followed and applauded his championship of the League, no longer to persist in this deliberate ignoring of Mr. Wilson's assumption—the very basis of American representative government.

The issue revolves around this central question of whether the will of the people shall be the Senate's will. But up to the present time Mr. Taft has not deigned to give a moment's consideration to this fundamental premise of the Democrats and, therefore, he can hardly expect his conclusions to be taken as final and valid. He should give at least casual consideration in any statement leading up to his oft repeated conclusion of a "mathematical impossibility." To do less would be to lay himself open to the charge of sophistry—unwittingly, we must believe.

The thousands of people who respect and admire Mr. Taft for his championship of an unemasculated League, and who are for the League before they are for the Republican Party—or the Democratic—are waiting to hear his final analysis of the situation. They do not think he will deny that Senators often change their minds. They are sure that he has not forgotten that the United States Senate, which one year decisively defeated woman's suffrage, the following year passed it. They want to hear his opinion of what would and what should be the effect on the Republican Senators if the country should vote overwhelmingly for the League. Would they not and should they not modify their votes to correspond with the temper of the electorate? Would not Mr. Taft's "unanswerable argument" then stand forth in all its unsoundness?

What, for instance, would be the attitude of Republican Senator McLean of Connecticut, a Lodge reservationist, whose term will not expire for three years, if his "bitter ender" colleague, Senator Brandegee, should be decisively defeated by a Democrat who made the League the chief campaign issue? Might not he be led to reconsider his position on the treaty and vote in accordance with the sentiment of the State? And might not many another Senator go and do likewise? And might not the League be saved in just that way? It will be if Mr. Taft and other liberal Republicans will reason without unconscious partisan bias and think enough of this great ideal to be Leaguers first and Republicans afterward.

Fight for the Treaty and League.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

William H. Crawford's letter in today's TIMES is the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth, in a nutshell. Editorials, letters and magazine articles, pro and con, we have had for two years, but none have said in such little space the naked truth as this letter. It should find its space in the Democratic campaign literature, to give it the fruitfulness it deserves.

Treaty killers, humanity killers and business killers we have tolerated and have, but with world conditions aflame with Bolshevism, is it not time that the underlying sanity of Americans got together to fight for what is right as one man, just as we fought in the great war, regardless of the poisonous ambitions of so-called leaders who are as blind to the nation's perils as the monkeys in the zoo—pure and simple political mountebanks?

Men who fiddled while Russia burned up with the fire now spreading to all of Europe, and infection sufficiently among us here, are not the Abraham Lincoln type of men, but Woodrow Wilson is. Mistakes he made, but they were mistakes of devotion to a great cause—a cause tremendously right.

Harding's Choice.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Does Senator Harding think that any true, red-blooded American will indorse his sentiment that "if I could choose but one, I had rather have social and industrial peace at home than command the international peace of the world"? I hope and believe that all true Americans will show their condemnation of such an idea in the November elections.

America stands for justice and right, not only for herself but for all the world! When we Americans descend to a state of wishing only for our own social and industrial good, with no regard for the welfare or rights of the other and weaker nations, then we no longer deserve nor can claim our rightful place as one of the foremost, if not the foremost, of honorable nations of the world.

THE GRAND OFFENSIVE.

'Tis high time the Democratic press of the country abandoned its defensive campaign, a defense half-hearted and of low morale in some quarters, spirited and progressive in others, while breaking out into brilliant raids at a few points. Time now for a grand offensive all along the line.

As the American Army in France threw aside defensive tactics and considered only what was essential to a vigorous offensive, so should the Democratic Party in all its arms assume the aggressive under the war cry of national honor and progress and drive the party of selfish isolation and reaction into panic rout and an ignominious defeat next November. Then upon next Armistice Day, in the pride of our vindicated big Americanism, we may call upon France and the world to witness that we have destroyed the cancer of pro-Germanism and two-by-four Americanism within and stand now sturdy and full of purpose to fulfill our plighted word of disinterested co-operation and generous leadership to the end that civilization may be led out of chaos and that the spectres of militarism and Bolshevism may be forever dispelled.

In the darkened days of the Spring of 1918 the outlook was very dubious for the success of right and civilization over might and the return of barbarism, but the spirit of youth, the fire of middle life and the faith of old age would not acknowledge defeat—a military victory was achieved.

Our work is not done—not half—though jealous hearts and poor small Americans would have us believe it were. Their forces are strong, the morale of our people is poor, due to the reaction after victory and the effects of a long sustained endeavor and to the let-down from hardships borne courageously under exalted stress. As the Germans undermined the morale of the Italians before they drove them to the Piave so the little Americans, the enemy within, have undermined the courage and honor of the American people. The people can be rallied, they must be, and then history will repeat itself.

All forces, all arms must be used to the utmost in offense. No consideration should be given to intrenchments, to construction of bombproofs or organization of wire entanglements. Every attack should be followed by an advance and pursuit and then followed up again by another attack.

Our Commander-in-Chief is an ideal offensive fighter of whom all real Americans should be proud and under whom they can fight in the faith that he will lead them well and to victory and the vindication of our honor plighted in April, 1917. He has been tried and found fit in a minor command, prepared for the greater task as only a very few others can be said to be prepared. He is fearless and vigorous and big. The opposition commander is of the old school, lacks initiative and is staff ridden. Honor, the spirit of progress, enlightened executivism, fearless straightforwardness and big Americanism are on our side; timidity of world responsibility, reactionism, Senate oligarchism, pussyfooting and two-by-four Americanism are on the other side.

Can we fail to have faith in our ultimate victory with such a leader under such conditions? Can we hesitate a day longer to start the grand offensive?

The First Law School.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

In your issue of yesterday, in an editorial article on "Litchfield's Bicentenary," you make the following statement:

"Judge Reeve's Law School, the first of American law schools, established in 1784, had the art of producing much more than its quota of famous men. John C. Calhoun, Levi Woodbury, John M. Clayton plunged into Blackstone there."

The fact is that the first American law school was at the College of William and Mary in Virginia. Jefferson, who was an alumnus of that college, became a member of the Board of Visitors in 1779. Under his influence the professorships were reorganized and a professorship of law was established. The first professor was George Wythe, who served for over twelve years, when he was appointed Chancellor and removed to Richmond. Among his pupils were John Marshall, James Monroe, James Breckinridge and Spencer Roane.

In a letter of Richard Henry Lee to his brother Arthur, dated April 24, 1780 (Ballagh's Letters of Richard Henry Lee, Vol. 2, P. 177), he says:

Wythe was succeeded by St. George Tucker, author of an edition of Blackstone, which was the first American law book.

The law school continued at William and Mary till the outbreak of the civil war. The destruction of the college by Northern troops then and its meagre resources have limited its educational activities since to academic work and have prevented the revival of the law school.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

It indeed grieves me to write this letter, being a life-long Republican and having voted the Republican ticket for the last forty years without ever splitting it, but I am forced now to relieve my conscience, to come out squarely for the election of Governor Cox and the other national Democratic candidates.

I have just finished reading Governor Cox's acceptance speech, and on comparing it with Senator Harding's I am forced to make the above statement. I certainly do admire a man who comes out squarely on all issues and does not straddle as Senator Harding has done.

COBWEBS ON THE GRASS.

Like fabric woven from a mist
Of foam and moonbeams made,
O' mornings, on the grass, dew-kissed,
Sheer cobweb squares are laid—
And seeing them, some people say:
"That shows hot weather's due today."

But we in fairies who believe,
Knowing their habits well,
Meanwhile laugh slyly up our sleeve
Far different tales to tell.
These fine-spun webs of filmy white

Are really bits of gauze, perchance
Fragments of shadow lace,
Torn in the mad and merry dance,
As round and round the place
In tiny shoon of silver sheen
They tripped a measure with their Queen!

Then at the breaking of the dawn—
They vanished like the wind,
And left on everybody's lawn
These tell-tale scraps behind,
Cobwebs upon the grass, dew wet,
Tell me last night the fairies met!

M. Casenave Says $500,000,000 Obligation Will Be Met Regardless of German Indemnity.

PROVIDED FOR BY TAXATION

Nation's Trade Improving, and Imports and Exports Are Expected to Balance by End of 1922.

A statement that the French Government was "prepared to meet in full her share of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan due to the United States in October," regardless of the receipt of German indemnity before that time, was authorized last night by M. Casenave, Director General of the French Services in the United States. Upon the authority of M. Casenave, the statement was made public by M. W. Biggs of the French High Commission.

According to this statement the French budget has disregarded entirely the probable receipt of German indemnity before the loan comes due on Oct. 15 and has provided for its payment by taxation. M. Casenave said that returns from taxation in the last year had greatly exceeded estimates and that the returns from indirect taxation for the first six month of this year were 180 per cent. higher than the returns for the same period of 1914.

"While France intends to obtain full payment of the indemnity which is due to her from Germany, she is now acting as though such payments would not be made," said the statement of M. Casenave. "The budget for 1920 not only makes provision for balancing her ordinary expenditures out of ordinary receipts but allocates also, out of ordinary receipts, 9,400,000,000 francs for the purpose of interest on and amortization of the national debt.

France Ready to Pay Her Share.

"Moreover, the actual returns from direct taxation during June, 1920, exceeded budget estimates by 277,694,300 francs, or 44 per cent. Finally, the returns from indirect taxation during the first six months of this year were 180 per cent. in excess of the returns for the same period in 1914.

"France is prepared to meet in full her share of the $500,000,000 Anglo-French loan due to the United States in October."

The question of the payment of loans made to the Allies by the United States before and after this country entered the war has been the subject of discussion in this country and abroad, particularly at the conferences of Premiers Lloyd George and Millerand at Hythe in May. Tentative plans that would await the payment of German indemnities were sketched at Hythe, and the suggestion also was made that the French debts to this country be transferred to Germany partly by the issuance of German bonds to the United States. The acquiescence of the United States was not forthcoming on these proposals, it was reported, and the tentative plans apparently were abandoned.

According to a dispatch from Paris to THE TIMES on May 17, Millerand and his Finance Minister proposed a loan based upon the German debts. England was to underwrite 120,000,000,000 marks' worth of bonds and take one-fourth of the issue. The United States also was to be asked to take these bonds in payment of war loans to France, so that she would thus become the chief creditor nation of Germany. Refusal of both this country and Great Britain to acquiesce in this arrangement was reported.

A cablegram to THE TIMES from Paris on July 31 said that official information there was that France would meet her share of the loan by shipments of gold and through purchases of dollars. A new loan of about $100,000,000 in the United States, or 40 per cent. of the maturing obligation, also was proposed, and a member of the French Finance Ministry is now on his way to this country. England already has planned payment of her share of the $500,000,000 loan, which was negotiated in 1915 by the commission headed by Lord Reading.

M. Casenave's Statement.

Other statistics upon French reconstruction were given by M. Casenave in his statement, as follows:

"Up to the present time, on account of economic and political obstacles to the enforcement of the Treaty of Versailles, France has not received any cash payment by way of indemnity from Germany. Certain deliveries of coal were made last year by Germany to France, but these did not approach the quantity stipulated by the treaty. So far this year, Germany has been prevented by difficulties in the Ruhr region from meeting her obligations to France in respect of coal deliveries, but the French Government, realizing that coal must be procured at all costs to increase the output from the reviving industries of the devasted regions, has gone so far as to authorize loans to the German Government at the rate of two hundred million francs a month for six months so as to assure the delivery of the necessary fuel from the Ruhr district.

"In the first five months of 1920 France improved her trade balance by nearly two billion francs, increasing her exports during that period by 23,854,466,000 francs, or 182.1 per cent., as compared with the figures for the corresponding period of 1919. New figures for exports and imports, covering the month of June also, have just been received. These show that during the first six months of 1920 France improved her trade balance to the extent of 3,188,068,000 francs, which reduces the difference between her imports and exports by 28.97 per cent. If this improvement is maintained at the same rate the exports and imports of France will balance before the end of 1922."

FIND MISSING NURSE'S BODY

The body of Miss Theodora Miller, 35 years old, who disappeared last Thursday, was found in the Newark Reservoir at Cedar Grove, N. J., yesterday. She was last seen leaving the New Jersey Orthopaedic Hospital in Orange, where she was employed as a visiting nurse, on her way to a neighborhood house in West Orange. A hat and handbag found on the bank of the reservoir aided in her identification.

Miss Miller, of whom little was known at the hospital, is said to have been suffering from a nervous ailment. She had a brother, R. V. V. Miller in Plainfield, and relatives both in New York City and in Baltimore. She was a graduate of the Johns Hopkins Medical School. An autopsy will be performed in Orange today by the local coroner.

5 ROOMS AT $50 A MONTH

Senators Will Hear Needs of Situation—Plea Against Freight Rise on Materials.

A plan which will permit the use of about $60,000,000 from the Sinking Fund for the use of house construction at an estimated saving of 40 per cent. of the present cost of construction and which will result in the construction of five-room apartments for $50 a month, is now under consideration by Mayor Hylan, according to an announcement made yesterday by Edward P. Doyle, secretary of the Mayor's Housing Conference Committee.

The plan, as drawn up by Alanson T. Briggs of 32 Nassau Street, former secretary of the Court House Board, calls for an amendment to a city ordinance which would permit the Sinking Fund Commission to invest in first mortgages on newly constructed dwellings, such investment to be carefully made and thoroughly safeguarded.

The plan would create a semi-public corporation as a Municipal Mortgage and Trust Co., and interlocking with it an operating company to carry out the construction of the dwellings.

It is further maintained that at the present time there can be no better investment for the money of the Sinking Fund than in the building of homes. The mortgages would bear 5 per cent. interest and would amount to more than half the value of the building and land. The interest and tax return with a 3 per cent. tax rate would probably be 10 per cent., it was said, and in addition there would be the increase in the assessed value of real estate upon which all city securities is based.

The plan contemplates construction based upon an economical unit, housing about twenty-four families in five or six rooms each. By constructing 1,000 of these units it is believed there would be a large saving in materials, labor and other costs.

The United States Senate Committee on Reconstruction and Production will hold hearings in this city tomorrow, Wednesday, Thursday and Friday at 29 West Thirty-ninth Street, at which experts will be heard on housing conditions, the building industry, the railroad situation, and the financial phase of reconstruction.

Senator Calder, Chairman of the committee, made public yesterday a letter from the committee to the Interstate Commerce Commission, opposing any large increase in railroad rates on building materials. The letter said:

"At the present time, the rates on sand, brick and similar construction materials are comparatively high in consequence of the increase in rates allowed to the carriers during the war, at which time we are told the rates on building materials were advanced some 50 per cent. while other commodities sustained an advance of some 25 per cent. Indeed, these rates established during the war were a part of a system of embargoing the movement of materials not necessary for the prosecution of the war.

"If the rates upon basic materials are now further increased by 40 per cent., or to any very material degree, the transportation charges will inevitably seriously limit the movement of building materials and the amount of construction work which can be carried and covered by rentals sufficiently low to meet the housing problem."

Rudolph Miller and Frank Mann will appear before the committe tomorrow. Daniel Willard, Chairman of the Advisory Committee of the Association of Railway Executives, has been asked to appear on Wednesday and Otto Kahn on Thursday. Commissioner Clyde B. Atchison will explain the priority system on Thursday.

SAY WAGON PITS TIE UP CARS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—The National Coal Association has petitioned the Interstate Commerce Commission to take steps to regulate the supply of open top car equipment to the small country "wagon" coal mines, hundreds of which have sprung into activity during the present bituminous coal emergency. It is estimated that at least 3,000 "wagon" mines are now in operation.

"These so-called 'wagon mines,'" says a statement of the National Coal Association, issued tonight, "which at this time are a considerable factor in the speculative field, are located from one-half mile to five miles away from a railway switch and have to haul their output by wagon or motor truck to the tracks. The mines, having only a small tonnage, draw upon the railroads daily for equipment, tying up cars at the switches because of their necessarily slow method of loading the coal.

"Hundreds of cars which are needed to overcome the shortage in equipment in mvoments from the soft coal fields where facilities exist for quick loading and expeditious handling of the output are in this way tied up."

WHOLE FAMILY HIT BY SPEEDING AUTO

Mother Dead, Two Children May Die, Father Hurt—Were Crossing Street.

SCORE OF OTHER VICTIMS

In the worst of a series of automobile and motorcycle accidents in the dense Sunday pleasure traffic one little family in Queens almost was annihilated yesterday.

Samuel Abramowitz, who lives in Woodhaven, was crossing the street in front of his home at 7,510 Jamaica Avenue with his wife and two children to buy ice cream for the family in a little shop across the way. His wife was holding the baby in her arms, while with one hand she clutched the older child, Rose, aged 5. Pleasure cars were speeding past, and the Abramowitzes waited several minutes for their chance to get across. Finally the father thought he saw a safe lull in traffic and gave the signal. They had gone but a few yards when neighbors suddenly screamed a warning at them. Mrs. Abramowitz stooped and tried to lift Rose to her arms. The father attempted to snatch the baby to safety, but before either of them could act a touring car owned by Andrew Storms of 19 Lott Avenue, Union Course, and driven by Frank Philberg of 1,103 Jamaica Avenue, Storms's brother-in-law, was upon them.

Not one of the little family escaped. Mrs. Abramowitz was killed instantly. The baby, despite the mother's last frantic effort to clutch it closer to safety, was injured internally and cut about the head and body. Little Rose fared about as badly, getting internal injuries and a fracture of the left shoulder.

Two ambulances from St. Mary's Hospital in Jamaica found the little ones unconscious and, the surgeons said, dying. The mother was beyond help. The frantic father alone had escaped with minor injuries. His excited condition necessitated his removal to the hospital. The driver of the auto, excited after the accident, according to the police report, drove the car onto the sidewalk, where already a crowd of women and children had collected. They screamed as the machine plunged into their midst. Several children were knocked down and some received minor injuries.

There was wild excitement and indignation in the neighborhood, and so great a throng gathered that police reserves were hurried out to preserve order while the driver and the car owner were taken to the police station. Both men, who are marine engineers, were held on technical charges of homicide.

While rounding a sharp turn at the end of Jackson Avenue, in Hackensack, N. J., yesterday, John Adelman of 452 Onderdonk Avenue, Brooklyn, drove his car onto the sidewalk and into a telegraph pole. His wife was injured and Miss Margaret Leykan of Ridgewood, N. J., got a broken nose when the concussion hurled them out of the tonneau. Adelman and John Sahonborn of 514 Fairview Avenue, Brooklyn, got cuts and bruises. The women were taken to the Hackensack Hospital.

Four persons barely escaped death, and one of them still may die, as the result of injuries they got when the automobile in which they were riding turned turtle on the New Hyde Park Road, New Hyde Park, L. I. Louis Levey of 692 Flushing Avenue, who was driving, and his wife were cut about the head and body as they were thrown out. Mrs. Reva Wittenberg, Mrs. Levey's mother, had her arm broken, and Jacob Goldstein, the wife's nephew, had his skull fractured. He may die.

Patrolman Michael Higgins, 504 West 159th Street, of Motor Cycle Squad No. 1, came to grief as the finale of an exciting chase after a speeder in Central Park West. People lining the curb to watch the race marveled at the dexterity with which he threaded his cycle through the traffic. Suddenly an auto slowed down abruptly just ahead of the policeman, and before he could check his motor cycle he had smashed into the rear of the car and was thrown many feet. Motor Cycle Policeman William B. Mott, who hurried to his aid, expected to find him badly hurt. He was carried into the office of Dr. Jonard, at 1 West Eighty-ninth Street, and there treated for a possible fracture of the foot, after which he reported sick and went home.

Louis Firber of 1,443 Washington Avenue, the Bronx, was riding in the sidecar of a motor cycle operated by Herbert Weinbaum of 515 Morris Park Avenue at Clinton and Crotona Avenues, the Bronx, yesterday, when an automobile struck the motor cycle, throwing Firber into the road. He suffered a lacerated scalp and a probable fracture of the skull. The automobile did not stop after the accident, the police report.

Morris Weiss, 11 years old, of 113 Division Street, was struck by an automobile at Allen and Canal Streets last night. He was attended by Dr. Hamilton of Gouverneur Hospital for lacerations of the right knee. Witnesses said the driver, Antonio Malino, of 58 Mulberry Street, could not have prevented the accident.

Joseph Schneltzer, of 1,531 Brook Avenue, was struck by an automobile while riding his bicycle. He was cut about the eyes and scalp, and after receiving medical attention went to his home.

Elizabeth Gallagher, of 53 West Thirty-fifth Street, was struck by a taxicab at the crossing at Broadway and Thirty-fourth Street. She was bruised about the body.

John Robinson of 280 State Street, Flushing, was injured when the bicycle he was riding at Fifth Avenue and Ninety-sixth Street was struck by an automobile.

An automobile struck and slightly injured Patrick Fitzgerald of 521 Lexington Avenue at 125th Street and Third Avenue. Fitzgerald suffered lacerations of the scalp.

Lee Mirrell of 211 West Sixty-sixth Street was cut about the forehead when the taxicab in which he was riding collided with an automobile in front of 1,557 Broadway.

ARENAS'S BODY UNCLAIMED.

Still at Morgue and May Be Buried in Potter's Field.

The body of Dr. Jose Arenas, the South American dentist who shot and killed himself on the night of July 31 at his home, 116 West 70th Street, after wounding Ruth Jackson, a chorus girl, and Ignacio Marti, still is in the Morgue, unclaimed.

It was said last night that unless somebody claims the body within a few days it may be interred in Potter's Field. The usual procedure with unclaimed bodies is burial in Potter's Field when no property is left behind. It is understood, however, that Dr. Arenas left some furniture and salable property, in which event disposal of his body will be at the discretion of the Public Administrator.

COUGHLIN CLUE FAILS.

Stranger Sure Baby He Saw Is Kidnapped Child.

Special to The New York Times.

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 8.—A mysterious man, who asked that his name be withheld, visited George H. Coughlin at Norristown this afternoon and gave information which, for a time, seemed likely to lead to the recovery of the kidnapped baby. Mr. Coughlin relayed the story to detectives in Philadelphia and an investigation was instantly started. It proved unsatisfactory.

The whereabouts of a baby closely resembling the kidnapped child were revealed to Mr. Coughlin by the visitor, who revealed his name but requested that it be withheld for personal reasons. He gave his address and also that of a woman whom he suspected of having Blakely.

His story was that mysterious actions in a room in a house directly adjoining the one he lived in had excited his suspicions. A few nights ago he was awakened by the crying of a baby. As he looked across to the room wind whipped the curtains away and he saw a woman, plainly a foreigner, and the baby, an American. The child was close to the window and he caught a good glimpse of it. He was startled by its close resemblance to Blakely Coughlin.

Several nights later he again saw the child and compared the face with a photograph of Blakely.

"I am so positive that it is your child that I would stake every cent I own on it," he told Mr. Coughlin.

MINERS' CONGRESS ENDS.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

GENEVA, Aug. 8.—The International Miners' Congress, representing more than 1,600,000 miners, closed here today. Mr. Savage, the only United States representative present, said that while he opposed Government management of mines or, for that matter, of any industry, he was not against the mines being managed by Government representatives and miners' delegates together.

The six hour working day, he said, depended on conditions in the pits. In the United States conditions were far easier for the miners than in European countries. Moreover, the United States was further advanced in the use of machinery, hence much which applied to Europe did not apply to the United States. The congress agreed to demand the nationalization of all mines in Europe.

Robert Smillie, President of the International Miners' Federation, said that within two months an ultimatum would be sent by the miners of all European countries to their Governments insisting on nationalization. If necessary, he said, an international miners' strike would be declared to compel the Governments to accede to this demand.

BEDFORD GIRLS WILL EDIT.

Prisoners Also Will Print Newspaper at Reformatory.

Special to The New York Times.

BEDFORD, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Arrangements are being made, it was officially announced today, to let the inmates of the State Reformatory for Women in Bedford start a small newspaper to print news and information about the institution and happenings outside. The announcement was made by Mrs. Frank L. Christian, one of the Board of Managers acting as superintendent.

The idea of letting the imprisoned women print a newspaper originated with Dr. Menas S. Gregory, who has recently become a member of the board. He favors relaxing some of the severe rules. Dr. Gregory is arranging to get a small press which will enable prisoners to print the reformatory newspaper after they edit it. Mrs. Christian's husband, Dr. Frank Christian, superintendent of Elmira Reformatory, declares the paper printed by Elmira prisoners has achieved much good.

Mrs. Christian set aside today a rule which forbade inmates of Bedford to have writing paper or pencils. She is going to let them write all they wish. She is also going to acquaint them with current events outside the reformatory.

POSTAL CLERKS 'INDIGNANT'

CHICAGO, Aug. 8.—Six hundred employes in the Chicago Post Office marched around the Federal Building this afternoon in what they termed "an indignation parade at the petty attempt of Washington officials" to discharge eleven clerks who were said to have had charge of a publicity campaign exposing alleged unjust working conditions in the local Post Office and urging higher pay for the employes.

The parade followed a mass meeting at which resolutions were adopted asking for an employes' court of appeals to hear cases of men against whom charges are made.

POLICE WANT 8-HOUR DAY

Newark Patrolmen Also Ask Elimination of "Dog Watch."

The Newark police want an eight-hour day, with one day off a week, and the elimination of the so-called "dog watch," or extra duty. A committee named by the Patrolmen's Benevolent Association has drawn plans for a new working schedule to be submitted to Public Safety Director Brennan in the near future.

Under the new plan, it was said, additional patrolmen would not be needed and more efficient service would result.

WON'T DISCUSS WAGE CUT.

Gompers Refuses to Say If Labor Would Aid in Drive on Costs.

Special to The New York Times.

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Aug. 8.—Samuel Gompers, President of the American Federation of Labor, refused to say today if labor would cut the wage rate 5 per cent. if capital would reduce prices 15 per cent.

"There is no probability of capital doing any such thing at this time," said Mr. Gompers. "No such proposition has emanated from that quarter, and therefore I do not care to discuss it."

"But, would you advocate such a plan?" he was asked.

"It is not a plan," he retorted, petulantly. "It is simply a hypothetical proposition, and I don't care to talk about it."

Mr. Gompers was asked if he would make a specific plea for Eugene Debs, Socialist candidate for the Presidency, when he takes up with the Federal authorities the question of amnesty for certain political prisoners. "I am through talking," he said, as he entered the elevator of the hotel. "Please do not question me any further."

REV. G. F. PENTECOST, EVANGELIST, DEAD

CO-WORKER WITH MOODY

The Rev. George Frederick Pentecost, pastor of Bethany Presbyterian Church, Philadelphia, and one of the prominent Presbyterian clergymen in this country, died in the emergency hospital of the Grand Central station on Saturday night. Dr. Pentecost had been preaching in three Brooklyn churches during the absence of their pastors this Summer. He preached last Sunday in the Janes Methodist Episcopal Church, Monroe Street at Reid Avenue. He was to have preached there yesterday. Although he did not feel well on Saturday he decided to fill his engagement and left his Summer home in Darien, Conn., late in the day for New York. On the trip he was taken ill, and when the train arrived he was carried into the emergency hospital, and there he died soon after his arrival.

Dr. Pentecost was an author as well as a clergyman, and in his religious work he had traveled all over the world. He expected to sail from Vancouver for Japan on Sept. 23 to attend the Sunday School Convention, which will be held in Tokio. He had already received his passport.

He was born in Albion, Ill., on Sept. 23, 1842, and was a son of Hugh L. and Emma Flower Pentecost. His brother was Hugh O. Pentecost, who was first a clergyman and then a lawyer and who was an ardent Socialist. He died in 1907. At the age of 15 he was apprenticed to a printer. Dr. Pentecost embraced religion during a revival in Henderson, Ky. He was baptized on a Winter day in the Ohio River. Later he attended one of the Baptist colleges in Kentucky. With his entrance into the ministry came the civil war, and Dr. Pentecost was appointed chaplain of the 8th Kentucky Cavalry.

At the close of the war he located as pastor of a Baptist church in Greencastle, Ind. He served in Evansville, Ind., and in Covington, Ky., until 1868 when he went to the Tompkins Baptist Church in Brooklyn. He was also pastor of the Hanson Place Church. Between 1871 and 1880 he was located in Boston and in the latter year he returned to Brooklyn.

In 1887 Dr. Pentecost took up evangelical work in Scotland. Then followed two years, 1889 to 1891, when he worked in India as special commissioner to the English-speaking Brahmins in India, and in the latter year he returned to England and became pastor of the Marylebone Church in London. He returned in 1897 in answer to a call from the First Presbyterian Church of Yonkers. He went to Philadelphia in 1914. Dr. Pentecost served as special commissioner of the Presbyterian Church and the American Board of Foreign Missions of the United States in Japan, China and the Philippines.

Dr. Pentecost's bent was toward revival work. He became associated with Moody, the evangelist, in 1877 and for a number of years he worked in connection with Mr. Moody. With the singing evangelist, George Coles Stebbins, he followed Mr. Moody doing "after care" spiritual work.

Some of the works of Dr. Pentecost were "The Angel in the Marble," printed in 1876; "A South Window," 1876; "Out of Egypt," 1884; Ten Volumes of Bible Studies, 1880-9, "Birth and Boyhood of Christ," 1896; "Forgiveness of Sin," 1897; "Sympathetic Benevolence," 1897.

FREDERIC S. ALLEN DIES

Special to The New York Times.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Aug. 8.—Frederick Sturges Allen, aged 58, one of the leading American lexicographers and editor of Webster's New International Dictionary, died in his home in this city today after several months' illness. He was graduated from Yale University in 1884 and shortly afterward became connected with the editorial staff of G. and C. Merriam Company of this city, publishers of Webster's dictionary. Six years later he entered Yale Law School and after graduation was connected for several years with the law firm of Holden and Allen of New York.

He returned to the Merriam Company twelve or fifteen years ago and directed the work of getting out the new international, the latest edition of Webster's. He was also an author of some note. He leaves a widow, a daughter, Marian, and one brother, Willard I. Allen of Bridgeport, Conn.

KROONLAND DELAYED

The thousand passengers who arrived yesterday from Antwerp and Southampton on the Red Star liner Kroonland were detained for several hours in Quarantine through the discovery of four cases of measles in the steerage which for a time were believed to be typhus fever. After the nature of the disease had been established by a bactereological examination by the Public Health doctors at Quarantine the sick persons were taken off and the liner was allowed to proceed to her pier at West 21st street.

Professor Max Rabin, law instructor of the University of California, returned on the Kroonland with a party of Zionists from London, where they had attended the Zionist Convention. Several young women of Polish descent, who had been doing welfare work in the land of their parents, were on board. They were very anxious to know whether the Soviet forces had entered Warsaw. When they left the capital three weeks ago the Polish officials were confident that their army would keep the Bolsheviki back.

Owing to the detention at Quarantine the Kroonland was not made fast at her pier until 6 o'clock, and the sixty Immigration officials and Customs Inspectors, who had been on duty all day, had to work until a late hour without the customary supper on board the ship. The cooks and stewards on the Kroonland said that the union rules on American ships did not permit the serving of meals after the ship had been made fast.

GIANTS COME BACK AND TROUNCE CUBS

TONEY IN EXCELLENT FORM

The onward rush of the Giants, temporarily halted by Claude Hendrix on Saturday, was resumed at the Polo Grounds yesterday afternoon. The Chicago Cubs, finishing a five-game series, succeeded in escaping a shutout by bunching three successive hits in the ninth inning, but otherwise the visitors were decidedly tame. The Giants bunched their hits to advantage and finished on the heavy end of a 7 to 1 score.

The victory carried the Giants back into third place, which they had surrendered to the Pirates as a result of the setback Saturday. As the Reds were idle the McGrawmen regained what had been lost to the champions on the previous day and likewise kept on the heels of the pace-setting Robins. This morning the Polo Grounders are three games behind the Brooklyn leaders and two games behind the second place Reds.

Fred Toney gave another of those stellar pitching exhibitions which are becoming so common at the Polo Grounds of late and it was only a question of his mates picking up two or three runs to make victory certain. For seven innings the big Tennessean had no large margin to work on, as Hippo Jim Vaughn, who had appeared in the opening game of the set, was giving Fred another of those battles which have been so numerous in the past. The Giants, however, managed to pick up a run occasionally off Vaughn and had the count 3 to 0 against the big southpaw when he departed by the pinch hitter route in the eighth inning. With Nick Carter on the mound in the home half of the eighth the McGrawmen made the game a walkover.

Fielding Gems Are Plenty.

Some brilliant fielding stunts helped to make the task a bit easier for Toney. Doyle, with two spectacular stops, and Burns and Kelly with flashy catches, made the affair somewhat of a romp for the bulky boxman, if indeed Toney could be conceived of romping. Each of the fielding gems was delivered just at a time when failure would have meant a run before the side could be retired. One of Doyle's great plays turned back a runner at the plate, and another, a bare hand stop for a putout, was followed by a triple. Frisch robbed Herzog of a double with a runner on first base and Burns made his great catch just ahead of two singles. In none of these innings were the Cubs able to get a run over the plate.

Ross Young alone did more damage to the Cub boxmen than the visiting team was able to do to Toney. In four trips to the plate Young got a home run, a double, a single and a pass. His hitting, coupled with a single by Frisch, accounted for all the New York scoring up to the seventh, when Frisch started another run with his second single. Young died stealing in the sixth, but his pass in the eighth developed into New York's final run.

A fumble by Young in right field put the Cubs in position to do some damage in the first inning, but a great stop and throw by Doyle turned them back runless. Flack opened with a pass, according to the views of Wilyum Klem, but not as Toney viewed the affair. Fred's protest was one of silence and disgust, so he was not sentenced to take the air. Herzog forced Flack at second and Terry flipped a single into right field, which eluded both of Young's hands and as many feet. When the ball was returned, Herzog, who had halted at second temporarily, was perched on third and Terry was at second. Then came Doyle's flashy effort. Larry grabbed a hard bounder from Barber's bat as it was scorching a path to the outfield and threw to the plate in time to retire Herzog. Terry reached third on the play, but was left when Toney threw out Paskert after blocking a hard smash with his leg.

Young's Double Starts It.

Two Giants had been retired in order in the first inning when hits by Young and Frisch sent over a run. Young hit to right centre, and by some real sprinting turned an ordinary single into a double. Frisch sent him over the plate with a drive to left field which grazed Deal's glove as he went into the air for a catch.

The only home player to pass first base between the first and seventh innings was Young, who drove a homer into the lower section of the right field stand in the fourth inning. Only three men faced Vaughn in the second, third, fifth and sixth innings.

From the first to the sixth Toney was threatened only once. That was in the fifth, when Bancroft threw the ball past Kelly after a clean stop of Paskert's grounder. Paskert raced to second on the misplay, but was left when Vaughn struck out after running the count to three and two and following with several fouls. In the seventh Doyle shut off a run by a barehand stop on Flack. Terry following with a triple to the fence in left centre.

In the Giants' half of the seventh another run trickled over the dish. Frisch opened with a single over second and Kelly sacrificed him to second. After King had fouled to Killefer Doyle got an infield hit which advanced Frisch to third. A double steal was successfully worked, Frisch scoring and Doyle reaching second. Killefer's throw got away from Herzog and Larry tried to grab off another base, but Terry made a quick recovery and his throw to Deal retired Doyle.

Burns's Catch Helps.

A catch by Burns helped to turn the Cubs back in the eighth. Merkle, who batted for Killefer, was the victim, and the value of the fielding became apparent when Twombly and Flack followed with clean singles to right. The side was retired runless and then the Giants picked up enough runs against Nick Carter to start the fans moving toward the exits.

Snyder greeted the right-hander with a thump to deep left centre which would have been a triple for a speedy runner. Snyder, being no Man o' War, was content with a double. After Toney had been retired on strikes Burns got a hit on a roller to Barber, who deserted first base to get the ball. Bancroft's single to right scored Snyder and sent Burns to second. A pass to Young filled the bases and a wild pitch by Carter enabled Burns and Bancroft to register. Young went to third on the wild pitch and scored while Herzog was throwing out Frisch after a fancy stop.

The Cubs escaped the whitewash by putting over a run in the ninth. With one out Paskert doubled to left and Robertson followed with a single to centre. Believing King would make the catch, Paskert was late in leaving second and he had to halt at third. Deal's single to centre sent the run across.

CHICAGO, Aug. 8—Chicago evened up the series with Boston today by shutting out the visitors, 2 to 0. The game was a pitchers' battle between Kerr and Pennock, with the former having a shade. Felsch's home run drive into the left field bleachers in the fourth clinched the game for Chicago.

Curves and Bingles

An important series gets under way at the Polo Grounds this afternoon, when the Pirates step in for a set of five games. A double-header is on the card for tomorrow.

The Giants have now scored eleven victories in thirteen games since returning to the Polo Grounds. They have won twenty-one and lost six since July 10.

Close to 30,000 fans looked on while the Giants added this latest victory to their string. The stands were filled to capacity and nearly 5,000 scorched in the bleacher section.

Bob Emslie was all set to chase Killefer to the clubhouse in the sixth when the Cub catcher walked out during a kick on a decision at first base. Killefer saw what was coming, so he avoided Emslie and went to second. He shook hands with Herzog and returned to his position, while the fans laughed.

The Giants, and the crowd as well, were pulling for a Pittsburgh victory in Brooklyn. That would keep the Giants in fourth place, but it would pull back the league leaders, which would be worth more.

Davy Robertson was in the Chicago outfield, after a layoff of two days. He got only one hit, but did some fancy catching in the sunfield.

Toney appeared to be greatly relieved when Burns forced him at second after his single in the third. That took Fred out of the sun's hot rays, and also took a big load off his feet.

The fans behind the Chicago bench chanted many sour notes for the benefit of Paskert and Killefer, but gave up when the players refused to take the reception to heart.

COBB TALLIES RUN THAT BEATS YANKS

EHMKE FOOLS HIS GUESTS

DETROIT, Aug. 8.—Ty Cobb rode home on one of Rip Collins's wild pitches in the fourth inning, and this was the one lonesome run which gave the Tigers a 1 to 0 victory over the Yanks and evened up the series at two victories each. Coming from Texas, Collins was expected to be a bit wild, but when Manager Huggins signed him he didn't think he was getting a bucking bronco.

Howard Ehmke was at his best, and he halted the Yank batsmen in their tracks with three little, inoffensive hits, which did not amount to a row of pins. That distinguished genius of the wagon tongue, Babe Ruth, found more than his match in Ehmke, and he had the slugger so thoroughly tamed that Babe rolled over and played dead at Ehmke's bidding. The Tiger twirler had a change of pace which had the Yanks befuddled, and they had a hard job slapping the ball out of the infield.

One of the banner crowds that this incubator of flivvers ever turned out was at the game, more than 28,000 fans crushing their way into every nook and corner of the park. They flooded out on to the playing field and completely surrounded the three fielders, so that ground rules were necessary. The fans were perched on the top of the fence and on surrounding telegraph poles. For once pedestrians could cross the street downtown without hanging their lives on their sleeves, because all the flivvers in town were parked around the ball meadow.

Bodie Falls for Old Trick.

The play of the Yanks this afternoon was not brilliant, and the batting slump into which Ehmke steered them made them look as if they had been hypnotized. Ping Bodie was hypnotized, and no mistake about it. Ping was on second in the fifth with one gone, when Young fooled him with the hidden-ball trick. The play followed an argument, and when the players had finished talking and got back to their positions Young had the ball hidden in his glove. The victim of the deception took a lead off second, and Young plastered the ball into his ribs before he could get back. That was one example of the Yankees' slumbering.

In a desperate attempt to tie the score Bob Meusel was taken off the shelf in the ninth and sent up to hit for Ward. Meusel struck out so easily that Ehmke looked as shamefaced as if he had taken pennies out of a blind man's cup. Peck also struck out at this dramatic moment, but Ruth was coming up and there was still a chance. The monarch of the home run took his place at the plate, and 56,000 eyes turned toward the right-field stockade. A hush fell over the multitude. All that stretching of necks was unnecessary, for Babe's listless swing met the ball tenderly, and it rolled slowly to Young, who tossed out the slugger, and the game was over.

Babe Ruth an Easy Victim.

No Yank activity in the first. Ward popped to Young and Peck skied to Veach. Ruth got a great reception when he came up. Half the folks screamed for Ehmke to fan him, while the other half yelled for a home run. Babe's effort was a light tap to second, and Young threw him out.

Rip Collins got into difficulty in the Tiger half, but pitched himself out of trouble. Young singled, and was forced by Jones. Cobb cracked a single to right, sending Jones to third. Rip tossed out Veach and Heilman rolled to Pipp.

Pratt made the first Yank hit at the opening of the second. As Lewis fanned Del stole second, and continued to third on Stanage's wild throw. Ehmke knocked down Pipp's hot grounder and threw him out, and Pinelli disposed of Bodie at first.

Peck singled to centre in the fourth and Ruth hit a mile-high fly to Cobb. Pratt rolled to Pinelli, who tossed to Young, missing a force-out on Peck, although he got Del at first. Ehmke tossed out Lewis.

Cobb doubled to left in the Detroit fourth. Veach sacrificed Ty to third. Collins unraveled a wild pitch and Cobb crossed the plate. Heilman singled to centre and stole second as Ruel dropped the ball. Shorten fanned. Collins made another wild pitch and Heilman went to third. Rip then threw out Pinelli and got out of another bad hole.

Wrangle Lasts Too Long.

After Ehmke tossed out Pipp in the fifth, Bodie singled to centre. Ruel rolled to Young, who tossed to Pinelli for a force-out on Bodie. Pinelli dropped the ball, and also failed to get Ruel at first. There was a loud wrangle by the Detroit players, who claimed that Ping was out. After they had argued several minutes Bodie left the bag and Young worked the hidden-ball trick on him and tagged him out.

This is the oldest trick in baseball, and was first worked about the time Robert Fulton was fussing with the first baby steamboat on the Hudson. Young held the ball all the time, and none of the Yanks were wise to the fact. Ping was the picture of foolishness as he walked to the bench. Ping must watch out or he will be buying building lots in Long Island Sound.

Lefty O'Doul, on the Yank bench, had too much gab about Umpire Owens. Owens should have made the decision on the hidden-ball trick, but, like Bodie, he was asleep, and Dineen was appealed to and made the decision. Owens was wide awake, though, when O'Doul was talking and chased him out of the park.

Ruth got a pass when he came up in the sixth with two out. He died stealing.

Ehmke doubled to the centre-field crowd in the eighth and went to third on Young's sacrifice. Collins hit Jones on the leg and put him on first. Cobb popped to Peckinpaugh. Ruth made a fine catch of Veach's high rocket.

ENGLISH ELEVEN'S DATES.

Revised Schedule Is Announced for Visiting Cricketers.

Edgar O. Challenger, Chairman of the committee of the Staten Island Cricket and Tennis Club, in charge of the arrangements for the international match against the Incogniti cricketers of England in September, has made public a revised itinerary made out for the tourists with the idea of allowing them more leisure to get acquainted with the country. The visitors will arrive on the Paronia on Aug. 27 or 28. The New York date, at Livingston, S. I., has been definitely fixed for Wednesday and Thursday, Sept. 22 and 23. The New York Halifax Cup team meanwhile will have had a one day's game with the Incogniti on Wednesday, Sept. 8, at Haverford, Pa. A thoroughly representative metropolitan team will be selected by the Staten Island Clubs' committee for the match at Livingston.

The complete schedule for the visitors, as revised, follows:

Aug. 31 and Sept. 1, Frankford C. C. at St. Martins, Philadelphia; Sept. 3 and 4, Philadelphia C. C. at St. Martins; 6 and 7, Merion C. C. at Haverford, Pa.; 8, New York Halifax Cup team at Haverford, Pa.; 10, 11 and 13, All-Philadelphia at Haverford, Pa.; 14 and 15, Germantown C. C. at Mannheim, Philadelphia; 17, 18 and 20, All-Philadelphia at Mannheim; 22 and 23, New York at Livingston, S. I.

GRAND CIRCUIT PROGRAM.

Nineteen Races, with 415 Nominations, on This Week's Card.

CLEVELAND, Aug. 8.—The second Grand Circuit meeting of the 1920 season will open at North Randall tomorrow. With 415 nominated to start in the nineteen events, it is very probable that the racing will continue through Saturday.

Twelve events have twenty or more nominations. If all the eligibles are declared in all twelve they will be divided, making at least thirty-one races for the week. Four of the fields have more than thirty nominations, and they would be divided into three divisions.

Only tomorrow's card has been definitely decided upon. It includes four events, the first and second division of the 2:11 trot, the American Sportsman three-year-old pace and the 2:04 pace.

POP BOTTLES FLY AT EBBETS FIELD

With a shower of pop bottles directed at Umpire Moran as a high light, the most quarrelsome ball game that has been seen at Ebbets Field all season passed into history yesterday afternoon, with the Dodgers on the desirable end of a 2 to 1 score. The pop bottle demonstration was no ordinary affair of the kind. It was no desultory fire, directed by an occasional heroic bleacherite from the perfect safety of the stands. It was a regular barrage. The bottles came from all parts of the stand behind first base, many of them falling uncomfortably close to Moran and the members of the Brooklyn team, who were gathered near him between first and second bases. Even the third base bleacherites took a fling, though too far away to have a chance to hit the object of their attack. The fact that they might have struck a player instead and put him out of the game with a serious injury apparently did not enter into consideration.

The decision which caused the trouble occurred in the eighth inning, with Mitchell on third and Olson on second, one run in and two out. Mitchell was caught off the bag by Ponder's throw to Whitted and called out by Moran. To an unbiased observer in the stand there was little doubt of the correctness of Moran's judgment. There seemed also to be small justification for the argument advanced here and there that Ponder had made a balk prior to throwing to Whitted. But the Brooklyn players, headed by Grimes, who was coaching at third, made an awful howl to Moran and that started the crowd which, with Brooklyn behind in a hectic struggle, had been riding the umpires all afternoon. The bottles began to fall in a veritable young hailstorm.

Field Cluttered With Bottles.

To the credit of the Brooklyn team, it should be said at once that they did what they could, headed by Manager Robinson, to stop the disreputable demonstration from the stands. But their appeals went unheeded. The fall was so heavy that it took the players several minutes to pick up the crockery that cluttered the field. When play started again, with the Dodgers in the field, Moran took up a position in front of second base to do his umpiring, even though the paths were unoccupied by base runners throughout the Pirates' turn at bat. "Safety first," said Moran to himself, and he was justified.

But this wasn't the only quarrel of the mad matinée. The game ended in another scrap quite as feverish, only this time the Pirates were on the aggrieved end of the argument with the umpires. Perhaps, if it had been otherwise, there would have been full need of the services of the police, who rushed on the field the minute the game was over to protect the umpires from possible attack.

There were men on second and third for the Robins in their half of the ninth, with two out. Kilduff was at bat, and with the count two and two he fouled off half a dozen balls. Then Ponder turned loose a wild pitch. As it looked from the press box, the ball nicked Kilduff's hand in passing. Rigler, umpiring behind the plate, didn't see it that way. He called it simply a wild pitch and, as it continued to stand, Wheat came home from third on it with no trouble at all and the game was won for the Dodgers. If it had been conceded that Kilduff had been hit by the ball, the bases would have been filled and the Robins would still have had to put over the winning run.

Gibson was urged by some of his team to protest the game, but, inasmuch as it was a question of the umpire's judgment and not of interpretation of the rules, the Pirates' manager decided that a protest could accomplish nothing.

Duel Between Pitchers.

Ponder and Marquard were the opposing boxmen, and they were very evenly matched. Both pitched fine ball. The Rube was not wholly responsible for the only run scored by the Pirates, for Carey, who scored it, got to base on an error by Johnston. Apart from that, Marquard was frequently in a good bit of danger, but always was able to call a halt with men on bases. He left the game to let Mitchell bat for him in the eighth, Mitchell delivering with a single that sent over the Dodger's first run. Then Cadore went in and easily held the Pirates helpless in the ninth. An error also played a part in the Dodgers' first run, Krueger getting an extra base when Whitted overthrew first, putting Ernie in position to score on Mitchell's hit.

The Pirates hit safely in each of the first two innings, but couldn't bat the runner around. In the first, Carey reached the far corner, when he was hit by the pitcher, stole second and went to third on Southworth's bingle. Marquard threw him out at the plate on an attempted squeeze play. The Buccaneers' run came over in the third. After Bigbee had flied out to Myers, Carey reached first on Johnston's fumble and continued around to third on Southworth's single to right. Carey scored on Whitted's long sacrifice fly to Myers. Cutshaw grounded to Olson for the third out. Good pitching and sharp fielding kept the Pirates at bay for the remainder of the fray. Haeffner doubled for the Pirates in the seventh and traveled to third on an out, but was left. An unusual feature of this inning was Ponder's out on three unsuccessful attempts to bunt.

Robins Score in Eighth.

The Dodgers went through the first five innings with only one hit. In the sixth Krueger and Olson hit safely, but a double play killed the rally. In the eighth Kilduff grounded to Cutshaw for the first out. Krueger singled to Whitted's territory and went to second on the Pirate third baseman's poor throw to first. A single by Mitchell, batting for Marquard, scored Krueger. Olson also singled, and Mitchell went to third and Ivy to second on Johnston's sacrifice fly to Bigbee in left centre. Then came the play on Mitchell for the third out, which started the near riot.

Griffith, first up for the Dodgers in the ninth, grounded out to the box. Zack Wheat planted a hit in front of the plate that landed him safely on first. Neis, who had taken Myers's place in centre, walked. Konetchy's long fly to Carey enabled both runners to advance. Then up stepped Kilduff for the heated finale. Ponder's pitch most certainly was wild, and the only chance of an argument on it was whether it hit Petey in passing. At any rate, Wheat was permitted to score on the play and the game was won.

Olson Stuffs Ears to Escape Hearing Jeers of Home Fans

Ivan Olson, the peppery shortstop of the Brooklyn Dodgers, sprang something new in the line of comedy at yesterday's game with the Pirates at Ebbets Field. Olson has been guilty of a few fielding miscues in the last few games and the home fans, as a result, have been riding him unmercifully. The jeers didn't help Ivy to resume his normal fielding stride, either, and yesteday he decided to equip himself so that he couldn't hear the comment from the stands, whether he bobbled or made a star play. He stuffed both his ears with large wads of cotton, so displayed that they could be seen from any part of the field, standing out on either side of his dome like a couple of beacon lights on a dark night. Ivan kept them there the greater part of the game, but finally removed them so that he could enter better into conversation with the umpires. Ivan made one error in the course of the game, but he also made some excellent catches. He likewise made two of the Dodgers' eight hits.

SKEETERS GET EVEN BREAK WITH COLTS

Rochester Wins First Game, 4 to 2, but Is Beaten in Second, 8 to 6.

The Jersey City Skeeters played the part of a generous host to Rochester's ball tossers in their farewell visit to the home of the Jerseymen by sharing the spoils of a double-header yesterday, making the series even. As in the previous day's session the Skeeters spotted Irwin's Colts to a victory in the opening game, and then came to life themselves in the second contest and emerged from the scrap with the long end of the string. Rochester's advantage in the opening heat was 4 to 2, and Jersey City won the wind-up, 8 to 6.

In the curtain raiser the home team outbatted its opponents, eleven hits to 6, but their failure to produce blows when they were at a premium cost it defeat.

Eddie Gill was on deck for Jersey City in the first exchange of shots and Barnes opposed him on the Rochester end. Gill had the Irwinites guessing throughout the whole distance, but they succeeded in penetrating his delivery for a brace of two runs from three hits strung together in the second frame, and were then held in check until the concluding inning, when, with the game tied up, Gill permitted Joe Rodriguez to walk, and Dick Kinsella came to the scratch with a slashing three-bagger to deep left field which put the game in Arthur Irwin's grip by pushing Rodriguez over the pan with the winning tally. Not content with this lead, Hollahan, sent in to bat for Krahl, ripped off a two-bagger, sewing the game up in a Rochester knot.

Jersey City hammered Barnes for a double and a pair of singles in the fifth, but only dug out one run. McCann's triple and Mooers's single accounted for a Skeeter run in the seventh.

Bunched hitting by the Jerseymen in the third and fourth chapters turned the trump card for the Skeeters in the second battle and placed them safe on the tally sheet in spite of the visitors' clever uphill battle. With the score favoring the locals 5 to 1 at the end of the fifth, Harry Biemiller, who was on the mound for the Skeeters, began to show signs of distress. In the sixth, after Mathews had beaten out a bunt with one out, Biemiller filled up the cushions by passing Rodriguez and Kinsella. When Hollahan forced Kinsella at second Mathews scored. Then in the seventh Rochester forced Biemiller to retreat to the showers after Bowen, White and Ross had singled, driving in two runs.

Carlson relieved the retiring pitcher and Sherman's sacrifice fly sent Ross home with the third run. Rochester stuck in another tally in their farewell attack when White tripled and scored on a single by Krahl, who batted in place of Sherman.

Shorty Long at third and White at short played sensational ball for the visitors, Long working a pretty double play unassisted in the fifth inning. Eddie Mooers played in rare form at the keystone corner for the Skeeters.

TWO CYCLISTS ARE OUTSPEEDED BY EGG

NEWARK, N. J., Aug. 8.—Oscar Egg, the popular Swiss six-day bicycle star, defeated Willie Hanley and Jake Magin in an Australian pursuit match race at the Velodrome here this afternoon. The idea of one man beating two was a distinct novelty to the bicycle fans and Egg received a great ovation when he dismounted.

Egg started from in front of the grand stand at the tape while Hanley made his start just a half lap away in the middle of the back stretch. Hanley rode two miles and in this distance Egg made up quite a bit of ground. Magin, though, came to the rescue at two miles and relieved Hanley. Magin, being fresh, started out well, but Egg finally caught him after the race had gone six miles two and one-quarter laps. Magin had ridden four miles two and one-quarter laps before being caught.

Ray Eaton defeated Frank Kramer and Alfred Goullet in a paced match. Kramer won the first heat but Eaton came back and took the next two. The first two heats were at two miles and the deciding one at one mile. It was intended to have this heat at five miles but at the first attempt the riders rode four miles and five laps and, with but a single lap to go, Eaton suffered a puncture while Kramer was in the lead and the referee ordered the heat rerun and Eaton won it. The majority of the fans were under the impression that Eaton won by teaming with Goullet.

Alex McBeath won a five-mile invitation from Arthur Spencer, Percy Lawrence, Harry Kaiser, Oscar Egg and Cecil Walker, who finished in that order.

NATIONAL RIFLE SHOOT.

Extensive Program for Tournament Starting This Week.

The program for the national rifle shooting championship to be held at Camp Perry, Ohio, beginning this week and continuing through a greater portion of the month, is the most elaborate that has ever been arranged for a similar tournament. Not only does it include all of the standard events in rifle and pistol shooting, but there will be trapshooting and airplane shooting as well, not to mention the international match between English and United States teams.

The aerial shooting event has attracted widespread interest. It is the first time that an event of this kind has been scheduled in such a tournament and it is regarded as one of the biggest features of the program.

The Government is taking unusual interest in the tournament. It realizes that by such means can American marksmanship be improved and maintained at the high standard desired. For this reason every possible assistance has been given Colonel Morton C. Mumma, who will be in charge of the matches, in arranging the details.

The first event of importance on the program is the Cartow Cup match, which will be shot on Wednesday. The Governor's Cup will be shot for on Thursday, and on Friday the Leech and Adjutant General's Cups will be competed for. The competition for the Marine's Cup will demand chief attention on next Monday and on the following day the Wimbledon and Herrick matches will take place. The President's Match will be shot one week from Wednesday. The individual and team rifle matches for national championships will be shot during the week of Aug. 23.

DE FOE TO MEET BRADY.

Featherweights Will Box Twelve Rounds in Jersey City Tonight.

Billy DeFoe, St. Paul's contender for the featherweight title, and Ralph Brady of Syracuse will be the star attraction at the Armory A. A. of Jersey City tonight, the men being booked to try conclusions in the final twelve-rounder. Tonight's contest will mark the first appearance of DeFoe in a Jersey City ring in a long time.

Two eights and a six-round event complete tonight's card. Harvey Bright, the Brooklyn featherweight, will hook up with Eddie Fletcher of Hoboken, and Frankie Fay of Brooklyn will meet Johnny Curtain of Jersey City in the two eight-round events.

Matchmaker John Jennings of the Armory A. A. has decided to postpone the twelve-round bout between Sam McVea and Harry Wills, conquerer of Fred Fulton, from Aug. 23 to Aug. 26. The reason for the change is that he will stage a heavyweight bout between Frank Moran and Al Reich next Monday night, while three nights later Gene Tunney will hook up with Martin Burke in their postponed match. On Aug. 23, the original date set for the McVea-Wills fracas, Charles Ledoux, the bantam champion of Europe, will meet Joe Lynch in a return bout. This Thursday night Jackie Clarke, the A. E. F. middleweight champion, tackles Corporal Jack Blumenfeld, the English middleweight.

Greb Is After Levinsky.

Harry Greb, Pittsburgh fighter, is now a candidate for the crown worn by Battling Levinsky. Harry was a crack middleweight a year or two ago, but now he is a full-fledged light heavy. His battle with Tommy Gibbons at Pittsburgh recently showed him in a great come-back after his recent illness, Greb having the best of the St. Paul boy. Greb scaled over 170 pounds and fought with his former pep and speed. Now he is after a match with Battling Levinsky for the light heavyweight title.

U. S. ATHLETES IN OLYMPIC QUARTERS

SWIMMERS HAVE WORKOUT

ANTWERP, Aug. 8 (Associated Press).—The American athletes who are to compete in the Olympic games, disembarked today from the transport Princess Matoika and proceeded to the school house where they are to be quartered during their stay here. Satisfaction was expressed over their place of abode and much of the discontent which had prevailed on board the ship had disappeared. A committee of the athletes inspected the food and kitchens and pronounced them an improvement over the accommodations on board the transport.

Coach Moakley visited the Stadium early in the day and expressed pleasure with the general aspect of the infield. The track, however, he found slow and soft, due partly to the heavy rains which have been prevailing and partly to the amount of practice done by the athletes of other nations.

The women's swimming team is quartered in the Young Men's Christian Association Hostess House, where they have pleasant, homelike accommodations. The women practiced in the Olympian pool this forenoon. They said the water was rather slow and dead and exceptionally cold. They said they hoped the sun would soon warm it up. The divers think that more life in the springboards is desirable. All the women made a strong impression on the Belgian swimmers who watched them work out. The Belgians said they swam like men.

The male swimmers practiced late in the afternoon, and there was a large crowd out to see Norman Ross and Duke Kahanamoku perform.

There will be no meeting of the Olympic Committee to consider official matters on the resolution passed by the athletes on shipboard until the latter part of the week, when Gustavus P. Kirby and Judge Bartow S. Weeks arrive.

S. Harris Thompson, the all-round Princeton athlete, fresh from a victory at Oxford, England, is at the school house. He is desirous of becoming a member of the American team. The committee men here are non-committal but they expressed the belief that there will be no exception to the drastic rule that the men must make the team through trials in the United States.

The American Olympic track team today had its first practice in the stadium where the men hope later on to gain world honors by their prowess. The athletes had witnessed the final tryouts of the Belgians and so eager were they for work that hardly had the last event been concluded when they leaped over the barriers and raced upon the track and field, cheering. A large crowd of spectators appeared puzzled over the enthusiasm of the Americans.

The bicyclists practiced on the velodrome track for Monday's events. They were somewhat puzzled over the high banking of the track. The road cyclists will cover the complete course tomorrow. This will be the last time they make the trip before Thursday's race.

WIN FINAL DOUBLES MATCH.

Miss Eleanor Tennant and Miss Florence Ballin won the women's doubles at Greenwich Field Club yesterday by taking the long delayed final match of the invitation tennis tournament from Miss Edith Handy and Mrs. Robert Leroy by scores of 7—5, 6—3. It was a spectacular exhibition on the part of all four players, and carried out the tradition of the club that the best tennis is always played after a postponement because of rain.

Miss Tennant made a clean sweep of the women's events by her victory yesterday, and showed once more the remarkable power of her volleying and overhead game, with deceptive chops to force the openings. She was well supported by Miss Ballin, the runner-up of the singles, who had good control of her drives throughout, and showed a willingness to come in close as well and do her share of the volleying. On the losing side, Mrs. Leroy's steady court-covering stood out prominently, while Miss Handy again proved herself one of the best net-players among the local women.

A single break in the service decided the opening set, which was hard fought to the very last point. The winners increased their speed in the second, but were again hard pressed to gain a decisive lead, eventually completing their victory by the margin of 6—3.

TOURNEY FOR GIRL PLAYERS

BOSTON, Aug. 8.—Mrs. George W. Wightman, National women's tennis champion, is receiving the entries of junior girl tennis players who plan to compete in the junior tournament starting at the Longwood courts, Aug. 18. Girls who were under 18 years of age prior to March 1 will be eligible. Miss Anna Fuller of Lancaster, winner of last season's play, plans to enter again.

Mrs. Wightman announces that the Longwood courts will be available to the entrants for practice several days prior to the start of the tournament. The National junior championships for girls will be held at Philadelphia in September.

MISS COLLETT THE STAR.

Special to The New York Times.

EASTERN POINT, Conn., Aug. 8.—A mixed foursome exhibition match was played on the links of the Shenecossett Country Club here today. In straight best ball play Miss Glenna Collett, the young Providence star, and Dewitt Balch of Cincinnati, former Yale golf Captain, defeated Miss Elaine Rosenthal of Ravensloe and Jesse Sweetser, the intercollegiate golf champion, from Yale by 1 up. However, under the best ball and aggregate system of scoring which was used, Miss Rosenthal and Sweetser won by 4 up and 2 to play after an uphill match.

The feature was the brilliant golf of Miss Collett, the 17-year-old Providence girl, who made three out of the first six holes under par, with birdies. She won these three holes clear, and as her partner's long drives were often in trouble she carried the burden of the match, being helped on only one hole. Miss Collett sank a twenty-foot putt on the sixth for a two, the only one in the match. Jesse Sweetser had a medal round of 74, two over par.

JEFFERSON, N. H., Aug. 8.—A return match with E. Ryall, golf professional of the Waumbek, and Tom Norton of Whitefield Golf Club, opposing D. E. Miner of Maplewood and Harry Cowie of Bethlehem, was played on the Waumbek links this afternoon before a gallery of several hundred people who motored from various resorts to follow the event. The match resulted in a win for Ryall and Norton, who defeated Cowie and Miner by a score of 3 and 2.

ONLY THREE CRAFT SAIL RIGHT COURSE

PORT WASHINGTON, L. I., Aug. 8.—All but three of the sixteen skippers who started in one of the series of interclub races of the Star Class this afternoon misunderstood instructions given by the Regatta Committee, and the races in both divisions proved farcical.

The races were held over the six-mile triangular course of the Manhasset Bay Yacht Club. A stiff breeze was blowing, and the prospects of a spirited race were bright when the yachts crossed the starting line.

Thirteen starters—five in Class A and eight in Class B—were disqualified. Instead of following instructions and going around the far buoy they went inside of it.

Adrian Iselin, 2d, sailing the Snapper, was the first to go around the buoy, and George W. Elder, Jr., in the Saturn, also took the long route. The Snapper beat the Saturn across the finish line, and was awarded the points accruing to the winner.

SNAPPER FIRST OVER LINE.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 8.—In a light breeze blowing from the southwest, Frank S. Page's Snapper won the Arrow Class races this morning over the four-mile course of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. The Bubble, belonging to Walter S. Bowes, was the second yacht to cross the line, one minute and twenty seconds after the Snapper.

The June Bug finished first among the Indian Harbor one-design yachts, being four minutes and six seconds ahead of H. R. Whittelsey's Salony, sailed by Mr. Whittelsey's son, Souther Whittelsey, better known as Chick. The young man is following in the footsteps of his father, who is an expert yachtsman, and his handling of the yacht in today's race was the occasion of much favorable comment.

SHAWARA WINS LONG RACE.

NEW ROCHELLE, N. Y., Aug. 8.—The Shawara, a New York Yacht Club forty-footer, owned by Harold Wesson, was the winner of the long-distance race of the New Rochelle Yacht Club, which was started last night and covered a course of sixty-five miles to Stratford Shoal and return. There were seventeen entries for the race but because of the squally weather only nine started. The Shawara covered the distance in 12:44:25, leading the Amoret, Red Wing and Tea Ticket in that order. These were all yachts of the Rating Class. The Feu Follette led in the Yawl Class and the Nutmeg in the Handicap Class. A light westerly wind prevailed during the race.

AERIAL SHOWS GOOD SPEED.

GREENWICH, Conn., Aug. 8.—Addison G. Hanan's new sloop R yacht, Aerial, made her first trial spin through waters of Long Island Sound this afternoon against the Rogue, in the sloop R class, owned by a syndicate of the Indian Harbor Yacht Club. The Aerial was sailed by Mr. Hanan, who was accompanied by Dr. V. C. Piatti as his guest, and she outsailed the Rogue with apparent ease, exhibiting unusual speed. E. Burton Hart and Richard H. Monks alternated at the wheel of the Rogue.

The Aerial, built after Mr. Hanan's own design, is a contender for the William Hamlin Childs Cup in the race soon to be held at Marblehead.

U. S. Soccer Team Ties Swedes.

STOCKHOLM, Aug. 8.—The All-St. Louis Association football team played a tie game with the Swedish Olympic team today, each side making one goal. Both goals were scored in the first half. Brown for the Americans and Dahl for Sweden made the points.

Comment on Current Events in Sports.

TENNIS

Newport, for many years the scene of America's national tennis championships, today welcomes back a Davis Cup team with the proud record of defeating the best players that France and England could put on the courts and reaching the challenge round without the loss of an individual or team match. Regardless of what the coming trip to New Zealand may develop, and there is every reason to feel optimistic over its prospects, the record of William M. Johnston, William T. Tilden, 2d, Richard Norris Williams, 2d, and Charles S. Garland is one of which every American tennis lover may well be proud. Individually and as a team the four stars have covered themselves with glory, of which Tilden necessarily gets the lion's share by reason of his capture of the world's championship at Wimbledon. This brilliant exponent of stroke versatility and tactical daring has impressively come into his own abroad, and the foreign critics of tennis are unanimous in their unsparing praise of his game. Johnston, Williams and Garland have also won new admirers, and, best of all, the sportsmanship of the entire quartet has met with universal commendation.

The series of big tournaments that begins today with the Newport classic will take on a new interest through the return of the victorious Davis Cup team. Some of its members are sure to be defeated within the next few weeks, perhaps by men who were passed by when the selection of internationalists was made. The all-comers' singles at the end of the month will mark the climax of suspense, for then the question of superiority between Johnston and Tilden will be settled once for all.

It is not likely that either of these supermen of the racquet will be seriously threatened just now, although Williams at his best would be feared by both of them. Robert Lindley Murray no longer has the physical condition to keep up the slashing game which in recent years made him a terror, and Ichiya Kumagae, another dangerous challenger, has gone abroad to win the Olympic tennis honors for Japan.

Of the rest, Watson M. Washburn has shown the best form on the home courts this season, and he played both Tilden and Patterson very close matches last year. Wallace Johnson, Roland Roberts and Walter Hayes, all members of the "first ten," have done nothing as yet this season to justify their rating, and Richard Harte, Willis Davis, S. Howard Voshell and N. W. Niles have all had their reverses. Dean Mathey and Harold Throckmorton are two nearly great performers who will bear watching, and Young Vincent Richards has proved himself consistently dangerous to the topnotchers. This array practically completes the first flight of American tennis at present, and from its number the challenging Davis Cup team of next December will surely be chosen.

The problem of a winning doubles team may be satisfactorily solved next week at Longwood. It has been recognized that Johnston and Tilden are not an ideal pair psychologically. The former will take back his old partner, Clarence J. Griffin, with whom he won two national championships, and have another try at the title. Tilden will play with Garland, who helped him win the Southampton doubles last season. Williams is to team up with Harte, his partner in two intercollegiate championships when they were at Harvard together. One of these three teams is fairly sure to come through to the national honors, which Brookes and Patterson will not defend, and it is almost certain that the winners will play the doubles on the challenging Davis Cup team next December.

With the Giants three games behind the league leading Robins and the Yankees four and one-half games behind the pace setting Indians, busy days loom up in the immediate future for the two Manhattan pennant chasers. Today the Giants embark upon a series of five games with the Pirates, who are displaying real speed as contenders, and the Yanks will be busy in an effort to cut the lead of the Indians. Even a clean-up of the four games at Cleveland would not carry the Hugmen ahead, but by taking the series they can restore some of the morale and confidence in themselves that must have been shaken by the numerous recent defeats.

The Giants at this time are getting more consideration as pennant prospects than are the Yankees, despite the fact that the National Leaguers hold a lower position in the pennant race. The difference in the two leagues is that the leaders in the National are showing signs of faltering while the Giants are making their advance, but in the American the Yankees are doing the slipping and Cleveland is showing no signs of dropping back. However, the Yanks are far from out of the race. A team with the batting power and pitching strength of the Hugmen must be rated as likely at any time to hit a winning streak and ground may be gained as rapidly as it has been lost.

Meanwhile two teams are crowding at the heels of both Giants and Yankees and they must be added to the list of real contenders. In the National League the Pirates are showing a disposition to step along about as fast as the McGrawmen have been moving and only a game separates the two teams. The Pirates had won six in a row before they were stopped by the Robins yesterday in a hard fought battle. In the American League the White Sox are coming along at a clip that will force the Yankees to increase their speed or drop into third place.

It is seldom that so many real contenders are to be found in the major leagues as the races go to mid-August. At this stage it is usual to have two teams fighting it out in each league, but the percentage tables today show four pennant contenders in the National League and three in the American. Judging from recent happenings some surprising upsets will be recorded week after week as the races near October with the winners in doubt until September begins to wane.

As a result of the publicity given to a prospective challenge from a Canadian for a series of races to be held for the America's Cup next Summer it seems probable that one will be forthcoming, regardless of whether it be directly through Alexander C. Ross and the Royal Cape Breton Yacht Squadron or some other yachting organization of the Dominion. Canadian sportsmen have apparently decided that anything which has been so heralded must be carried out to preserve the good name of Canadian sportsmanship, and it seems to be just a question whether the original program is to be ratified or another constructed.

There are many who believe that popular subscription arrangement would fail to meet with sufficient support to carry it through without substantial aid from the wealthier yachting enthusiasts of the Dominion, but, whether it be through popular subscription or from a syndicate or a single individual, the fact is that the chances of a challenge being received by the New York Yacht Club for a race for the old cup next year are extremely good.

When that challenge does arrive, will it call for a schooner or a sloop, and will it necessitate the building of other useless craft like the Resolute and Shamrock IV., which are unsuited to meet ordinary conditions off Sandy Hook or Newport, or will those who have to do with the kind of craft that may race decide upon a more sane and substantial basis for design and construction that will result in producing craft possessed of future value? That is a question that greatly interests the yachting fraternity of this country and Canada at the present time.

To many it seems but reasonable to suppose that some means might be arrived at whereby it would be possible for some foreign yacht club to challenge and America to defend with such a type of yacht as would have some after value and not merely be a racing machine, hardly able to endure for the time of the trials and the races themselves, and having no ability to weather a fair blow off shore.

At the present time challenges are based chiefly on a water line stipulation, beyond which designers and builders may go to any extremes as regards sail area and lightness, according to their willingness to pay the tax in time allowance. Possibly a challenge based on rating with scantling restrictions might solve the problem, allowing sturdy craft with a later usefulness to be turned out. When all is said, the chief objection to receiving challenges for the America's Cup at present is based on the fact that it calls for a large expenditure of money with nothing to show for it after the last race is sailed for the cup.

That being the case, it seems reasonable to suppose that the New York Yacht Club might be willing so to amend certain conditions susceptible of change as to cause the building of yachts with continuing value. This might lead several yachtsmen to build, whereas there are few who care to sink a considerable sum in a single season's toy, and a not over useful one at that.

As things are at present constituted the financial and other interests of certain yacht building concerns appear to be held of greater consequence than the best interests of the sport or the money of those who have to pay the bills for building and maintaining these mere racing machines.

GOLF

A commendable farsightedness, a sensible understanding of the needs and wishes of all golfers, and an abundance of shrewd diplomacy have resulted in new golf rules and definitions which for the first time in the history of the sport in America should be acceptable to all. The special committee of the United States Golf Association, headed by a railroad president and comprising a corporation head, wealthy broker, and three business men who went to Scotland in May for conferences with the Royal and Ancient at St. Andrews, has accomplished a splendid work.

There was much more to their task than patching up an objectionable rule of play or transposing an interpretation here and there in the golf code. They sought to develop a set of regulations that would satisfy every corner of the globe where the game is played and to eliminate differences of opinion and practice. What is most satisfactory is the fact that they seem to have succeeded. They looked into the future in terms of the past. They saw that certain rules obtaining in England for decades had been altered here for Americans, and instead of widening this breach they closed it.

An outstanding instance of this was on the amateur eligibility question. England has always considered a links architect as an amateur. In America he was a professional, and such a man as Walter J. Travis was transplanted from amateur to professional classification. At St. Andrews in June the U. S. G. A. solons bent toward the English view, wiped out this injustice in the American code, and now the two nations are as one in the matter.

The stymie problem was even more intricate. England wanted the status untouched, the U. S. G. A. wanted a midway agreement, and the Western Golf Association, which abolished the stymie several years ago even in tournaments, wanted it eradicated. Again was the endeavor to arrive at a standard rule successful, and in this case the English bent forward—bent considerably, in fact—against all their ancient golf traditions. As a result the objectionable features of the stymie were removed, and there appears no reason why the West and the East of the United States should not be in accord after the years of differences. What tact, what keen arguments, subtle, kid-glove handling, what diplomacy must have been employed to induce Britain's solid and stolid, moss-backed and conservative old guard, the Royal and Ancient, to agree to put the new rule to a referendum!

Henceforth there is nothing to prevent golf being played in the identical manner wherever a course exists, at Manila or Muirfield, at Vancouver or Singapore, at Cape Town or Piping Rock. Excepting only such pastimes—hardly sports—as hunting and fishing, golf is the sole game which is a battle of ability and wits against nature. Baseball is played on a regulation diamond, as free as possible from imperfection. The same is true of the football gridiron and the tennis court. In golf there are no two courses alike, no two greens the same, no bunkers, no traps, no brooks, no clumps of trees, none of the obstacles just like others on other courses. For that reason the rules should be standardized, since the grounds cannot be. It would be absurd to have baseball played in Canada with four strikes and five balls and in the United States with three and four. What a deplorable state of affairs would exist if tennis in England had a six foot net and in Australia one of three feet. Similarly there is no reason why New York golf should be different from the Chicago game, or both distinct from the British fashion of play. The U. S. G. A. committeemen have prevented this in conferences that will go down in history as epochal.

TURF

Ever since Man o' War defeated John P. Grier and thereby disposed of the last of his rivals among the three-year-olds, racing folk have been trying to think up conditions for a race that would afford a real test for the champion so that it might be determined just how great he really is. It appears that results of the first week of racing at Saratoga have suggested just the test desired. This is a race between Man o' War and Commander J. K. L. Ross's Sir Barton, which came back in his best form in the Saratoga Handicap. There is no doubt that Man o'War and Sir Barton are the two greatest horses in the country today and it is difficult to conceive of a race that would arouse more interest than one with these two among the starters. In fact, since Sir Barton reappeared before the public there has been a general demand for a race between these horses.

It seems quite safe to say also that the public desire will be gratified before the end of the season. Man o' War has a few stake engagements among three-year-olds to fill yet, but there is already talk of a meeting with Sir Barton either in the Saratoga Cup Race, on the closing day at the Spa, or in some stake event at one of the later meetings.

As a first test it is to be hoped that the horses will meet in a weight-for-age race, which is the fairest test either can be put to. In the Saratoga Cup, for instance, Sir Barton would carry 126 pounds, against 116 for Man o' War, over a mile and three-quarters, and the result, barring accidents, would be accepted as selecting the better horse. This is the test that the public generally wishes to see made, and it is believed that Mr. Riddle and Mr. Ross will provide accordingly. A handicap at other than the scale weights might not provide as satisfactory a result.

There is no doubt that Sir Barton is better fitted than any other horse in the country to give Man o' War a hard race, and to test him for a possible weakness. Certainly no other horse has made the champion show his ability to the limit. Man o' War, though only a three-year-old, is already a larger horse than Sir Barton and a longer strider. The outcome of the race would probably depend on courage, and it is difficult to say now which has the stronger heart.

STRONG FIELD FOR SARATOGA SPECIAL

SARATOGA, N. Y., Aug. 8.—Leonardo II., the big son of Sweep and Ethel Pace, which sprinted five furlongs in less than 59 seconds here on Friday, when he defeated the almost equally fast Hildur and some eight or ten others in an overnight race, will be the candidate of the stable of James W. McClelland in the Saratoga Special which will be renewed next Saturday. The Special bids fair to bring out the two-year-old stars of the current season. Probably as many as twelve fast youngsters of both sexes will start. There will be no penalties, no allowances. Each starter must shoulder scale weight without reference to earlier successes or failures and this condition makes the Special affair a square test of the quality of the competing horses.

Harry Payne Witney will have two starters. There will be Exodus, a winner at Saratoga, and Tryster, the juvenile star of the Belmont Park and Jamaica meeting. Edward R. Bradley will be represented by Black Servant. Richard T. Wilson has Dimmesdale and Kirk Levington in this season. Other prospective starters are John H. Rossetter's Montalvo, George W. Loft's Halu, Mrs. Payne Whitney's Touch Me Not, winner of the Great American at Aqueduct, and Morton L. Schwartz's Care Free.

NEWPORT TENNIS TODAY.

NEWPORT, R. I., Aug. 8.—For he first day's play in the annual invitation tennis tournament here beginning tomorrow, the championship court has been assigned to the singles match between Willis E. Davis of San Francisco, runner-up in last week's Seabright tournament, and Wallace F. Johnson of Philadelphia, the chop-stroke expert. Another contest expected to attract much attention will be played on the clubhouse court between William T. Tilden of Philadelphia, Davis Cup player, and Alfred S. Dabney of Boston.

In the doubles, which will start in the afternoon, Dabney and Nathaniel W. Niles will meet Craig Biddle and Willard Botsford in the feature match.

WEST POINT RIDERS LOSE.

RUMSON, N. J., Aug. 8.—In a post-tournament polo match played today before the largest gallery of society folk assembled at the Rumson Country Club this season, a picked Rumson team defeated West Point, winner of the Rumson Country Club and Monmouth County Cups in the recent polo tourney, by the score of 10 goals to 8. The game was hard and closely fought throughout the eight periods of play, and the result was in doubt until the last minute.

Harry East, a seven-goal player, scored six of the ten goals for Rumson, and his brilliant all-round game, together with Captain A. H. Wilson's clever work in scoring five goals for West Point, featured the exciting match.

FINAL REACHED IN WOODMERE TENNIS

Two Teams Survive in Semi-Final Round of Invitation Doubles Tourney.

A number of the leading tennis players of the metropolitan district traveled down to Woodmere, L. I., yesterday, to take part in the first invitation doubles tournament of the Peninsula Club, and after a strenuous day of activity, on courts surprisingly recovered from the heavy rain of Saturday, two teams survived in the final round—Albert J. Ostendorf and Henry H. Bassford, and J. Harry Steinkampf and W. Halsey Wood, all representing the New York Tennis Club. The event will probably be finished next Sunday.

There were several thrilling struggles on the way, with the Anderson family, as usual, well represented. Frank, the younger and harder-hitting son, paired with his fellow-member of the Terrace-Kings County Club, R. V. Lake, worked his way to the semi-finals with a brilliant three-set victory over Charles Chambers and Gerald Donaldson, 6—2, 4—6, 7—5, only to go down before Ostendorf and Bassford in straight sets, 6—3, 11—9. Anderson senior was twice represented in the event, being finally eliminated in partnership with H. B. O'Boyle after another three-set argument which Ostendorf and Bassford won by scores of 6—3, 7—9, 9—7.

First Round—Frederick G. Anderson and Charles A. Anderson defeated Wallace Cremin and Warren Kelly, 6—1, 6—2; E. O'Boyle and B. H. Dwight defeated S. O'Brien and J. W. Stoddard, 6—4, 6—3; Harold Taylor and Augustin Healy defeated J. Cuskley and C. A. Garvey, 6—1, 6—2.

Second Round—Frank T. Anderson and R. V. Lake defeated R. McLoughlin and E. McLoughlin, 6—0, 6—2; Charles Chambers and Gerald Donaldson defeated Royal D. Richey and Cecil Donaldson, 7—5, 6—3; Albert J. Ostendorf and Henry H. Bassford defeated R. Storer and Q. Disher, 6—1, 6—2; Harold Taylor and Healy defeated E. O'Boyle and Dwight, 12—10, 6—3; J. H. Steinkampf and W. Halsey Wood defeated H. J. Curtis and J. McLoughlin, 6—3, 6—2.

Third Round—Frank Anderson and Lake defeated Chambers and Gerald Donaldson, 6—2, 4—6, 7—5; Paul Martin and Embree H. Henderson defeated George S. Groesbeck and Sigmund Spaeth, 6—3, 6—4; Steinkampf and Wood defeated Taylor and Healy, 6—3, 6—2; Ostendorf and Bassford defeated F. G. Anderson and H. B. O'Boyle, 6—3, 7—9, 9—7.

Semi-Final Round—Ostendorf and Bassford defeated Frank Anderson and Lake, 6—3, 11—9; Steinkampf and Wood defeated Martin and Henderson, 6—4, 2—[illegible]

OPEN GOLF ENTRIES NOW NUMBER 246

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 8.—This smoky town on the Maumee River hasn't had so much fun since Armistice Day or a year ago when Jack Dempsey and Jess Willard mixed things up. Everybody is talking golf, and making guesses and bets on the national open championship, which will begin officially Tuesday at daybreak. Even street car conductors as they collect fares on the way out to the Inverness Club talk glibly, but not too intelligently about stymies and dormies and volunteer information about So-and-So's latest practice round.

In two of the big hotels, signs greet arrivals, reading "All Rooms Sold Out, Aug. 9 to 14, Open Golf Tournament," and boarding houses are getting the overflow. Newly painted banners, bunting and signboards are on every corner directing the way to Inverness. There never was such a tournament in America as this twenty-fourth annual, in size of entry, interest or crowds who are here to see Hagen, Barnes, Vardon, Ray, Edgar, Evans, Jones and all the other favorites.

The additional forty-four nominations, which were made officially today as a result of telegraphic orders from Wynant D. Vanderpool of Newark, Secretary of the U. S. G. A., who will arrive tomorrow, have caused more sleepless hours for the officials who thought they had arranged every last detail.

A Huge Entry List.

The total is now 246, exceeding by nearly one hundred that of the largest previous championship. These post entries include, in addition to Chick Evans, the names of a dozen or more others who always have been regarded as dangerous men to tamper with in a golf fixture. George Sargent is one of them, and others are William Creavy, the brilliant young Kansas City professional; E. P. Murphy of Salem, Mass.; Otto Hackbarth, Cincinnati; Frank McNamara of Cherry Valley, Garden City; DeWitt Balch, the amateur star from Cincinnati; Stewart Maiden of St. Louis, formerly of Atlanta, who is credited with developing both Bobbie Jones and Miss Alexa Stirling; Leo Diegel of Chicago, Willie Melhorn of Tulsa, Okla., and Wallie Nelson of Indianapolis.

They have all been obliged to take the leavings in starting times. Previously the contestants were to tee up from 8:30 until 4:40. Under the arrangements for the new pairings, the first pair will get off at 7:15 in the morning and the last at 5:30 in the afternoon, bringing the finish of the last pair up to well after 8 o'clock.

The hundreds who visited the Inverness course today were not there solely to see Harry Vardon and Ted Ray in their exhibition. Practically all of the entrants are here, many having arrived Wednesday last, and their daily stint is two rounds of practice. Walter Hagen and Jim Barnes are the only absentees of importance, having decided to remain in Chicago and rest from their strenuous week. They will get here on an early train tomorrow.

Jones Does a 72.

Interest today centred around Bobbie Jones, who was having his introduction to Inverness, and who proceeded to waste no time showing the natives a few details about golf. Par of the course is 72, and a stiff one at that, yet Jones ripped off a 72 today apparently without half trying. He paired with J. Douglas Edgar, Canadian open champion, who also took a 72, and won a best-ball match from Leo Diegel and Thomas Johnson, Minnesota amateur champion, by 1 up. Both Jones and Edgar took fours on the fifth.

Jones had worse luck in the afternoon, took 43 for the first half and quit counting. Evidently Diegel didn't get enough for one day, and after lunch he paired with Howard B. Lee, a Detroit amateur, in a match against Chick Evans and Harry Turple. Diegel and Lee won by 3 and 2, Diegel taking a 73, but Evans getting into trouble and using up about eighty strokes in going around.

Several others had good scores and at least one promising quartet started out happily enough, but came back with long faces. This comprised Alex Smith and Gil Nichols, former champions; T. D. Armour, the Scot, who holds the amateur title of France, and Bob Macdonald. They wouldn't tell even their friends what they took.

Other scores today were Aleck Pirie, North Shore, 79; Tomberid, Fox Hills, 74; Joe Mitchell, Montclair, 73; Emmet French, Youngstown, 73; Willie MacFarlane, Port Washington, 74, and Louis E. Tellier, Braeburn, 72. Pat O'Hara of Shackamaxon tried out the last nine holes and took 36.

RAY AND VARDON IN FORM.

Special to The New York Times.

TOLEDO, Aug. 8.—Ted Ray, partner extraordinary of Harry Vardon, paid the Inverness Club the rarest of compliments today. Ray actually discarded his twelve-pound woolen golf jacket, which he has worn at all matches and which he has vowed he would never be without, and donned a light Palm Beach coat for his exhibition match. Big Ted made his manager, Arthur Peterson, promise that he wouldn't go so far as to make him give up his brier pipe as a reward for becoming a dude. There was good reason for it, however, for Toledo in August is almost as hot as the Arizona town made famous by Irvin Cobb's story about the dog chasing the rabbit when both were proceeding at a walk. It's an actual fact that Toledo trolley cars carry ice water coolers, the familiar inverted glass demijohn and all.

Vardon and Ray for their daily exercise defeated a pair of local professionals today, Charles Lorms of Inverness and Deke White of Sylvania, by 2 and 1. Ray clicked off an approximate 74, Lorms 75, White 77 and Vardon 78. But the Britishers cared less about the victory than they did about inspecting the scene of the championship. Both Vardon and Ray took fours to their opponents' fives on the very first hole, and thenceforth stayed in the lead, rounding the turn 3 up.

Ray began to draw applause by winning the 430-yard fourth hole in sensational fashion, and thereafter the crowd was partial to the giant red-faced marvel from Oxhey. Ray hooked his drive on the fourth far off the line, and to the fifth fairway his second, with a brassie, was not only short of the green but in an apple orchard to the right and under a bank. He chipped up, barely getting to the edge of the green, and then holed a thirty-five foot putt to win the hole, all the others taking fives. On the fifth, Vardon's out from a deep sand pit to the left of the green went in the cup, but hopped out, forcing him to take a half with White. Ray's two on the eighth, as the result of a tricky downhill putt, and his eight-footer to win the long ninth in a birdie, stood out as features.

Ray's putter was behaving unusually well today and he sank a twelve-foot tap on the eleventh hole to win. Lorms, the popular local favorite, gave the fans a chance for applause by heeling a thirty-footer from the edge of the green to win the twelfth. He sank one on the fifteenth, which was eighteen feet long, for another win, White halving this latter by straight golf. Vardon needed an approximate six on this hole, for, after he had slammed his second into a trap and taken two to get out, he picked out.

The best ball and individual cards follow:

TOLEDO, Ohio, Aug. 8.—Golfers of former years who are too rheumatic to play, but who are on hand for this year's national open to watch, agree that Iverness is "doing it up brown." Every one of the 246 competitors has been assigned an automobile for the duration of the tourney. Club members own most of them and will meet the players at their hotels early in the morning, transport them eight miles to the course, and bring them back to town. Five hundred members from Iverness and its local rival, the Sylvania Club, have been assigned as scorers. One will be assigned to follow and score each match. A man on horseback, galloping around the course this afternoon, made a few golfers rub their eyes. It was a new sight for the links. The rider was discovered to be William J. Rockefeller, local resident and cousin of John D., and in charge of the Iverness greens.

DAVIS CUP TENNIS PLAYERS ARE BACK

William M. Johnston, William T. Tilden, 2d, Richard Norris Williams, 2d, and Charles S. Garland, with Captain Samuel Hardy, composing the victorious Davis Cup tennis team that recently made a clean sweep of all the available court honors abroad, arrived yesterday from England on the Cunard liner Imperator and were met by a throng of friends, including several officials of the United States Lawn Tennis Association. The tall Tilden, newly crowned world's champion through his triumph over Gerald Patterson at Wimbledon, was the centre of interest, and a special delegation of his admirers from Philadelphia, his home city, came to the pier to give him a vociferous welcome. He and his comrades were kept busy for some time by the camera men.

To the reporters Tilden said: "I am glad to be back once more in the United States and, of course, I am proud that an American won the Challenge Cup at Wimbledon. That trophy will arrive later and will be sent to the Germantown Cricket Club in Philadelphia. My plans are still undecided and I am not sure that I shall go to Newport to participate in the tournament there."

The new champion said that the entire team had been most hospitably entertained everywhere in England and that the attitude of the British public during the matches was thoroughly friendly and sportsmanlike. All of the players kept in good condition during the trip home, getting as much exercise as possible on deck, in which they were joined by Major E. B. Harran, an English expert of the racquet, who appeared in several American tournaments last season.

Johnston, Tilden, Williams and Garland not only won the right to challenge Australasia for the Davis Cup by their decisive victories over France and England on the courts of Eastbourne and Wimbledon, but individually distributed among themselves the highest honors in every tournament they entered. Tilden is champion of Great Britain and of the world by his defeat of Gerald Patterson in the challenge round at Wimbledon, which he reached after winning from such stars as J. C. Parke, A. R. F. Kingscote and Zenzo Shimidzu. Johnston won the London title, with a victory over Tilden himself in the final round. Williams and Garland are the British doubles champions, having earned also the team title of the world by their survival at Wimbledon, where their victims included Johnston and Tilden, in partnership.

Both of the Davis Cup matches were won without the loss of an individual decision, and Holland defaulted in the final round, leaving the way clear for the challenge round, which will be played at Auckland, New Zealand, the last three days of December. Against France, Tilden and Johnston defeated Gobert and Laurentz, individually and in combination, and a week later they repeated the feat against Kingscote and Parke, the best two men in England. Johnston was defeated by Parke at Wimbledon, and by Williams in a minor tournament, these being his only defeats, while Tilden lost only to Johnston at the Queen's Club. Williams lost to M. J. G. Ritchie in the London championship, and to Mavrogordato at Wimbledon, but won all his other matches, including one with Parke and one with Johnston.

MISS ZINDERSTEIN AND WASHBURN WIN

SEABRIGHT, N. J., Aug. 8.—Miss Marion Zinderstein and Watson M. Washburn made a clean sweep of the honors in the invitation tournament at the Seabright Lawn Tennis and Cricket Club today by winning the mixed doubles event in partnership, after having individually annexed both the singles and shared in the women's and men's doubles victories respectively. Their victims in the postponed final round were Miss Edith Sigourney and Dean Mathey, the match going in straight sets, 6—2, 6—2, and in a semi-final immediately preceding they disposed of Miss Leslie Bancroft and Leonard Beekman by the closer scores of 8—6, 6—4. Miss Eleanor Tennant and Clarence J. Griffin defaulted the other semi-final to Miss Sigourney and Mathey because of the California girl's engagement at Greenwich and the necessity of an early start for Providence and Newport.

The semi-final match was begun shortly after 10 o'clock in the morning, with an interested crowd filling most of the seats in the grand stand. Miss Bancroft and Beekman put up a sturdy resistance from the start, and, after sending the games to deuce in the opener, even looked for a time like possible winners. But Miss Zinderstein and Washburn gradually arrived at top form, and their steady playing eventually saved the set at 8—6. With this in hand they came more strongly in the second, to take the match by a count of 6—4, both of the losers maintaining a fast pace to the finish.

Although the heat was terrific, this match seemed only to act as an incentive to the Boston-New York pair, for they began the final shortly afterward in far more convincing style. They broke through Mathey's service at the outset, and Washburn sent the lead to 2—0 for his side. Both girls then won on service, but Mathey lost again, making the score 4—1, with Washburn's delivery adding one more. Miss Sigourney succeeded in winning her serve once more, but Miss Zinderstein followed suit, and closed out the set at 6—2.

The second set was similar, the winners getting a break in the third game, only to lose their advantage temporarily, but coming through with a run of four straight games for the set and match, 6—2. Mathey weakened toward the close, missing many of his desperate attempts to half-volley as he charged for the net, and winning his service only once as a result. He mixed spectacular shots with his errors, however, and was a hard worker throughout.

Washburn stuck to the deliberate methods that had brought him such phenomenal success all through the week, and there was nothing haphazard in his attack. He covered court beautifully, staying back on many occasions until he saw a sure chance for a kill close up. At the net he was both severe and steady, and Miss Zinderstein supported him with some magnificent volleying of her own. The little Bostonian played the game in almost masculine style, asking and giving no quarter, and she was able to handle the hardest shots sent at her by Mathey. Miss Sigourney also did well, but in the face of the harder hitting and quicker thinking combination her well rounded game did not have a chance to assert its best qualities.

An exhibition men's doubles match was staged later, with Holcombe Ward and Bernon S. Prentice, the club champions, facing William J. Clothier and George L. Wrenn, bringing to an end the best fought and best conducted tennis tournament seen at Seabright in some years.

FIRST SET.

									Tl. Pts.	G.
Miss Zinderstein-Washburn:	4	4	1	4	4	4	1	4	26	6

FIND RETAIL BOOM DUE TO PRICE CUTS

Extensive advertising and price-cutting have produced increased retail business all over the country in spite of the decline in orders by jobbers and retailers, according to a general survey of business conditions in seventeen States and parts of Canada, compiled by A. [illegible] Allison, Secretary of the International Association of Garment Manufacturers, on the basis of replies to questionnaires sent to every member of the association.

The survey shows a decided increase in Summer business in 1920 over 1919. One cause of this activity, which is pointed out, is that some lines of merchandise have been disposed of at figures which are lower than those at which the retailer can replace his stocks.

Because of the extreme caution of retailers and jobbers in placing orders, so many factories have been shut down or run on part time, according to the report, that a revival of buying would place the demand far beyond the supply. One manufacturer is quoted as saying: "In another four to six weeks there will be two buyers to one seller, and a severe scarcity of goods is inevitable."

After the sale of crops, a heavy retail business is expected in some parts of the country this Fall. California business men are quoted as attributing the falling off in orders more to destructive rumors than to any concrete feature of business conditions. The reports from Illinois indicate that luxuries are increasingly difficult to sell, but that normal supplies of staples will be purchased. Business is dull in Georgia, it is stated, but retailers have no surplus and must buy soon. In Connecticut it is reported that business is light, but that prices are holding up, and little except odds and ends are being disposed of at special sales. In Kansas, Iowa and Indiana retail business ranges from satisfactory to very good, with first-rate prospects. The report in part says:

"Retail business is a little quiet at present, but a fair volume is kept up constantly by the forced sales. The feeling is that the public will buy, but must first be convinced that prices are cut under the market. As a whole, farmers are well satisfied and business is in a healthy condition.

"The specialty stores in this section report business poor. Men's furnishings stores catering to the working class report fair business, with customers looking for low priced merchandise. The outlook for Fall business is considered exceptionally promising. A healthy caution in buying on the part of stores and consumers is reported from Pennsylvania."

Spain to Cancel Newsprint Duty.

MADRID, Aug. 7.—Import duties on newsprint and paper for books will be abolished by a royal decree which the Minister of Finance has decided to issue. He expressed the opinion today that the measure would have little influence on the price of paper, but said he consented to the experiment in order to meet the demands of publishers and authors.

Long Time Bonds

The amount and variety of long time bonds available at present low prices is limited, owing to the fact that most of the new issues are of short or medium duration. Corporations are unwilling to pay present burdensome rates of interest on new issues, except for a relatively short period.

Those desiring long term investments must depend largely upon old seasoned issues, and many experienced investors are now buying this class of security.

We can supply a limited amount of long time bonds at prices yielding around 7%, and we recommend the purchase of such bonds at the present time. We shall be glad to send details and circulars to those interested.

FINANCIAL SITUATION

Pressure of Credit Contraction Carries Stocks Down—The Business Situation.

It would be impossible to select the single influence which had most weight in events within last week's financial and commodity markets. The facts show that powerful forces were at work, but their manifestations were clearer in their direct results than in what they forecast for the next few weeks. Industrial stocks fell sharply, railroad stocks held their ground fairly well; railroad bonds rose from 1 to 3 points. Future wheat contracts, starting from around $2.06¼ per bushel, advanced more than 32 cents amid violent fluctuations. Cotton moved downward. The European exchanges fell rapidly practically every day, sterling selling off from its maximum quotation of 3.72 to 3.55¼ before a late recovery lifted the quotation about 15 cents to the pound. Except in the stock and bond market quick changes of price were a marked feature of transactions, denoting a high degree of uncertainty among participants. The week was decidedly different from what might have been expected on the strength of two constructive developments. On Monday the security markets opened with comfortable thoughts centred about the freight and passenger rate award by the Interstate Commerce Commission. Receiving about 90 per cent. of what had been asked for, the railroads and their bankers had no complaint to make about the Commerce Commission's attitude. It was realized everywhere that the roads had been placed in an excellent way to increase their facilities, enhance their credit and move into a position where the country's traffic could be handled economically and with expedition. The second beneficial factor was the Government's report on cotton condition, showing that near the end of July so great an improvement had occurred from the corresponding date in June that an increase of approximately 1,000,000 bales in the crop yield was promised, making possible an outturn of more than 12,500,000 bales.

Ordinarily, such important events as these would have found answer in a strong tone of stocks. But it was evident all the way along that less tangible but more effective influences were working to counteract the railroad rate increase and the excellent cotton outlook, together with reports of satisfactory harvesting condidtions in the leading wheat regions. Stocks fell steadily with the only support of moment coming from the casual short covering by professional traders. The serious situation in Poland, threatening armed intervention between Poland and Soviet Russia by allied forces, undoubtedly tended to increase market depression from day to day, but it was noticeable in Wall Street comment that this factor was held less eventful than other matters. What impressed the market following more than the foreign news was evidence that banking effort to contract loans was growing more insistent, if anything, as time passed. And it seemed as though talk of business reaction was vieing with the credit situation as a foremost influence behind sales of stocks.

The argument could be presented that the underpinning of the stock market was measurably strengthened by the week's heavy sales. The widely held theory that a readjustment toward a lower price level is under way in many lines received justification in the movement of stocks, for the share market is believed to discount industrial and business occurrences in advance. Thus, a severe break brings the time for stability nearer much more quickly than a prolonged period of dwindling quotations as in May and June. The hurried closing out of speculative "pools," such as the week witnessed, also hastens the approach of a normal, healthy, market period, although the process is necessarily painful. The argument could be made more satisfactory if it could be extended into assurance that so severe a decline was enough to bring an early end to the reaction. But the impossibility of this was emphasized last week by two factors; first, the absence of complete information about the drift of industrial activity and earnings, and, second, by the implied intention of the banks, recognized through the calling of a round amount of loans to continue restrictions upon stock market money.

The significance in a financial way of the Russian advance into Poland could be determined more nearly than at present if the real intent of the Soviet powers were recognized. As the week ended the military outlook was decidedly discouraging, but only as much of the diplomatic exchanges were coming to light as the British Premier elected to make public. The foreign Government bonds on the local market failed to disclose any great concern among holders. While one of the United Kingdom 5½s declined something more than a point, the others were rather firm. The position of these securities may have reflected confidence that Lenin and Trotzky were pressing Poland and threatening a descent upon the Western nations for the purpose of obtaining recognition and favorable commercial terms from Great Britain and France. This belief was expressed in cabled news from European centres, but it went no further than the presentation of opinion. It hardly offset the concrete fact that a victorious army was moving forward with the purpose of overpowering Poland and causing difficulties for the nations to the west.

As in stocks, purely speculative transactions urged along the decline of the exchanges and clouded the real meaning of the movement. Transactions directed toward the fall of quotations originated partly in foreign financial centres and were doubtless made more extensive by war talk, but on this side it appeared as though the weakness of the market until Friday, without reference to the causes, was the real stimulus behind sales. Exporters with grain and cotton bills hastened to liquidate them as soon as the price tendency became plain and the unloading of large blocks of long bills helped to force quotations down with speed. When pressure from this source lightened the market recovered.

The week's reports on business conditions were no more reassuring than those of the week before. The closing down of several important manufacturing clothing establishments because of a diminished demand carried reference back to the recent cessation of work by leading New England clothmakers. Index numbers derived from average prices of commodities showed declines during July as compared with June and May, particularly in wholesale quotations of food materials. The indication of business reaction has been clear for some time, so long, in fact, that the question may be raised whether or not the movement has gone far enough to imply early stability and a recovery in the Autumn months.

SPAIN'S EMIGRANT FEES.

Amount American Company Must Pay Made Public.

MADRID, Aug. 7.—Minister of Labor Canal today made public a royal decree stating that the authorization granted an American steamship line to handle the emigration traffic from Spain is purely provisional.

If 2,000 emigrants are carried, the license costs 10,000 pesetas, and for every additional 500 emigrants, 750 pesetas. If the total number carried exceeds 11,500, the license payable amounts to 25,000 pesetas. Emigration agents are to pay from 1,000 to 5,000 pesetas for annual licenses.

Bilbao Transportation Halted.

BILBAO, Spain, Aug. 7.—This city is without vehicular traffic as a result of the complete strike of transport and dock workers. Other lines of labor threaten to join the movement, which is giving authorities here much anxiety. Preparations for Bilbao's annual festival have been stopped, and dozens of arrests have been made in consequence of a series of incidents in the streets.

Westinghouse Air Brake Company

Its Subsidiaries

By 1898 the American Brake Company and the Boyden Air Brake Company had been taken over by the Westinghouse Air Brake Company. Corporations were formed in Canada, France and England to care for the company's business in those countries.

In 1917 over 95% of the outstanding stock of the Union Switch and Signal Company was acquired. The company also controls the National Brake and Electric Co., Westinghouse Traction Brake Co., and the Westinghouse Pacific Coast Brake Co.

The extensive field covered by this company—the result of over 50 years of successfully supplying necessary appliances for railroads—indicates its strong position and emphasizes the attractiveness of Westinghouse Air Brake Company stock.

ROADS SHOW PUBLIC HOW RATE RISE HITS

WARN OF PROFITEERING

National Security League Backs Pennsylvania's Freight Charge Advice.

The New York Central Lines and the Pennsylvania System yesterday issued statements working out the new railroad rates recently allowed by the Interstate Commerce Commission and showing, in the case of the Central, the effect on suburban passenger fares, and, on the Pennsylvania, what the new charges do to freight tariffs. The Pennsylvania incorporated in its exposition a warning to the public that the slightly increased freight charges would not justify attempts to profiteer, and the National Security League backed up the road's warning.

The New York Central's figures covered all suburban traffic on all the New York divisions and disclosed that the road was carrying 25,851 passengers daily to and from the 150 stations on the Harlem, West Shore, Hudson, and Putnam lines. The 20 per cent. increase in passenger fares is effective on Sept. 1. The railroad's tabulation revealed that the largest commuting point on the four branches is White Plains, where 2,403 monthly commutation tickets were averaged so far this year, about 600 more than in 1919, and a 33 1-3 increase since 1916.

The West Shore claims the second largest point, Ridgefield Park, N. J., where 1,859 monthly tickets were sold, while Yonkers, on the Hudson Division, comes in third with 1,359 monthly commutations. Highland, the extreme commutation point of the West Shore, discloses one commuter, and he will pay only one-half cent per mile more for his daily trips.

Poughkeepsie, New York's "farthest north" commuting point, has 123 daily riders. Analysis of the figures given shows that the housing situation in New York City has greatly expanded the suburban population, scarcely a station along any of the four lines failing to record a substantial gain in travel. Especially is this manifest on the Harlem Division, which, with 10,171 travelers, leads all the lines in volume of traffic.

Warn Against Profiteering.

"The public should be forewarned and forearmed against any attempts to take advantage of the freight rate advance for the purpose of justifying profiteering," declared George Dallas Dixon, Vice President of the Pennsylvania, in charge of traffic. "While it is true that in the case of some few articles and commodities small increases in price may be justified, nevertheless, the amounts which in any instance could fairly be added to the present prices are a very small fraction of the whole and in the case of practically every article or commodity of daily consumption the increases in transportation charges are relatively so small as to be practically negligible."

Mr. Dixon submitted a short table disclosing that the increase warranted in a suit of men's clothing, sent by freight in less than carload lots from Baltimore to Philadelphia, would be only six mills, while the same increase was warranted on a pair of shoes dispatched in the same way from Boston to Philadelphia. A crate of eggs, however, thirty dozen of them, sent from Chicago to Philadelphia would cost 20.6 cents more under the new tariffs, while a barrel of flour, sent in a carload lot, from Minneapolis to Philadelphia, had thirty-three cents tacked onto it. A tub of butter sent from Chicago to the Quaker city increased 8.2 cents by carload lot, and 10.8 cents in less than carload shipment.

"Let us see," Mr. Dixon continued, "what these figures mean to the household consumer who buys flour by the sack, eggs and oranges by the dozen, and butter by the pound. Most flour is shipped in carload lots. Taking the rate from Minneapolis to Philadelphia the 40 per cent. increase will amount to 33 cents per barrel of 200 pounds. On a twenty-four-pound sack of flour, this will be just a trifle less than 4 cents. Even if the flour is shipped in less than carload lots the increase in the freight charge per twenty-four pounds would be 7 cents.

"As a crate of eggs contains thirty dozen it will be seen that on a carload shipment the added freight charges would be about one-half of a cent per dozen eggs, and in the less than carload shipment about two-thirds of a cent a dozen. Similarly, it will be observed that the increased freight charge on butter per pound from Chicago to Philadelphia, when sent in carload lots, would be about 4 mills, and on less than carload lots less than 5½ mills, in the one case a little less than and in the other a little more than half a cent a pound.

"We have not taken into account any improvements in the transportation service which enlarge facilities and increased equipment will afford. If this is taken into consideration with an ample locomotive and car supply to meet the requirements, many of the present delays and much of the inability to move the commerce of the country from point of origin to the place of consumption will disappear. The supply will more nearly equal the demand and it is self-evident that with the demand satisfied the stabilizing effect on prices is bound to appear.

"Coal is scarce all over the country. One of the factors entering into the cause is the lack of cars. Coal is selling at double, or in some cases, triple, what may be called normal prices. Think of the effect on the cost of living through this inability to transport coal as compared with a condition where every pound of coal that is mined could be immediately started to destination.

"Good and adequate transportation will serve the people of the country at large in dollars, where a freight rate increase is measured in cents, and just as soon as the additional facilities can be obtained, I am confident the result will be a real and considerable saving in the cost of living."

"There is great danger in the opinion of the National Security League," declared Charles D. Orth, its President, "that the freight rate increase will be used as an excuse or camouflage for still further increasing the high cost of living. For this reason, the league wishes to warn the people that the authorized increase in rates does not justify any rise in the prices of most of the things which the people use.

"The $1,500,000,000 advance in freight and passenger rates may seem a huge sum, but, when it is considered that this is not more than 2 per cent. on the annual production of the farms, factories and mines in the United States, a proper perspective can be obtained of how slightly the advance affects the cost and price of any particular commodity."

CLINTON HALL

As early as 1754 the business men of New York were laying the foundation for the splendid system of public libraries we have today. In that year subscriptions were raised and a room in the City Hall furnished with books. Among the trustees of the library were John Watts, William Walton and Robert R. Livingston—names afterward prominent in the annals of the Bank of the Manhattan Company. In 1828 the merchants of New York subscribed $335,000 for building and endowing Clinton Hall as a permanent home for the Mercantile Library. The President and leading patron of the Association for many years was Philip Hone, the younger brother and junior partner of John Hone, one of the founders of the Merchants' Bank (now merged into the Bank of the Manhattan Company). One of the strongest characteristics of American business men all through history has been their far-sighted contributions to the cause of general education; and much that is best in New York mercantile life can be traced to this and similar institutions, fostered by their wise public spirit.

SAFETY IS SOUGHT BY MANUFACTURERS

MAY TAKE OFF WAR LOAD

More Price Advances and Yet Others to Follow—Wire, Glass and Plaster Up.

Establishing ordinary factors of safety in the face of strange new conditions affecting prices, manufacturers of building materials begin to sense the breadth of the shortening market.

This shortage in volume of construction seems destined not to be reflected in lowering of prices as normally might be expected to result from waning of demand, but rather in higher prices next year and beyond. Commercial building projects have already taken up available building material mill capacity for the next four months.

Prices for these commodities delivered on job are already fixed by contract at prices as far below present market quotations as present market quotations will be below those of the Spring of 1921.

The shortening demand is not due to lethargy in potential building circles. It is due to continued instability of building material prices as a whole. Lending institutions have reluctance about making speculative building engagements when the cost base varies so greatly from month to month, and without speculative construction the full volume of potential construction cannot be attained.

Until speculative construction gets fairly well under way building material manufacturers cannot gauge the market's requirements with respect to shaping their own production program. Hence production will continue to be only at the rate of actual market requirement, supply being kept steadily just a little below demand.

As long as building material supply is exceeded by demand prices of building materials to the consumer will be without stability. Sixteen-dollar-a-ton coal as exacted by holders of spot coal; wood hoops for barrels that cost more than steel hoops because manufacturers cannot get steel hoops at any fair price; when plaster has to be shipped with burlap over the tops of barrels because manufacturers cannot buy wooden heads and leave any margin of profit over the cost of the packed commodity; cement shipped in open cars protected only by canvas tops and common brick being manufactured without definite knowledge of what the current year's manufacturing costs are to be—these are merely a few examples illustrating the danger of maintaining building material manufacturing plants without a sufficient margin of safety.

Building material production under such conditions is not destined to outreach the bounds of demand. Such conditions foster higher prices in the form of premiums which the speculative builder cannot afford to pay and upon which the lending companies will not negotiate loans.

So once more The Dow Service Daily Building Reports this week record further price advances and anticipate others. Plaster of paris, rolled, ribbed and figured wire glass, roofers and firebrick are affected. Cement, second-hand brick, lime and lumber, most of the metals and hollow tile are expected to move up. Linseed oil, however, has dropped, but this will not affect paint prices for some months, should the downward course continue.

New railroad freight rates have been discounted in the building trades as long ago as a year by terms of contract wherein any changes in handling costs are to be carried by or credited to the buyer. Very serious thought, however, is being centred by building interests in the treatment that building materials are to be accorded by the rate-making powers. An increase of 40 cents in the case of cement would average about 10 cents a barrel to the consumer's cost, whereas the same rate as applied to other merchandise would flow out to the consumer at the rate of a fraction of a cent a pound.

No further burden should be placed on building materials by rate-making powers if the home-builder is to be granted an even chance on his housing enterprise. Materials used in construction are shipped in carload lots. The majority of them are transported relatively short distances.

They occupy, furthermore, the full cubical contents or weight carrying capacity of the car. The freight rates on general merchandise under the tariffs of June 25, 1918, were fixed as a war measure at 25 per cent. The average rate on building materials was placed at 50 per cent.

Building material manufacturers, financiers and individuals contemplating the erection of homes, are wondering whether this strange discrimination will be adjusted to a more equitable basis when the new tariffs are announced. At that time the Government desired to retard building construction as a non-essential. Today the Government is trying to encourage construction as the great national necessity.

The freight rate on sand, for example, is often many times the value of the sand in the pit, while on a silk shirt the cost of transporting it across the continent is so small a per cent. of the selling price that it is negligible.

An increase of even $5 per 100 pounds in the rate on silk shirts would be barely noticeable, but any further advance in the freight rates on building materials will have a very evident effect of shutting the speculative builder out of the construction market and further aggravating the effect on building construction that the rate put into effect in 1918 had as a measure to hamper and restrict building construction.

BENSON DEFENDS RAIL DIFFERENTIAL

Does Not Fear the Loss of Shipping to Canada, He Tells Seattle Port Commissioner.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 8.—Provisions of the Merchant Marine Act giving preferential rail rates on export and import commodities carried in American bottoms are in line with practices adopted in Germany, Japan, France, Spain and other countries, Admiral Benson, Chairman of the United States Shipping Board declared in a letter to Commissioner of the Port W. T. Christensen, of Seattle, Wash., made public here today.

These provisions were inserted by Congress at the request of the Shipping Board, Admiral Benson said, and are designed to offset "the countless discriminations by other nations against American shipping with which the Shipping Board ships and privately owned vessels of the United States have had to contend."

"Allowing a differential export rate lower than the domestic rate upon the rail shipments within the country is purely a domestic prerogative," the Chairman declared. "Each nation may unquestionably determine for itself that such rates may be made and that they shall be limited in applications to cargo carried on vesels of its nationals. The Board of Trade report to the British Government made in 1918 regarding shipping policies conceded that the control of such practice cannot properly be made the subject of such a treaty."

Chairman Benson's letter was in reply to one from Commissioner Christensen, who declared that since the major part of the Orienttal commerce with Puget Sound was carried by foreign vessels, the enforcement of the discriminatory features of the Merchant Marine Act might result in the division of that commerce to Canadian ports. Admiral Benson said that threats of foreign carriers to transfer their Pacific coast operations to Vancouver, should preferential rates be granted for American ships, were not worthy of consideration.

"Japanese ships in the past," he said, "were able to quote the same rates to interior points in Japan as other nations were able to quote to the seaports of that country, a differential quite sufficient to have enabled them in the absence of like preferential rates within the United States for our own ships, to control the rail routings within the United States, and they have done so in many instances to the disadvantage of American ships and at times to certain American ports."

PLAN $100,000,000 FOREIGN TRADE FIRM

McHUGH MAY HEAD BOARD

Will Attempt to Distribute Stock of Company Over Entire Country.

Plans for the formation of a huge foreign trade financing corporation, which probably will be organized according to the provisions of the Edge bill, and sponsored by the American Bankers' Association, are beginning to take definite form. The tentative date for its organization is Jan. 1, next, and the capitalization may run as high as $100,000,000. John McHugh, Vice President of the Mechanics and Metals National Bank, and Chairman of the American Bankers Association's Committee on Commerce and Marine, is expected to become Chairman of the Board of Directors of the new corporation.

The idea of organizing such a corporation was conceived by Mr. McHugh some time ago, and, according to William F. Collins, who is Secretary of his committee, the plans are progressing nicely. A special committee of the Bankers' Association, recently appointed, has conferred with representatives of other national organizations interested in the development and maintenance of the country's foreign trade, and at one of the conferences adopted resolutions approving Mr. McHugh's plans and expressing the belief that it would be essential to the ultimate success of the venture to have him at the head of the proposed company.

In a statement issued by Mr. Collins yesterday it was set forth that the contemplated company would have ample resources and an efficient and thoroughly responsible personnel, and that it would attempt to enlist the active cooperation of bankers, exporters and importers, manufacturers and producers in general. Every possible emphasis will be placed by practical methods on the encouragement of national thrift and the increase of production, for the projectors of the scheme believe that only by such thrift and increased production can the foundation of foreign trade be securely established.

An effort will be made to distribute the stock of the proposed company as widely as possible in all parts of the country. The same policy of regional representation will be applied to the Board of Directors, which it is planned to compose of men of large affairs from the various important trade centres, as well as from specific industries. The foreign trade interests of the several sections of the United States will be given special attention by the corporation in proportion to the absorption of the corporation's debentures in each section. This procedure, it is said, will be designed to encourage thrift and production.

Mr. McHugh sailed for Europe on July 31, and announcement of the personnel of the Board of Directors and the officers of the corporation will not be made until his return.

CENTRAL AMERICAN UNION.

Guatemala Will Arrange Program for the Conference.

SAN SALVADOR, Republic of Salvador, Aug. 8.—Guatemala has been intrusted with the task of planning the program for the conference of delegates from the Central American countries, which is to be held on Sept. 15 for the purpose of discussings formation of the Central American Union. This union, it is expected, will replace the Central American Court of Justice.

Before the September meeting Guatemala has been advised to have organized an international Central American office with the authority to designate the seats of the conference and the work to be considered by the delegates.

Advertising is an Investment

ADVERTISING THAT INSPIRES ACTION

An advertisement may be so powerful in display or attractive in art that it cannot be overlooked, and yet so lacking in appeal that it inspires no buying action.

The action creating advertisement must have eye attraction that focuses attention on the product advertised. It must have a desire appeal that actually arouses in the mind of the reader a need for the product. It must possess every element of truthful, convincing salesmanship.

Some of the most successful advertisers have learned, to their profit, that Federal has developed to a very high degree the ability to produce advertising that inspires action.

There are many good bonds yielding from 8% to 12% selling at only 50% to 75% of the prices of other investments paying far less and which yield owners who have held them a few years only from 5% to 6%.

By making an exchange it is possible to get 1% or 2% more income per bond; 125% to 200% more bonds; entirely satisfactory security and assurances of earlier regaining the market value which the old investment cost.

Send us a brief list of some of your bonds and let us show you exactly how this can be done.

OUT OF TOWN REAL ESTATE.

FOR SALE—"Chatham," one of the most desirable and historically important country places in America, located fifty-five miles from Washington, on a terraced bluff, overlooking the Rappahannock River at Fredericksburg. Within ten minutes of station, with excellent express train service, and directly on the main automobile highway from Washington to the South now being concreted by the Government. The brick dwelling house, 210 feet long, built about 1722, is considered the finest example of long Colonial architecture in America. While carefully preserving every original detail of paneling, etc., the house has recently been thoroughly modernized by its present owner, Mr. Mark Sullivan, with its own water system, electric lights, hot water heat and four bathrooms. The brick stable, the barn, the dairy, the two guest houses and the tenant houses are supplied with electric light and running water. The fifty-three acres include fifteen acres of lawn, with magnificent trees, vegetable garden, orchard, asparagus bed, etc. This is one of the two or three finest and best preserved of the Virginia Colonial Manors. Among its innumerable historic associations is the fact that Washington spent his honeymoon here. Can be bought now at an extraordinarily reasonable figure. Address your own broker, or H. W. Hilleary, 1000 Vermont Av., Washington, D. C.

400 SAILORS RIOT, SHOOT UP BEACH

100,000 WATCH FIGHTING

Women and Girls Hurt in Crush as Men Try to Free Mate—100 Sailors Arrested.

REVERE, Mass., Aug. 8.—Federal troops from Fort Banks were rushed to Revere Beach tonight to deal with a crowd of sailors and marines in conflict with the police.

While thousands of Sunday night pleasure seekers looked on, the sailors and marines, joined by a few soldiers, until they numbered more than 400, took the prisoner from the officer and then gave battle to other members of the force.

The police returned the fire with revolvers and shotguns. Five sailors were seriously wounded and there were many minor injuries.

Help was summoned from the Chelsea police and the Boston Navy Yard. A detachment of 300 soldiers from Fort Banks, with fixed bayonets, was hurried to the scene and proceeded to clear the beach. The police estimated the crowd at the beach at the time of the rioting to be 100,000.

The naval authorities gave orders to the navy provost guard that every sailor in Revere was to be arrested. Late tonight more than 100 had been placed under arrest, and the authorities seemed to have gained control of the situation.

Several patrolmen were injured in the fighting, none seriously. The beach is under the control of the Metropolitan District Commission and is patrolled by the commission's police force.

Most of the minor injuries to policemen and bystanders were caused by flying stones when the mob hurled missiles at the police station. The windows were smashed and much of the furniture inside the station was broken.

Excitement among the onlookers was intense, especially when the officers fired volleys over their heads in an effort to frighten away the attacking party.

It was more than three hours before the soldiers and police, assisted by naval provost guards, succeeded in driving away the throngs of the curious. The police station was filled with prisoners, and many more were lined up outside under guard.

SKULL FINDER DUCKS SHOTS

While taking his wife through Columbus Park last night to show her the place where he found a skull Saturday, at the Court House excavation at Mission Place and Pearl Street, Joseph Danza of 110 Sullivan Street saw his younger brother, Toney, being roughly handled by two Italians. When he went to his brother's aid, one of the Italians grabbed his arm and shouted "Let him have it," whereupon the other man drew a revolver. Danza wiggled his arm out of his coat sleeve and dropped to the ground just in time to hear three bullets whistle over his head.

The park was crowded and people scattered in all directions when the shots were fired. Patrolman John H. White of the Elizabeth Street Station ran to the scene and found Danza still lying on the ground. Danza pointed out his assailants, who were sprinting across the park toward Bayard Street. The patrolman chased them through Bayard and Mott Streets, but lost them in Chinatown.

A second skull was dug up yesterday at the spot where Danza found the first on Saturday. It could not be ascertained from either skull whether they belonged to men or women. The one found yesterday was about fifteen feet underground, and there was a deep gash over the left eye, but it is not known whether this was a fatal blow or was caused by the steam shovel which picked it up. The spot where the excavation is being made was formerly a cemetery. No other bones were found.

1 DEAD, ONE SHOT, AT DANCE

Two Women Held as Witnesses in North Beach Shooting.

Joseph Woerle, 30, of 207 East Seventy-first Street, Manhattan, was shot and killed early yesterday morning in Castle Heights Casino, a dance hall at the Boulevard and Trainsmeadow Road, North Beach, Queens.

James Hiller, 22, who first gave his name as James Smith and his address as 244 East Seventy-first Street, Manhattan, is under a police guard in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, charged with homicide. Hiller has three bullet wounds in the right hand, one over the right eye and one in his neck. He denied that he was with either of the parties and said he was shot while running away.

At Woerle's table were his wife, Mrs. Lillian Woerle, 24; her sister, Mrs. Helen Doehm, 21, of 203 Howard Street, Newark, and Thomas F. Comisky, who gave no address. Mrs. Woerle told the police that she asked Hiller, whom she knew as a neighbor in East Seventy-first Street and who was at a table nearby, for a drink. She said he replied insultingly, and she summoned her husband. In the argument which followed Woerle was shot through the heart. Some one shot at Hiller as he ran from the café, the police said.

Mrs. Woerle, her sister, Comisky, Joseph Egan, a waiter, and Joseph Blywell, proprietor of the dance hall, were detained in the Hunters Point station as material witnesses.

KILLED MOTHER; FORGIVEN.

Father and Boy Have Affectionate Meeting After Accident.

HACKENSACK, N. J., Aug. 8.—Twelve-year-old Albert Pekary of Dumont, who yesterday accidentally shot and killed his mother in the kitchen of her home was this afternoon released from the Bergen County Jail. Prosecutor A. C. Hart said he was convinced the lad did not know the revolver was loaded.

Albert's father and his Sunday school teacher came to the jail this afternoon after they had been notified that he would not be held, and there was an affectionate meeting between father and son. The boy broke down and wept, crying "Mamma," "Mamma," and the father had difficulty in quieting him. "That's all right, son. It was not your fault," he said in his kindest tone.

After the shooting the lad became frightened and hid in a clump of woods near the house, but later came back and was brought to jail for examination.

COFFIN PLATE BALKS THIEF.

"Silk Hat Harry" Relates Incident That Caused Him to Reform.

OSSINING, Aug. 8.—An uncanny experience, according to a story just told by Walter White, a professional burglar who has just been paroled and is going home Friday, made him resolve to reform. White is known to the New York police as "Silk Hat Harry," because he worked while attired in evening clothes and a silk hat.

According to his story, one night White entered a dark parlor and, groping around, felt of something that he believed was silverware. He thought it was something on a dresser. When he flashed his flashlight on it he was startled. He says it was silver plating on a casket containing a corpse. "Silk Hat Harry" says he fled the house and decided never to commit a burglary again. It was after that, according to his story, the police nabbed him for an old job. Prison attendants pointed out today that White is to be freed on "Friday the 13th."

BANDITS GET $8,000 IN DICE GAME HOLDUP

SIX LOOT A RESTAURANT

Finding Business Good, Diners Flee with the Cash Register and $500.

Five masked men interrupted a dice game in the cellar of an apartment house at Fifteenth Avenue and Forty-second Street, Brooklyn, at 1:30 o'clock Saturday morning, it was learned yesterday. Four of the intruders, each with two pistols, backed forty or more players against a wall while the fifth emptied pockets of money and jewelry totaling about $8,000.

The fifth bandit worked rapidly, but had only robbed fourteen of the players when there came a signal from the street. The five fled and were last seen boarding a West End subway train. Policemen attempted to beat the train to the next station in an automobile, but lost the race. Details of the hold-up were suppressed by the police of the Parkville station until yesterday afternoon, when Captain John J. Sullivan, in charge of detectives in the Twelfth Inspection District, admitted that it had occurred.

Six men drove up to an all-night restaurant at 2,235 Eighth Avenue in a limousine at 2 o'clock yesterday morning, partook of a meal for which they paid, walked to the street, conferred a moment and returning held up the thirty patrons and drove away with a cash register containing $500. The cash register, broken and battered, was found by a policeman at Broadway and Sixtieth Street.

The victims of the Brooklyn hold-up were reluctant to report their loss to the police, and many scattered after the masked men made their escape. The police learned that probably nine men in all took part in the robbery, five on the inside and four others as lookouts at the four entrances to the large apartment building.

Leader Wore Mask.

The dice game, it was learned, began shortly after midnight. It was in full swing when a door opened suddenly and five men entered. One wore a black mask and the others had handkerchiefs tied about their faces. The black masked bandit gave the instructions.

"Put your hands up and keep them up, or there'll be a little gun play," the leader commanded, as the bandits slowly advanced on the players.

Meanwhile Louis Rabinowitz, a furrier, occupying an apartment in the building, was halted at the entrance by a man who told him he'd better not go in that way. Rabinowitz tried another entrance. A man there pointed a gun at his head and commanded him to keep moving and not to look around. Rabinowitz tried the other two entrances and, finding them guarded, looked for a policeman.

But the robbery in the basement had been carried out so quickly that when he came back with Policeman Joyce and Reiss of the Parkville Station they found only the angry group of players. Reiss and Joyce raced three miles in the automobile of one of the victims to Fourth Avenue and Pacific Street to head off the train the men had boarded at Fort Hamilton Parkway. They searched three trains without result.

In the basement the police found a pair of dice on a table improvised with boards laid across two sawhorses. Several of the players had thrown their valuables into coalbins, retrieving them later.

Reports Robbery of Fourteen.

Julius Rubin of 4,406 Second Avenue, Brooklyn, went to the Parkville Police Station early Saturday and reported that he and thirteen others had been held up and robbed when five masked men halted them as they were passing the apartment house.

According to Captain Sullivan, four of the men among those robbed were Rubin himself, a second hand furniture dealer, who lost $49; Max Steinberg, proprietor of a laundry, who was robbed of $60 and a stickpin valued at $50; Max Abrahams, a soda water dealer, who lost $162, and Morris Tonet, who lost a gold watch and chain and $40.

Rubin insisted that the holdup took place in front of the building. His description of the robbers tallied with that the police got from victims of the dice robbery. He said the robbers got between $7,000 and $8,000 and that one man, Abe Butler of Coney Island, lost $1,200. All the men held up were business men he met occasionally, he said. The leader of the band spoke broken English, and the others seemed to be foreigners, Rubin reported.

According to Captain Sullivan, two of the participants in the game were strangers to the other men playing and were passed over by the holdup men.

When he was asked for details of the holdup yesterday, Desk Lieutenant Lane of the Parkville station said:

Restaurant Holdup Impromtu.

According to the police of the West 123d Street Station, the Eighth Avenue restaurant holdup was an impromtu affair. The six young men, described as "well dressed," walked into the restaurant of Peter Menedin, in which about thirty persons were eating, and ordered steaks. As they went out one of the young men chatted with Thomas Menedin, Peter's brother, and cashier of the restaurant, while paying the bill.

"You do quite a business here, don't you?" he asked. Thomas replied that business had been unusually good.

"Did you have a good day today?" the young man asked. After being told again that business was good, the questioner joined the others on the sidewalk. Thomas Menedin later said he saw them talking together, and then they re-entered. Two of the men drew automatic pistols, one threatening the cashier, the other pointing his gun menacingly toward the patrons. The four apparently unarmed men carried the cash register to the limousine. A woman hurled a catusp bottle at the bandits as they went out. It broke and spattered them. The six drove south in Eighth Avenue. Soon afterward the desk Lieutenant of the West Sixty-eighth Street Station reported to the police of the West 123d Street Station that one of his men had found the battered cash register. The Menedins identified it.

ENGRAVER DIES BY SHOT.

"I Am Not Guilty," Says a Mysterious Note.

Jacques Raccine, an engraver, was found dead in bed in his room in the home of Louis Barruto, 211 Columbus Avenue, yesterday morning. There was a bullet wound in his forehead, and a revolver, with on chamber empty, lay beside him. Raccine, according to Barruto, had occupied a room in the house for sixteen years.

"I am not guilty. I forgive all."

Barruto told the police he knew of no reason why the engraver should commit suicide. He said the dead man's mother lived in New Rochelle and that he had a wealthy married sister in New Rochelle, who, during the war, was in charge of a Red Cross hospital near the front lines in France. He could not recall the name of the sister, whose husband was a Wall Street broker, he thought.

Raccine, according to Barruto, was employed by Charles Speith, 25 West Forty-second Street. He had been connected for fifteen years with William Burkley, 315 Fifth Avenue. Another sister, unmarried, Barruto said, was an artist, with a studio in Greenwich Village.

FIVE ARRESTED IN HOLDUP.

Prisoners Accused of Robbing United Cigar Store.

Five men arrested yesterday morning on suspicion of being implicated in a United Cigar Store hold-up at 1,770 Madison Avenue on July 24 were held in bail in the Harlem Court for further examination this morning. The prisoners said they were James Gaylor of 252 East 128th Street, Samuel Greenwald, 281 St. Ann's Avenue, the Bronx; Thomas Hayes, 249 East 125th Street; Thomas Connelly, 235 Third Avenue, and John Dugan, Albany, N. Y.

The five were arrested by detectives in the apartment of Gaylor. The complainant is Bernard Sneck of 60 West 117th Street, the salesman on duty in the cigar store on the night of the alleged robbery.

According to the police five men drove up to the store, which is between 116th and 117th Streets, at 8:45 o'clock on the night of July 24, in a taxicab. One of the men remained in the car while the others went into the store, where they bound and gagged Sneck and rifled the cash register, taking $185.
